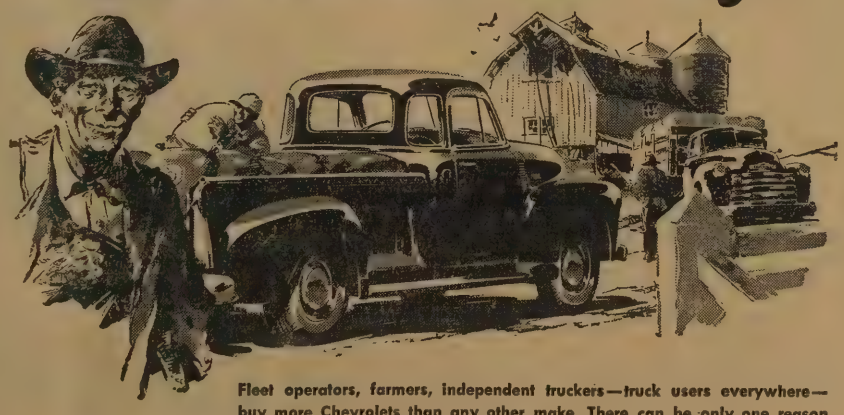
There's only one answer...

Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!



Fleet operators, farmers, independent truckers—truck users everywhere—buy more Chevrolets than any other make. There can be only one reason for that: Chevrolet trucks offer more of what you want.

As the official registration figures keep rolling in, they keep telling the same positive story about truck popularity and truck value: Again in 1953, for the twelfth straight production year, truck buyers show a clear-cut and decisive preference for Chevrolet trucks.

If you're a truck user, this fact is mighty important to you. Why? Well, as you know, trucks are built and bought for just one reason—to do a job. So isn't it logical then that since Chevrolet trucks outsell all others, they must do a better job at lower cost?

That's why it will pay you to stop in and see us before you buy your next truck.

His Picture got home in eight minutes

A Korean veteran returns; a loved one greets him at the dock; news cameras record the happy event. Eight minutes after the photograph is developed and rushed to the press picture bureau, it's in the veteran's home town across the continent—via the magic of telephoto.

Developed by the Bell System, telephoto flashes news photographs over telephone circuits to press associations and newspapers all over the Nation.

The lives of all Americans are enriched by such modern miracles as telephoto, the teletypewriter, and transmission of network television. These advancements came about through years of research by telephone scientists and engineers. This continuing research is one reason America has the most and best telephone service in the world.

Please Don't Let "Bloody June" Happen Again

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's top safety leaders voiced slight encouragement at the traffic picture drawn by Alabamians so far this month in comparison with "Bloody June" of 1952.

Earl McGowin, chairman of the Alabama Safety Commission, said that early June accident statistics show the state running "considerably under—perhaps one-half" the traffic toll recorded during June, 1952.

But Hugh Comer, President of the Alabama Safety Council, while acknowledging the improvement, said, "it is little consolation to the survivors of the dead that we are doing better this June than we did last time." One death is a needless death, he said, and urged even more caution and courtesy by drivers and pedestrains.

McGowin uoted preliminary figures supplied by Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan reportiing a rural death rate of 1.4 daily during the first nine days of June. For the same period last year, the daily rate was 4.0.

Urban traffic scores won't be known possibly for months, McGowin said. But he noted that three persons died in cities during the first nine days of June, 1952, and newspaper reports show at least that many killed thus far this month.

McGowin's commission of state officials and Comer's council of citizens are conducting jointly a statewide safe driving appeal under the slogan: "Remember 'bloody June' —don't let it happen again."

"Bloody June" was June of last year when 90 persons died in Alabama traffic, setting a record for any single month's toll in recent state traffic history. Comer and McGowin attributed this slaughter to "an unusual volume of the usual abandonment which comes with June vacations, travel and warm weather."

Both safety leaders have warned that a "normal" death toll for this June would be between 80 and 85, but that "sane driving and walking can prevent this heathen waste of human life."

Comer said speeding and disregard of traffic signs and signals were the principal violations reported by highway patrolmen who investigated the first eight fatal accidents during June.

Exceeding lawful and safe speeds figured in four of the wrecks, and disregarding the traffic controls, in three. One accident report showed three separate violations by a driver, Comer said.

Highway patrol are under "special alert" instructions this month from Patrol Chief Tom Carlisle to enforce all traffic laws rigidly. McGowin has urged local enforcement agencies to "carry the objective in the cities and towns."

To remove stains on an aluminum pot or pan, cook an acid food, such as tomatoes, in the utensil. Or boil a solution of two tablespoons of vinegar or cream of tartar to one quart of water in the pan.

INCONSIDERATE THIEF

Elkhart, Ind. — Deciding to mow his lawn, Richard Johnson went out to get his new $25 rubber-tired mower. It was gone. He had no excuse for not mowing the lawn, however, because whoever took Johnson's mower had left an old rusty one in its place.

Reverend Tommy Kemp of Pheonix City, Ala., and a native of Clanton, will be the Student Day Preacher at the First Methodist Church of Clanton June 28th.

Rev. Kemp was born in Clanton and is the son of Mrs. Maurice Brausa and the late Dick Kemp. Mr. Tom Kemp, a long-time Clanton merchant is a grandfather of the young preacher. Rev. Kemp spent his early childhood in Clanton before moving away to Pheonix City a few years ago.

Rev. Kemp graduated this year from Valley High School, Pheonix City and was outstanding for his work with the high school band. He was a director of church musical programs which have gained him wide recognition in his own church and city.

The young preacher is a director of Methodist Youth Fellowship in Pheonix City and on many occasions has conducted regular church services in that city. He was only recently ordained a minister and will enter theology school this fall.

Members of the Clanton Methodist Church have extended a special invitation to all of Rev. Kemp's relatives and friends to attend the church service on Sunday, June 28.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

I have never liked driving an automobile. It's much more pleasant to ride along and look at the scenery. As a result, I have campaigned for years to get the wife to learn. In turn she has objected. First that she is too short. But I convinced her that five feet in her high heels is tall enough.

Then she said she wasn't strong enough. Ninety-eight pounds packs a great big wallop, I told her and kissed her on the back of the neck. She agreed to learn and we marched out to the driveway.

Once she was in the car and behind the wheel I began to point out and name each part of the automobile.

"This, as you know," says I, "is the steering wheel. This is the ignition switch, this the handbrake, this is the accelerator, this the light switch."

On and on it went. I showed her how to put the car in neutral, set the hand brake, turn the switch and release it so the motor would start, how to press in the clutch and shift gears. "Now," says I, "tell me how to do it."

"Well," says she, "you pull out this 'thing' until its stuck so the car won't move, you neutralize this 'gadget,' turn this 'gizmo' which starts engine, pull this 'thingamajig' up and down so its in spot number one, release the 'thing' that stuck the car in the first place, and let out on that 'pedal' How am I doing?"

"Great," says I. "Driving school at the high school is held every morning from 9 to 10. Move over and I'll drive you down to enroll."

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

A little fellow we know was sneezing every other breath at a picture show and his mother turned and asked: "My goodness, have you caught a cold?" "No mam," was the prompt answer, "I've just got the God bless you's."

Well they have put parking meters on the block in front of the post office. There is two ways to look at this move by the city. It had got to where it was practically impossible to get a parking place within a block of the place because of motorists parking there for hours at a time instead of the few minutes necessary to run into, and out of, the post office for their mail. On the other hand now it doesn't seem exactly the right place to have parking meters when you are only in the building a fraction of a minute, as a rule, to get your mail. So there you are. On the one side you couldn't get close enough to the place to get your mail. Now maybe you can get close enough to get your mail but you will pay for the privilege. One thing is for dang sure—Mr. Average Citizen is going to hold the bag no matter how you figure it.

Received word this week that Miss Ada Bennett is liking Piedmont just fine. She says the people are all mighty fine there which we are sure is true, because people are the same the world over and most of them are fine. We want Miss Ada to like her new home at Piedmont but we hope she doesn't forget all the friends she made here the past dozen years—which of course she never will. She told us before she left that she wanted all the people in Chilton County to know how much she appreciated their friendship through the years and how she appreciated their helping her to make Johnson's Fashion Shop the success it was. We hope to be hearing from Miss Ada every now and then and we'll pass along the good word about how she is getting along.

Fellow we know went with his girl for about ten years, but never proposed to her because he first wanted to own some property and an automobile. At last he could afford both, so he called her up. "Honey," he said, "I've got a car, I've got a house, and a thousand dollars in the bank. Now, will you marry me?" "I sure will," she replied, "Who's this speaking?"

Junior Chamber Goes To Sylacauga

During the afternoon the Clanton group made a tour of the recreational facilities in Sylacauga, which is regarded as one of the most outstanding recreational plants in the southeast.

The group toured the main recreational building, attended the Cotton States tennis tournament and observed the many city-maintained tennis courts in operation, they observed the children's playground and it's children's swimming pool. The local group also visited the huge new open air recreation building that enables the people of Sylacauga to carry on their recreation even during inclement deather. The new outdoor facility contains such things as barbecue pits and picnic facilities. The local group also observed the Little League Baseball facilities that is designed for the children under 12 years of age.

From here the Clanton men and women visited the colored recreational facilities which included such things as a colored recreation building located in the new colored Federal Housing Project, the city park reserved for the colored people, the wading pool and the baseball facilities.

After the tour the Clanton group went on to Talladega for a dinner party at the Purefoy Hotel.

Reverend Don Esty, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Clanton, has issued a cordial invitation to everyone to attend services this week at his church. Rev. Esty has announced Sunday School for next Sunday morning will be conducted at 10 o'clock, morning worship services will be held at 11 o'clock, with Sunday evening services at 7:30. At the mid-week services Rev. Esty has announced that his topic will be "Studies In The Book of Luke."

Mrs. Rosie Baugh At Training Center

Mrs. Rosie Baugh of Maplesville, is attending the Methodist Youth Caravan Training Center in Nashville, Tenn., preparing for voluntary service in local Methodist churches during the next six weeks.

Experienced in the direction of Christian youth work, Mrs. Baugh is one of 51 adult counselors who will work with 204 college young people as members of Caravan teams this summer. Caravaners will serve about 320 churches in the United States, Hawaii and Cuba this season.

Composed of four young people and one adult counselor, each Caravan team is especially trained to give leadership and direction to the development of a youth program fulfilling the ideals and purposes of the Methodist Youth Fellowship in each local church. Caravaners assist local youth in planning for worship, discussion, recreation, and work projects. They interpret the youth program of the church to civic leaders.

Sponsored by staff members of the Methodist Board of Education, Nashville, Tenn., the five training centers are located at Simpson College, Indianapolis, Iowa; Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn.; McMurry College, Abilene, Texas; Lycoming College, Williamsport, Penn., and Westminster College, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Now in it's 15th year, the Methodist Caravan program has reached more than a million people in over 14,800 churches across the nation and overseas.

At Local Swimming Pool

News, Television Cameras Click And Grind As 21 Contestants Parade

As television cameras ground away hundreds of feet of film and news photographers and reporters scampered all over the place, 21 Peach Queen contestants paraded about the swimming pool in Clanton's City Park yesterday afternoon posing for the members of the press and the staff of television men.

Supervised by Mrs. Katherine Ellis, committee chairman, Mrs. Bill Eiland and Mrs. Guy McKee, the girls were put through their paces for the cameramen, whose pictures will go far and wide before that great event, the Peach Festival, takes place on Wednesday, July 8th.

Meanwhile Mrs. Ellis warned again that the time of the closing for the entries for the Peach Queen contest is fast drawing to a close and she reminded once again that the closing date for all entries will be July 1st.

Following another meeting last Monday night of the general committee under the direction of chairman R. L. (Dick) Scott, announcement was made of the tentative plans for the big day. Scott reported that the huge parade would kick off from Thorsby promptly at 9 o'clock Festival Day morning and would travel down Highway 31 into Clanton where it will end by 11 o'clock at the City Park. At 11:15 that morning the festivities will begin with the welcome address to be followed by the crowning of the King and Queen. Introduction of guests is then scheduled to take place to be followed by the main speaker and the auction of Chilton County's Prize Peaches.

All of these activities are expected to be out of the way by 1 o'clock that afternoon and the crowd will assemble immediately at the barbecue pit in the park where lunch will be served at 75c per plate. The barbecue lunch is again under the able direction of Cecil Ramsey.

A special hillbilly band from Craig Air Force Field, Selma, will then take over at 2 o'clock and a baseball game will then be played at 3 o'clock. The price of admission to see the hillbilly show will also entitle patrons to see the ball game as well.

Another new entrant to the Peach Queen contest was disclosed by Mrs. Ellis yesterday afternoon. She is Miss Mary Francis Burnett, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rush Burnett of Maplesville.

Jaycees Elect New Officers

Along with Carlisle, who will serve during the next six months, are John Sellers, first vice-president; Harold Smyer, second vice-president; John Foshee, secretary, and Johnny McKinnon, treasurer. Newly chosen directors include L. H. Bodden, H. L. Foshee, Dave Tingle and Buddy Hill. Installation of the newly elected officers will take place at the next regular meeting of the Clanton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Company I, 200th Infantry

Company B Reorganized Into New Guard Unit Here

Company "I" 200th Infantry has been organized and is located in Clanton. The old Company "B" 167th Infantry has been reorganized, also, but is at Roanoke, Ala.

The old Company B boys certainly made a fine record during the past tour of duty and I think every member of it was justly proud. The record was good both in and out of combat. No doubt the experience gained while attending drill and classes here in Clanton accounted for the fine record which was set.

The organization, Company I 200th Infantry, will drill and train men generally along the schedule as before, each meeting being planned, prepared and supervised

The organization of this company will differ somewhat from before. This time our company will consist of 49 Enlisted Men and five Officers, whereas before the table of organization called for 165 Enlisted Men and seven Officers. Actually our organization will be little larger than a platoon in size.

Thus far we have nine active and cooperative members whose interest and attendance has been close to 100%. Them names are:

M Sgt John F. Parten
M-Sgt Willie M. Payton
M Sgt Lacy W. Williams
M-Sgt Sam W. [illegible]
Sfc. Woody Dawson, Jr.
Cpl. Charles E. Jones
Cpl. Joe R. Minshew
Pct. James C. Kendrick.

The undersigned is also a member whose attendance has been 100%. We have two other Officer prospects, which we hope to get soon, and several other prospects for Enlisted Men. Our plans are to increase the company strength to twenty or twenty-five men before the beginning of the summer encampment. Summer camp will be at Fort McClellan, Alabama, from 16 August to 30 August, 1953.

At present, openings exist in all ranks from Recruit through 1st Lt. and vacancies also exist in all Infantry MOS's (Military Occupational Specialty). Our main effort thus far has been toward getting quality rather than quantity. Our plans are to get men that will cooperate, attend meetings regularly, attend summer camp and otherwise work for the betterment of the company.

As a matter of information to prospective members and citizens of the county I will quote the pay which men get for one night's training. Each can be multiplied by twelve to figure his pay per quarter, considering we drill two hours per night, one night per week, and our pay is quarterly. The National Guard pay scale is the same as Regular Army scale. Quarters and subsistance allowances are paid to those eligible during the summer encampment.

(See Pay Scale Below)

Another interesting feature that should be mentioned regarding the National Guard, is that as a member of such, active and in good standing is exempt from the draft. This should be of particular interest to those of draft age and those subject to the draft.

Since our reorganization on 14 April 1953 we have had eleven schedule drills and a great deal has been accomplished at each one. As an example of pay for those eleven meetings let's consider a corporal's pay with four years service ($4.59 x 11 — $50.49) for twenty-two hours training. That's well over $2.00 an hour. Where else in town could you gain so much?

We will be happy to have new members if they meet the requirements set by the National Guard and by the local unit. If further information is desired you may call Sfc. Dewey Deason, Jr., Unit Administrator, at 831 or come out to the armory on the Airport Road, Office hours from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Regular meetings are held every Tuesday night from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m

ROBERT F. WILLIAMSON,
Capt. Inf. Company Commander.

Local Draft Board To Call 14 Men

Chilton County's Draft Board has been called upon to meet their quota of 14 men to be furnished to the Army for the month of July, according to Col. J. T. Johnson, Jr., Acting State Director of Selective Service.

Col. Johnson has reported that none of these men to be inducted will be under 20 years of age. Chilton County's quota is a part of a total of 707 men to be called from Alabama during July. The state quota is also a part of a total of 23,000 men to be called up on a national scale.

Central Alabama Stockyard Sales

Trading in top grade hogs at the Central Alabama Stockyards last Monday was reported as brisk as the Number 1 grade brought as high as $24.75. The number two's were reported as selling as high as $22.00.

In the cattle section cows with calves on the side were reported selling for from $65 to $75, with killer cattle in the 400 to 500-pound class selling at better than $19.00. Next week's auction will be conducted at the regularly scheduled time at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Son Of Former News Employee Drowned In Tub

Funeral services for Donald Wallace Headley, 10-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Headley, of 2502 Water Ave., Selma, were conducted at Pinedale Church at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. Higdon Breslin, also of Selma officiating. The child's father was a former employee of the Chilton County News.

The tragedy struck the Headley family at their home in Selma Tuesday following the futile efforts on the part of Selma police, firemen, physicians and a trained nurse which were to no avail after they had worked with an iron lung over the youngster

In an effort to give the child some relief from the intense heat wave that has enveloped Alabama the past several days, the child's mother had placed the boy in several inches of water in the bathtub.

While otherswere in the household the mother stepped from the house to finish mowing the grass, intending to leave the child only momentarily. A few moments later she was hurriedly summoned back into the house by Mrs. Dewey Headley, who found the boy unconscious in the tub.

A call for help was placed and the first to arrive on the scene of the tragedy was Mrs. Marguerite Dewell, a neighbor and trained nurse. She directed efforts at artificial respiration before the arrival of firemen and police with a pulmotor. Firemen and police worked in shifts in an effort to bring the youngster back to life, but to no avail. Physicians also worked over the boy for a time, but were also foiled in their efforts. They finally pronounced the youngster dead.

Besides his parents the boy is survived by a sister, Sarah Elizabeth, 6, Tommie, 4, and by both his maternal and paternal grandparents.

A CORRECTION

Contrary to a report in last Friday's issue of the Chilton County News that safe robbers who entered the Jemison Post Office escaped with from 'three to four thousand dollars worth of money orders," the article should have read "escaped with from three to four thousand money orders."

A NEW BILL

Representative J. S. Plott is publishing a Bill in this issue of Chilton County News, which after due time, will be introduced in the Legislature.

We are not discussing the merits or demerits of the Bill as you can read for yourself its contents, but we here predict that it will be very popular with the homeowners of Chilton County.

That is something that cannot be said of most of the legislation introduced and passed in this session of our legislature.

BUSINESS SIGNS AHEAD

Americans have been reading for more than a year that a recession was due in the latter part of 1953. More recently, there have been definite signs that a leveling-off stage may have been reached in some fields of the national economy. Industrial production has been comparatively steady since March. The stock market has been weak recently, and farmers have continued to be pressed.

On the other hand, the gross output of goods and services in the second quarter of 1953 will be higher than in the first quarter, and in the first quarter the gross output was higher than in the fourth quarter of 1952.

Personal income is still rising, and American consumers bought at a record rate in the first three months of the year. Savings are also increasing.

A sign of confidence in the future was recently given when the automobile industry granted labor major concessions and more money. And a recent poll of business men showed they plan to spend more money on plants and new equipment this year than in 1952.

Also, Government economists have now estimated that Government spending in fiscal 1954 (which begins July 1st) will be about the same as it has been in fiscal 1953. Moreover, state and local government spending is expected to rise in fiscal 1954.

It looks, therefore, that the worst which can be expected in the latter half of this year is an economic stabilization, or readjustment. No severe recession is in sight and — on the contrary — there are many indications that business will be very good for some time to come.

The Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest Judges have announced the month of May prize winner to be George S. Williamson, 1516 North 34th Avenue, Birmingham. Mr. Williamson's 15 ounce Bluegill nosed out to win over a hot field of contenders in several other divisions. The monthly prize consists of a $10.00 merchandise certificate to be traded at the favorite sporting goods store of the winner.

Each month during the contest period a similar prize is awarded to a lucky contestant having the best weight percentage of the six contest species. Be sure and enter your catch. An 8 ounce Bluegill has an equal percentage as a whopping 5 pound Largemouth Bass. Monthly prize winners also stand a good chance to take one of the final contest trophies.

A lazy lull has beset the finny ones of the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes as the days grow longer and hotter. Largemouth and Smallmouth Bass have slowed in their activity and are only being taken in spots rather than the general run of the lakes.

However, refreshing news of Stripe schools has been reported and this means business will pick up considerably. Trolling and casting spoons and spinners are the most effective methods to boat these gamesters, and about the mouths of creeks are the best locations to look for the schools. Eager Bream await popping flies along the steep rocky banks and they are not too particular about the time of day a fisherman happens by. Between the occasional Largemouth Bass and the schools of Stripes and Bream fishing prospects are good.

Lake Martin—

Fred Wilder, Southside Standard Service Station, Dadeville, reports: J. F. Truman, Dadeville, fished Sandy Creek with a cane pole and live minnows and found one of those spots where the Largemouth Bass live. W. A. Tillery, a companion, figured in on a nice string of Bass, and also assisted Mr. Truman in boating a whoppin' 6 pound, 13 oz. Largemouth catch.

Lake Mitchell—

O. E. Oglesby, Mims Ferry Fishing Camp, near Clanton, reports: Barris Christ and Joe Tobia, Birmingham, brought in 16 Crappie, 1 Catfish and 1 Drum from the head waters of the lake. The catch was creeled with a home made lure resembling a live minnow. Jim McGraw, Birmingham, tried the north point of Gandy's Island with a chugger Spook and brought in 5 Stripes and 8 Smallmouth Bass. Dr. J. L. Bennett and family, Clanton, fished about the islands and strung up 20 pounds of Stripes and Drum. The Doctor used a green and white Coosa Nugget and spoon as bait. Jack Gore and Marion Easterling, Clanton, took 11 Stripes and 1 Largemouth Bass averaging 1½ pounds each. A Chub top water plug with a white feather trailer was the type bait used.

L. F. Cox's Fishing Camp, Cargile Creek, near Verbena, reports: Barney Parsons, Marbury, hooked a whoppin' 6 pound, 5 ounce Largemouth Bass on a spoon. Mr. Cox didn't say how many others Barney creeled but it's a good bet that the creel limit on Bass was caught.

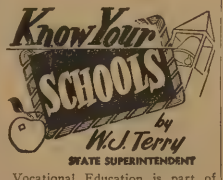
A. I. Powell, River Road Store, Higgins Ferry Road, near Clanton, reports: John D. Cooper of Cooper, Alabama, used a popper on Walnut Creek very effectively. On his nice string of Smallmouth Bass were beauties, all about the same size as the largest, 2 pounds, 12 ounces.

Lake Jordan—

H. H. Sears Boat Dock, Swayback Bridge, Sofkahatchee Creek, near Wetumpka, reports: Jim Boon and A. B. Robertson, Montgomery, fly fished Sofkahatchee Creek between 4 and 9 AM with a popping bug and boated 13 nice Largemouth Bass. The string averaged about 2 and a half pounds each.

Bring your family for a day or try one of the many fishing camps for a week and enjoy a delightful outing near home. You will find accommodations as fine as they come and right in line with the family budget.

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS: Do not let your boat get caught in the trough of a wave; always head into a wave, especially the wake of a larger craft.



Vocational Education is part of public education as a result of years of study and investigation. People from education, labor, industry, agriculture, and home-making cooperated in the studies. Public schools were doing little of a specific nature to assist boys and girls to earn a living after leaving school. No assistance was given workers to get, become adjusted to, and make progress in suitable jobs. Young people were leaving school unprepared for farming or homemaking and with no salable skills and knowledge. They were bidding for jobs at substandard wages. Agriculture and industry were changing and expanding. More workers were needed. The nature of work required education and training of a specific nature.

Educators were interested in Vocational Education. Some attempted to offer it. Efforts were mainly in manual training, general agriculture, cooking and sewing. Many looked upon these efforts as Vocational Education. These courses did not develope skills and knowledge needed for gainful employment and family living.

Educators welcomed assistance and leadership which the Smith-Hughes Act made possible. Evidence is that within five months after passage of the act each of forty-eight states took steps to obtain funds available.

The law and policies insured that real Vocational Education would result from use of federal funds provided financial incentive, encouragement and leadership to states in developing programs which would meet standards for good Vocational Education. The programs which resulted had as their purpose the better preparation of youth for employment and family living necessary for national welfare. Proof of their values is the passage of four other laws by the U. S. Congress. Each expanded the nation-wide program of Vocational Education through increased funds. States now spend for Vocational Education over three state dollars for each federal dollar instead of dollar for dollar as required by law

DALE CARNEGIE

WHEN Al Knowles, Middleburg, Virginia, was fired—sacked, as he says—and told to hand in his resignation, he didn't just worry; he virtually became temporarily insane. His pulse jumped to well over a hundred beats a minute, his heart was pumping like the great pumping system that sends oil from Texas to the East. His head felt three times its normal size, his temples bulged, and his mind was filled with distorted and confused ideas.

Sleep was out of the question, his eyes burned and the skin on his face felt as if a thousand pound weight was stretching it longer and longer.

Then he said to himself, "surely there is some solution to this soul wrecking problem." He picked up a book and began to read, when suddenly a rule "How to Analyze and Solve Worry Problems," came into his line of vision. This rule seemed to fit his situation. Grasping and clinging to each word as if it were a life raft and he was lost at sea, he read and reread a wonderful chapter.

CARNEGIE

The clouds started to clear from his mind, and picking up pencil and paper, he began to write. This is what he wrote at the top of the page:

Cause: A small and trite misunderstanding between the foreman and himself.

Next: Did he want to leave that job? No.

Then he listed the advantages and the disadvantages. For every fault he wrote a good point.

Finally he wrote, "Could I get this job back?"

The decision was made and now the outcome was up to him.

He went to the foreman, made himself humble, made the foreman know how much he appreciated the opportunities offered by that job Result? He was reinstated and the matter closed.

He says there isn't any worry in the world worth the price you must pay for it. And he believes your problem is on the way to being solved if you put it down in black and white.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower has made the move predicted by observers in Washington, namely, exerted his influence to save his program and his leadership.

The move was made because little legislation has gone to the President for signature and time is growing short. Congress would like to go home in August and the White House is willing if legislation enactment gets back on schedule.

The big question has been tax reduction which the President does not want. Fighting him on this issue has been Daniel A. Reed, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The President took an old and proven way of exerting his influence. He took his side of the story to the people in a nation-wide television program. His course: firmly against any tax reductions before next January.

It is now generally believed the President will get his way.

● Sen. Robert A. Taft has given William F. Knowland of California the job of senate majority leader, although "Mr. Republican" has made it clear he will still issue the orders and expects Senator Knowland to carry them out.

Taft will keep the title, power and prestige of the post, but by naming the Californian as his work horse, the Ohio senator has indicated his choice as a successor.

The move was made because of Taft's health.

● The official announcement that the nation's wheat supply will reach the surplus level unless there is an unforseen major development brings another problem to Secretary of Agriculture Benson for solution.

It means that the secretary, a foe of government controls, faces the prospect of putting restrictions —marketing quotas—on wheat.

Growers have approved 1954 controls for tobacco and peanuts. Cotton may also hit the surplus class. There is also a possibility that corn supplies may hit the surplus mark.

If these things materialize it will mean that Benson may have to apply crop restrictions on more items in a single year than any of his predecessors.

The report forecast a wheat crop of 1,132,500,000 bushels this year. This is about 232 million bushels above the level which might permit an escape from quotas. With a reserve of 575,000,000 bushels from previous crops, the nation has a prospective record wheat supply of more than 1,700,000,000 bushels.

● Washington sources are warning mothers and fathers of men fighting in Korea not to expect their sons, husbands and brothers home the next day if a peace is signed. It will take several months to get the plan into full operation and some may have to remain on duty in that war-torn country many months.

Mulberry Church—

The Vacation Bible School came to a close on Friday night with commencement exercises in the church auditorium. The principle, Mrs. Gordon Conway, was the leader of the program. It was begun by all the students and faculty marching into the auditorium, behind the principle flag carriers and one who carried the Bible. The first part of the program was a presentation of the daily program each morning. This gave the congregation an idea of what they had been doing. The songs and prayers of the little beginners showed excellent work done by them. The Primaries presented their songs, Bible verses, as from Mulberry Broadcasting Station. The Juniors gave several outlines of the work they had done. The Intermediates showed some of their work through songs. Mrs. Conway awarded each student enrolled in the school a certificate. Bro. Jones spoke some complimenting remarks on the school faculty and everyone who was responsible in making the school one of the best ever held at Mulberry, although the attendance was not as large as some of the other schools.

The community wants express their thanks to everyone who helped their children to have this great opportunity and to the ones who furnished transportation for the children, especially to Mrs. R. K. The Education Of Chiropractors

There is a great difference between what is true and what is rumored concerning the education of chiropractors. The typical chiropractor today has had a thorough and intense training in all subjects needed to practice his profession and to deal with the vital life-or-death problem of healing services to the public.

He is not learned in the administration of medicine or the performance of surgery, because he prescribes no medications and does no surgery. But in fundamental subjects such as anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, neurology, etc., his training is equal to or superior to that of other practitioners in the healing arts. And, in addition to these, he alone is intensively trained in those subjects peculiar to chiropractic which deal with eliminating sickness and disease by getting at the cause rather than doctoring the symptoms.

To receive accredited rating, a Chiropractic College course must meet rigid specifications and must total 4,000 class hours. This equals or exceeds the requirements of colleges teaching other methods of healing.

In its short 57-year history, chiropractic has of its own initiative brought its educational standards up to par with those of other professions. Never before in history has any other profession made such remarkable progress and achieved such public acceptance in so short a time. You can trust your health in the hands of your chiropractor with complete confidence that he is prepared to serve you well.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—How far back in American history does tariff sentiment extend?

A—"Way back. To encourage his fellow-citizens to "buy American" and protect "infant industries," George Washington wore New England home-spun broadcloth at his first inauguration. (Later, President Jackson's wife wore a grass bonnet "as an evidence of the perfection which our domestic manufacturers may hereafter acquire, if properly fostered and protected," according to Old Hickory.) The second law ever passed by Congress was an import tariff act, designed primarily to raise revenue, not to protect American industry. The first protective tariff was enacted in 1828.

Q—What is a "most-favored-nation" agreement?

A—Secretary of State Cordell Hull explained it thus: "I won't treat you any worse than the person I treat the best of all, provided you don't treat me any worse than the person you treat the best of all." When the U. S. signs a "most-favored-nation" agreement with Nation A, we promise not to impose higher import duties on Nation A's products than are levied on similar goods sold here by any other nation. In return, Nation A gives the same assurance.

Q—What is the continental shelf I've read so much about in connection with "tidelands" oil?

A—The House Judiciary Committee defines the shelf as the slightly submerged areas of the continent up to the point where ocean depth falls off abruptly to 600 feet. The U. S. continental shelf is estimated at 290,000 square miles, of which about 27,000 square miles are within the states' historic boundaries under the recently enacted offshore lands law.

A—Yes, a Senate subcommittee concluded hearings June 2 on a resolution to allow 18-year-olds the right to vote through a Constitutional amendment. Leonard W. Hall, Republican National Chairman, said May 25 that he, President Eisenhower and Vice President Nixon favor lowering the voting age to 18, as Georgia did in 1943.

This an' That

For the third time in its history Milwaukee is the home of a major league team. It was in the National League in 1878 and in the American League in 1901. Attendance has been so good it is rumored that a number of other major clubs are looking for forgotten nooks and would like to make their moves in 1954 . . . President Eisenhower, an expert with a fly rod, fishes like he plays golf—for blood. Ike's latest fishing was in the trout stream in South Dakota where President Coolidge fished in the 1920's. Coolidge, however, wasn't much of an angler and the trout were loaded down with liver to make them lazy and caught without a fight. Truman didn't care much about fishing although he made a great show of trolling in the Gulf Stream when he visited Key West.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THE instructor of the Driving School, which my wife is attending at my suggestion, called at the office.

He came right to the point. "I would appreciate it, sir," says he, "if you would convince your wife to withdraw from the school."

"But why?" says I.

"She has me completely befuddle, confused, and dumfounded. In fact, I'm practically a wreck—and that's not counting the automobile."

"How does she confuse you?" says I.

"Every instrument on the automobile is a gizmo. She refuses to learn their names. We start out and I tell her to release the clutch slowly. She asks what is the clutch. I explain. Then she'll say, 'Oh, you mean gizmo number one.' Everything is a gizmo with a number. I'm going crazy.

"You know, sir, it would be rather simple with this number system if she would give each instrument the same number all the time. But she changes them at her convenience. Please, can't you get her to give up the idea of learning to drive?"

"I'm sorry, old man," says I, "I have only convinced my wife of one thing in my life. That was to marry me. It has been almost 12 years since then."

"You have my sympathy," says he. He walks to the door and pauses for a moment. "You can send the check to the school," he says and opens the door.

"What check?" says I.

"The one for $325.34 for repairs on the automobile," says he. "Your wife got gizmos 1, 4 and 6 mixed up."

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Lewis B. Avery, Clinton, Michigan: I well remember the tramps who used to walk the Chicago turnpike, now U. S. 112, in the 1870's, and how my grandmother Avery cured a tramp of a badly crippled leg. He stopped and asked my mother for something to eat, and she told him that she was not feeling well enough to wait on him, but she would ask her mother-in-law to get him something. This made grandmother angry and she made it known in no uncertain tones that she would not be bothered with him. This apparently made him as angry as she and he straightened out his leg and picked up his crutches, put them under one arm and walked out of the yard.

I also remember the "bunch" matches we used about that time. They consisted of cubes of wood about two inches high, which had been split part of the way through to form 10 or 12 little slabs. The split ends were covered with phosphorus. When one wanted a match he had to pull off one of the little slabs.

From C. T. Farmer, Tyner, Kentucky: I remember the big wooden trough about six feet long that we used on washdays. About two feet of it was flat while the remainder held rinse water. Mother would boil the clothes in a big kettle and the children would then beat them clean with a "battling" stick. After that they were rinsed in the trough and put out to dry.

From the Bassett-Henry County Journal, Bassett, Va.: We see where a North Carolinian is suing the government for return of income taxes he has paid (and some that he has failed to pay for which he will likely go to jail), and also asking to be classified as an Indian, because these people are exempt from income taxation. He might get it into his noodle that he wants to be an Indian, but self-respecting red men would balk at accepting such an animal into the tribe. Indians have no time for traitors.

From the Democrat-Herald, Albany, Oregon: As the law now stands, a citizen has a legal right to belong to any party he chooses, including the Communist party, which as of now is not outlawed. He had not, however, the right or privilege to use the classroom and the college as a place to promote the ideas of a group devoted to the overthrow of the government by force.

From the Harvard Herald, Harvard, Illinois: Foreign trade is a complex subject. However, one fact is not difficult to understand. Trade must be a two-way street. An example of the constructive force of foreign trade may be found in the jute industry. The jute industry of India links the farmers of America with the farmers of Asia, and in doing so accounts for two-way trade that is of benefit to both. Manufacture of burlap from the jute crop of Indian Parkistan is India's largest industrial enterprise. Burlap exports by India to the United States in 1951 accounted for 26 per cent of India's total dollar earnings and amounted to $80,0000.000. About 80 per cent of the imports of burlap by America are used for the packaging of agricultural commodities in burlap bags.

From the Journal, Sunnyslope, Arizona: The Russians don't believe working men own automobiles. They would say it's a lie to see our high school boys and girls driving to school in their jalopies. Who has stopped them from getting what we have? Communists in the United States. No—their leaders are to blame.

From the Weekly Leader, Marion, Ill.: The great principle of democracy can be applied to the religious field. Respect for one's neighbors, whether or not he agrees with your strict beliefs, is an American principle too often abused.

PRESERVE fresh green colors in vegetables by cooking without the cover. Some vitamin loss will occur, but short cooking can prevent much of this, and vegetable will be eaten if it's more attractive.

Freshen cold baked potatoes for a second meal by dipping in cold water and then place in a moderate oven until heated through.

Use fresh drippings to season your cooked vegetables if you're trying to save on butter. More salt and pepper may be needed for next day servings.

Stale vegetables are freshened if they're soaked in cold water to which lemon juice is added. Don't soak too long, however, or food values may be lost.

Cabbage and cauliflower should be washed carefully to prevent any worms from lodging in the vegetable. If placed in cold, salted water for a short time before cooking, worms can be drawn out.

Mashed potatoes should be as light and fluffy as it's possible to make them. Older potatoes should be boiled in water to which some milk and lemon juice is added to prevent darkening. Use hot milk in which butter is melted to make them fluffy.

Strings from green beans should be removed to prevent them from being tough. Pour boiling water on the beans before cutting and the string comes off readily.

Combine leftovers of vegetables to achieve colorful triumphs like peas or corn in scooped-out beets, lima beans in squash nests, carrots in green pepper, spinach molded in rings for creamed onions and cauliflower with pimiento strips.

Miss Helen Hayes Is Wed To Mr. William Gaines Buchanan

Ethereal beauty distinguished the wedding of Miss Helen Floyd Hayes and William Gaines Buchanan solemnized in the First Baptist Church, Clanton, Friday evening, June 19th. The Rev. Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

Miss Hayes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wilbert Hayes of Clanton, and Mr. Buchanan's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Woodruff Buchanan of Selma.

An exalted scene of sublime beauty transformed the chancel of the church. Ascending spires of waxy foliage and palms supported the lofty chancel arch which was veiled by an airy filigree of emerald tendrils. Three glorious sunburst arrangements of white chrysanthemums, lilies and gladioli shone in brilliance suffused with a halo of celestial light emanating from white cathedral candles arranged in escending patterns of seven. The pews were marked with white cathedral candles burning in candelabra wreathed in fern caught with white pompons.

Traditional wedding music of exquisite sentiment was provided by Mrs. Erle E. Ellis, organist, and Miss Patricia Huddleston, soprano, both of Clanton. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Huddleston rendered, "Until," and "All For You." As a final benediction she sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride chose as her maid of honor, Miss Mary Elizabeth Mullins, Clanton. The bride's sister, Mrs. Douglas Barton, also of Clanton, served as honor matron. Bridesmaids and bridesmatrons included Misses Joanne Scott, Clanton; Emma Lucas, Russellville; Betsy Gilliland, Goodwater; Camille Walpole, Birmingham; Mrs. A. S. Agricola, Gadsden, and Mrs. Oakley W. Melton, Jr., Montgomery. Tiny Susan Barton, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Ringbearer was Master James Q. Wade, Jr., Clanton, nephew of the bride.

Mr. Buchanan was best man for his son. Groomsmen were Richard Buchanan and Wallace Buchanan, Selma, brothers of the groom; Nick Stevens, Mort Ames, Al Veach, Allen Collins and Richard Suster, all of Selma, and Ensign John Ed Scott of Clanton.

The maid of honor wore a floor-length gown fashioned of mint green net. The full skirt, billowing with side bouffants was emphasized by a snug summerbund of satin in matching hue. Tiers of stand-awayruffles of fluted net composed the strapless bodice front. Framing the shoulders was a diaphanous stole of net. Miss Mullins carried a cascade of white daisies, yellow and coral sweetheart roses and blue delphiniums tied with mint green satin. A circlet of the same flowers was worn in her hair.

The petite bride of fairest beauty was given in marriage by her father. Radiant with angelic loveliness she wore a bridal white gown of Priscilla demureness. The slender bodice of chantilly lace over slipper satin was designed with a yoke of tulle rising from an off-shoulder neck line accentuated with appliques of crystal and pearl on chantilly insertion. The long, fitted sleeves of lace ended in petal points trimmed in satin. Clouds of tulle richly paneled in lace drifted over satin sustained by crinolines creating a floor-length skirt that flowed in a cathedral train.

A veil of imported illusion falling full length was gathered to a cap of chantilly lace outlined in pearls, ruching of tulle and piping of satin.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of bridal white stephanotis, gypsophila, valley lilies, vleur d'amour, and orchids. She wore a circlet of pearls, gift of the groom. For something old, she carried two diminutive wedding handkerchiefs, the one her maternal grandmother's, and the other her mother's.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in their home and gardens. Mrs. Hayes received in a gown of champagne net styled with a long full skirt, and a softly draped decolletage. She wore a cherished pendant, a sunburst of diamonds. A hat matching her dress was worn, and a bronze orchid.

Mrs. Buchanan, mother of the groom, wore a pale blue chiffon gown with flowing lines and a matching hat. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The reception rooms were elegant with massive banks of magnolias, burnnig white tapers in silve candelabra, arrangements of white roses and fleur d'amours in silver epergnes.

Mounted colonial corsages composed of confectioner's hand molded forgetmenots, valley lilies, gardenias and roses framed in French maline and frills of lace, and tied with swirls of satin ribbon in palest of blue, graced the ends of the table.

The gardens' curving borders were defined with hurricane lamps of burning white tapers. Vistas were colonnaded with the trunks of ancient shade trees. Twinkling lights studded with a canopy of intricately interlaced boughs. Above all—the cerulean heavens of stellar brilliance, and a moon of June-night splendor. Playful moonbeams danced on the waters of the lily pool where gardenias floated in summer lassitude. Romantic strains of music wafted by zephys mingled with the fragrance of gardenias and magnolias.

The bridal party received in an enchanting setting approached by a walk bordered with white caladiums and illuminated with white burning tapers in hurricane lamps. A tiered fernery, luminously white of original design pyramided skyward containing waxed magnolia leaves and specimen spikes of white gladioli. Giving balance to this handsome composition were palms grouped around seven branched candelabra holding burning white tapers.

The bride's book was placed on a Victorian round table of hand wrought iron in alabaster white. An idealized bridal tree created of white satin branches showered with gardenias was lucent in candle light.

Minted punch was poured from cut glass bowls placed at the ends of a long table of glass and wrought iron centered with a Williamsburg arrangement of bridal white flowers silhouetted in candle light. A bevy of beautiful girls served cheese rings, chicken salad sandwiches, hand molded mints in bridal motifs, and wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas the couple will be at home in San Antonio, Texas, where the bridegroom is a Second Lieutenant in the Air Force.

Cutting the bride's cake were Mrs. James Q. Wade, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. F. N. Scott. Assisting in the reception rooms were Mesdames John D. Mullins, J. C. Burnett, M. C. Hayes, Omar L. Reynolds and Hosea Downs.

TINKER McCOY

By James D. Harsh

TINKER McCOY was quick to remember the face of Buck Waters on the "wanted" poster in front of Sheriff Mace Collins' office. A violent hate took hold of the giant blacksmith. He remembered the lean drifter with the tight lips and the pigeon-toed walk from a scuffle up Flint Ridge some four months past. Tinker was remembering how Buck had gunned his best friend, Clay Manners. Clay had stood with his hands in his pockets and had taken the lead without having a chance to draw.

Toward nightfall a light rain, kicked up by an unusual wind, set the air and ground cool. He turned to go inside and close up shop when he felt the cold barrel of a .45 jammed against his back. Then the man spoke and Tinker remembered Buck Waters' whiney voice.

"Don't turn around or I'll plug you," he moved deeper into the shadows. "My horse throwed a shoe and she's foot sore." Buck was breathing hard like he was scared of something he couldn't see. "I'll be needing a new shoe. And make it snappy!"

"One dollar, my friend," Tinker said after he had driven the last nail into place.

"It's on the house when I'm holding the gun, stupid." Buck said. Then he turned and topped his horse. He rode out of town fast, like he was running from the devil. Tonight the ground was damp and there was only the faint sound of the horse's hooves hitting against the sodden earth.

Sunlight came early to Clear Creek. By the time the rays of light had fully spread over the country Tinker was in the back room of the sheriff's office. He shook the sleep from Mace Collins. "Had a customer last night, Mace." The sheriff was still half asleep. "It was Buck Waters."

"Tarnation, man, where is he?" Collins was on his feet and already pulling on his boots.

"I reckon he's somewhere between here and the Lobos range. If we ride this morning I figure we can hunt him down."

"There's a heap of range between here and the Lobos," Mace Collins said. "You should of grabbed him last night."

"Not when he's holding a .45 like a hot coal. I remember what he did to Clay," Tinker said. "Just follow me."

Sheriff Collins followed Tinker without asking any more questions. Toward mid afternoon, after making the river crossing, they climbed up a narrow trail.

"Well, if you ask me, I see nothing but . . ." Then Mace saw the blue line of smoke rising above the brush. "Well, what do you know, Waters?" He asked placing his hand along his gun belt.

"I figure as much," replied Tinker dismounting and moving closer to the smoke, the sheriff close behind.

When Tinker crashed the door of the shack Buck Waters was sprawled on the cot, his gun belt strapped across the chair on the other side of the room. Big Tinker lunged, thinking all the time what a foolish spot for Buck to leave his only means of protection. Tinker's fist landed squarely against Bucks face and the fight was over.

The three rode back to town and the sheriff was saying, "Got to take my hat off to you, Tinker. I guess a big man's got a big brain."

"You can thank Waters for everything, Mace. Last night when he told me to take the lead out I just figured I'd leave the lead in, so to speak. I put a much heavier shoe on the horse's right front hoof, and made the heels a little longer than the other three. In the ground that had just been soaked it stood out from the rest of the shoes. Then I just tracked him down until we came to the shack. Can't see that it took too much brains, Mace. It just took a feeling of hatred for a no good sidewinder and a few tricks of the trade."

Several Attend Convention At University

Mrs. Marvin Sutley, Mrs. Curry Thomas, Miss Lois Baker and Mrs J. N. Calloway were among those who represented Chilton County at a conference of members of Alabama Department of Elementary Principals, Classroom Teachers, Worshop On Education of Handicapped Children, and Alabama Association of School Board members last Monday at the University of Alabama.

The conference was highlighted by Senator Falkner of Baldwin County, and Representative J. B Morgan of Jefferson County, who told of what the Legislature is doing. Sen. Falkner reported that a bill is now before the Legislature, which would make it possible for cities and counties to aid their local schools and bring them up to a national average. He also reported that a revision of the Teacher Tenure LAw would be made and that a state tenure commission would probably review appeals.

Representative Morgan reported that a new teacher-retirement system has replaced the old one. He stated that under the new system the minimum received by a retired teacher would be $62.50; whereas, under the old system the average of the teachers and the principals was $46.

Speaking at the noon luncheon, Mr. Ray Graham, Illinois Department of Education, Chief of Special fducation, declared that if your child is badly crippled, if he is subject to epileptic defect, if his young heart has been weakened by rheumatic fever, if he is exceptionally gifted, that a new day is dawning for him. Graham called for a new phylosophy that would recognize the child as being handicapped in only one field. He said: "We must learn to think of them as children first, and handicapped second."

The second general session of the conference was held in the afternoon, with Miss Mary Ruth Hollinman, President of A.E.A., Division Classroom Teachers, presiding. There was a panel discussion on the theme: "Together We Build."

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Blanch Taylor, Stillwater, Oklahoma: I remember when a cafe was known as a restaurant and the proprietor would come out and ring a bell so people of the community would know it was time to eat.

From Lillian Curtis, Erlanger, Kentucky: I remember as a child attending camp meetings. It cost 10 cents to get in and all the girls would pin their tickets to the front of their dresses so they could get back in the grounds if they went outside. People would come for miles around in wagons and on foot to attend.

From Mrs. Lewis C. Hughes, Ida Grove, Iowa: I remember 50 years ago when I lived at Strawberry, Kentucky, my father would have me yoke up an old pair of oxen to drag in fire wood from the hills. We would drag in logs and saw or chip it into desired lengths.

Also I would drag in a rotten stump to put in the bottom of our sweetpotato bed. We would mix in other fertilizer and if the bed wasn't watched closely and watered down it would get so hot sometime it would catch on fire.

From Guy M. Zerger, Hutchkiss, Colorado: I can remember before packing houses when local meat markets killed their own beef and pork. My brother and I would take a large bucket and get it filled to capacity with liver, heart, and brains for free.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

On the 48th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Tom McKee, Chilton County is really going to "roll out the barrel." Mr. Tom says he has received many honors in his day, some deserved and some undeserved, but never anything like this. There will be a parade hours long, a big barbecue, lots and lots of pretty girls and a queen selected. There will be big speakings at the City Park, plus any number of activities going on all at the same time. Mr. Tom said he just couldn't believe it if our Annual Peach Festival Day didn't come on the same date as his wedding anniversary.

Upon returning home after a hard day at the office father asked his children about their conduct for the day. "Oh, we've been good," said Nancy. "I washed the dishes." "And I wiped them," added Peter. "And what about you, Dicky, what did you do?" "I picked up the pieces," he replied cheerfully.

Reading about the Alabama Deep Sea Rodeo to be held soon on the Gulf reminds us that Loren Smith at Upchurch Drug Store held the record in this event for 16 years. It was in the Cavalla class. Loren isn't going to go this year, although he had planned to make the trip until recently. Now his plans are changed. He said that Mr. H. S. Shaw was fishing with him back in the early 1930's when he made his record catch.

An old gentleman was in the shoe store buying himself a pair of shoes. He bent and twisted the leather for a while then told the salesman: "This leather isn't much good." "That leather," returned the salesman, "will last a lot longer than you will." This nettled the old man who was 98 years old. "Young man," he said, "statistics show that fewer people die at 98 than at any other age up until that time."

CLANTON POST OFFICE ADVANCED TO FIRST CLASS

Postmaster R. W. Lowe of the Clanton Post Office, has announced that beginning July 1, the Clanton office will be advanced in grade to a First Class Post Office. Lowe also announced that because of the change new hours will prevail for the money order window. He said that window hours for money orders at a first class office are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and he has asked the public to cooperate in not asking that the window be raised before the regular opening hours.

The local postmaster also asked that those wishing money orders should have their order forms completely filled out before approaching the window as this is not a duty of the employee on duty at the money order window. Lowe has asked for the full cooperation of all the public in this effort.

SERIES OF MEETINGS AT MAPLESVILLE CHURCH

The Maplesville Church of Christ has announced a series of Gospel meetings to start at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 5, with Evangelist R. L. Huffman. Evangelist Huffman will also deliver the messages each night at 7:30, also be held at the Maplesville Church of Christ.

State Highway Patrol Prepares For A "Week-End Of Horror"

By BILL DODSON

Planning to take a pleasure trip in your car July 4th?

Maybe you'll hit the road to "beat the heat" at Florida's sunny beaches, the Great Smoky Mountains of Tennessee and Alabama, or to the many lakes, rivers and parks in this section of the country.

While thousands of Alabamians prepare for annual holiday outings, picnics, etc., the State Highway Patrol is making ready for the grim prospect of horrors on the highways.

They know that between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, a 54-hour period, some 10 persons are expected to die in a predicted 2,500 traffic accidents in the state.

They also know that some 350 persons are predicted to be injured in highway traffic in the state during the holiday period.

These estimates, which are based on "cold figures, past experience, and current traffic trends," were set up by the Alabama Safety Commission.

The patrol, which is expected to have every possible man on duty during the Independence holidays, "is going to do everything possible to prevent accidents," so Alabamians can "enjoy their holiday," said Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan.

"We hope the people will cooperate and save us the trouble of arresting them, but we're going to stop everyone we see violating the law," he said.

A total of 354 persons died in traffic accidents throughout the nation during the July 4th holidays last year. Twelve of these were reported in Alabama.

Out of the 12 deaths, speed killed six, according to the Alabama Safety Commission.

Many of the accidents that occur during Memorial Day period are caused by "complete lack of thinking," said Montgomery Public safety Director George Simmons.

"Everyone thinks they're overworked, and need relaxation so much, they throw precaution to the wind," he said.

A disadvantage of the July 4th holidays, Simmons said, is that they begin on week ends. "This is the time when most people are off from work, so many of them head for a spot to relax and take it easy."

Persons should plan a trip at a time when traffic would slacken off, and good weather conditions prevail, Simmons stated.

"Start the trip a little earlier," he said, "this keeps down fatigue on the part of the person driving."

He cited three main points for drivers to remember while traveling on congested highways during the July 4th holidays:

Don't speed.

The majority of traffic accidents could have been avoided if people had heeded these three rules, Simmons said.

"You can't shock people anymore with figures," he said, in pointing out that over 50 traffic fatalities have been reported in Alabama during this month.

"There's no real 'best time' to travel," Simmons cautioned, but he advised persons in this area to leave around 5 or 6 o'clock in the afternoon — after people have gotten off from work and headed home. Go about 70 or 80 miles and spend the night at a motor court or hotel. Then, after a good night's rest, leave early the following morning. This way you'll be far ahead of traffic from large cities, and it'll be safer traveling."

In stressing the attitude that most people have toward traffic accidents, Simmons said, "Hardly two out of 10 people would think that 400 persons dying in holiday traffic is a lot of people."

"Yet," he added, "let two or three persons die from disease, and people start doing something about it—some leave town."

The Alabama Safety Commission added this bit of grim news: "If June deaths, which have amounted to over 50 so far, reflect on into July, traffic fatalities will range largely in the 15-24-year-old group."

"It's bad to see people crippled from some disease," Simmons said, "but it's worse to see a young boy with his face cut to pieces after going through the windshield of a car."

"Slow down and be careful," he added, referring to those driving cars in the July 4th traffic.

OIL COMMITTEE SPOKESMAN SHOWS SAFETY EDUCATION CUTS TRAFFIC DEATHS

If the traffic accident fatality rate had not been greatly reduced since 1925, some 1514 Alabama citizens would be losing their lives each year in highway accidents, according to Ben F. Brian, Chairman of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee.

His statement was made as part of a plea to motorists to drive carefully over the Fourth of July holiday week end.

Mr. Brian said that in 1925 there were about 18 traffic deaths per 100,000,000 motor vehicle miles traveled in the nation, according to data compiled by the National Safety Council. By comparison the 1953 rate in Alabama was about 9 deaths per 100,000,000 motor vehicle miles.

"Last year there were 757 traffic deaths in our state," he said. "That is a shocking figure. However, it is encouraging to note that there has been substantial progress in reducing the traffic accident toll during the past 25 years or so. If this progress had not been made, would now be killing about 1514 people on our highways each year."

He attributed the improved highway fatality record over the years to a "continuing effort for safety education." Even though there has been an enormous increase in motor vehicle registrations, use and speed, the accident toll has been reduced on the basis of vehicle miles traveled.

"Of course," he added, "we cannot afford complacency. The highway accident toll remains a national disgrace and one of our major problems today. Still, I think it is heartening to see convincing evidence that safety education and safety efforts have brought results."

Mr. Brian urged that safety education be continued and intensified by all interested groups and individuals. He said it offers the single best hope of "really slashing the accident toll because it is the only way to get at the primary cause of accidents — driver and pedestrain carelessness."

He added that this safety education should be supplemented with "good traffic laws, firmly enforced, and the use of engineering and traffic control developments that bolster safe driving practices."

ALCHOLICS WHO SEE THINGS WHEN DRUNK OFTEN HEAR THINGS WHEN SOBER

Three Boston doctors recently reported, at the annual meeting of the American Neurological Association, that alcoholics who have sobered up, often "hear things."

Although these alcoholics see things when they are intoxicated, they seem to hear strange noises after sobering up.

The surprising part of the report, by Drs. Maurice Victor, Justin M. Hope and Raymond A. Adams, of the Massachusetts General Hospital was that the doctors reported cases of ouditory hallucinations fairly common. In fact, most of the alcoholics studied were reported to have experienced such hallucinations.

The doctors' study revealed that various noises were heard, such as music, voices, and barking. There were cases of violent reactions in the alcoholics and there were several attempts at suicide because of these hallucinations. The experience of "hearing things" is thus a more common effect of alcoholism than has been realized.

The latter two men are re-elected trustees

Negro Prisoner Retaken As Police Fire And Give Chase During Rush Hour

Quick thinking on the part of one man and the combined efforts of the Clanton Police Department and other Clanton citizens foiled the escape of a Negro prisoner Saturday morning as a city policeman attempted to turn him over to the Sheriff's Department.

Ben Williams, of 14th Street, West End, had been fined earlier Saturday morning by City Judge Joe Mullins on a charge of assault and battery. Judge Mullins had ordered the man to pay $100 and costs and was about to give the prisoner time to pay off when Police Charles Tucker and Patrolman Wallace Foshee explained that the prisoner was wanted by the Sheriff.

On this information Williams was ordered turned over to the Chilton County Sheriff and Patrolman Foshee was taking him to the county jail.

As the pair neared the front of the County Jail the prisoner broke into a run and headed out through the county parking lot. After the prisoner had been given fair warning to halt Patrolman Foshee then pulled his revolver and fired one shot at the fleeing negro, but failed to hit him. Patrolman Foshee said that he didn't fire again for fear of hitting other persons nearby.

As a result of the excitement other citizens soon gathered and took out after Williams, who by then was well on his way, especially after the shot was fired. Chief Tucker reported that Jay Foshee climbed onto the rear of a pick-up truck in order that he might keep in sight and to tell the pursurers in which direction Williams traveled.

Shortly after the chase started, however, Williams was recaptured. Chief Tucker said the prisoner was found by Patrolman Wallace Foshee hiding in a sewer on Third Avenue, South

Chief Tucker also asked that this newspaper express his appreciation [illegible] citizens who had a part in the recapture of Williams and his safe return to the county jail. Sheriff [illegible] reported that he held two [illegible] against Williams for burg[illegible]

T-J Lions Club Officers Installed

After having been installed as President of the Clanton Lions Club only a few days before, Gordon Robertson took over the reigns as the installing officer last Thursday night to administer the same ceremonies to the newly elected president of the Thorsby-Jemison Lions Club.

At that time Robertson installed all of the new officers of the T-J Club, headed by W. Crawford Young, Manager-Supervisor of the Federal Nursery at Thorsby.

In charging the new T-J Club president and other officers with their new duties, Robertson said: "The policies and the successes of this club will depend upon the actions of the Board of Directors of which you are members.

"If the Board of Directors functions as it should, the club will be a vital force in this community, and will be a link in the long chain of Lionism which reaches into all parts of our land and seven of our neighboring lands. The members of your club have every confidence in you and your ability to measure up to the full standards of Lionism.

"As members of the Board you shall authorize all expenditures. May I, at this time, caution you not to create any indebtedness beyond the income of the club, nor dispurse funds for purposes that are non-essential to the objects of the Club?

"On your honor as men and Lions, do you individually and collectively promise to stand by this club, live with it and work with it throughout the coming year to take such time as may be necessary to perform your official duties, properly?"

Other newly elected officers who were also installed at the same time included: Donald Jones, Jemison; Ed R. Yeargan, Thorsby; Sam Woodley, Jemison; R. B. Johnson, Jemison; J. Archie Ogburn and Lloyd Howard, both of Thorsby W. Roy Kendrick and Askew Davis, of Thorsby; and James Rasco and Lester aPte, of Jemison.

PRESENT LEGISLATURE GETS BIG-HEARTED

My goodness! Look what the school teachers got. They got a raise in pay! Last Tuesday the House approved a "cost of living" pay raise, a raise that will give our school teachers about $125 more a year for the next two years. What a tremendous inducement that is to raise the standards of our teachers. Surely that's an inducement that will plug our Boards of Education with mail bags chuck full of applications from teachers wanting to come into Alabama because of "the big pay raise." What an inducement that is too, to get our young people, that want to enter the teaching profession, to stay in Alabama and follow their chosen field.

The members of the House of Representatives of the State of Alabama can really pat themselves on the back now for this "big deal." They can surely be proud of themselves. Yes, they can be proud of themselves while our youngsters still take it on the chin because they don't get the proper teaching in the lower grades, because they are not properly prepared to enter our colleges and higher institutions of learning.

There are youngsters right here in Chilton County who have gone on to colleges and universities only to quit and go to work because they couldn't make the grade. Why? Because in many cases they weren't properly prepared to carry on in our colleges and universities. This is not a gripe at our present teachers, because most of them took on the job during World War 2, when teachers were not available. This is a complaint however, about the lack of something being done about the situation as it now stands.

Estimated, the average teacher receives about $1,800 a year or for 9 working months. Then the teacher must go to school or do practically nothing during the summer months. In either case it takes a lot of money. Now, the House members have finally taken some action, they have given our teachers, those people that have so much to do with the moulding of our youngsters character and their preparation for their coming years, a great big raise of $125 a year for two years. Do you suppose the members of our House of Representatives really had the interests of our youngsters and our teachers at heart when they opened their hearts that much?

OUR AMERICAN LEGION POST

What's happened to Clanton's American Legion Post? Clanton is full of World War 1 & 2 Veterans as well as many that have seen duty in the Armed Forces during the present Korean Conflict. Was a time several years ago that our local American Legion Post was one of the most active in the state. But during the past several years the local post has shown only a few spurts of activity.

We have in the past few years also had some good men elected to the head of our local post. And each time there is a new commander meetings are held for a time then they just simmer out.

Our local post has a good sum in it's treasury. It has purchased a lot for the purpose of building a new building. But still it seems to have come to a standstill.

In Thorsby the American Legion Post there has accomplished a good many things during the past several years. The latest of their accompishments being the purchase of a building. All last year they conducted almost weekly square dances that have been termed by many of the Thorsby community as being good clean fun for everyone and at the same time bring in some of that green stuff that is so hard for all of us to get hold of. The Thorsby Post has also been entertaining throughout the year, bringing in interesting speakers from time to time and conducting many other activities.

Perhaps the Veterans here in Clanton should invite some of the Vets from Thorsby to come here and show them how it's done. What's the answer? Why can't Clanton have an active American Legion Post?

INDEPENDENCE DAY, 1953

On July 2nd, 1776, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia, offered a resolution in the Continental Congress which stated that "the united Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." His resolution was adopted.

At that time it was widely believed July 2nd would thereafter be celebrated as the national independence holiday. John Adams wrote, on July 3rd 1776: "The second of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. . . .

"It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games and sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forever more. . .I am well aware of the toil and blood and treasure that it will cost us to maintain this declaration and support and defend the states. Yet, through all the gloom, I can see rays of ravishing light and glory. I can see that the end is more than worth all the means. . . "

A committee, composed of Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Roger Shernan and Robert Livingston, had been working on a draft of a Declaration of Independence for some time before Lee's resolution. After adoption of the resolution, the Committee's declaration was considered and adopted. It is the Declaration of Independence.

In 1778, after it was known that the Constitution had been adopted by the required number of states—nine—to become effective, lavish celebrations were held in cities, like Philadelphia, on the Fourth of July. The war with the British was both long and bitter, and General George Washington experienced many bleak days before he finally achieved victory.

In later years the sacrifices and foresight of the Colonies' statesmen and soldiers of that era have too often been unappreciated. No national holiday should be more reverently observed than that of July 4th. No group has changed the world's course of progress, and destiny, more than the soldiers and statesmen of the American Colonies of that day.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The six-year-old and the four-year-old, inspired by a cowboy movie they had seen earlier in the day, were playing stage coach out in the yard.

They had built a fine stage coach out of an orange crate (only a few hours before it had been a pirate ship) and an apple box, but they needed some reins for the "horses," and they needed those reins at once.

I was busy sewing on buttons and letting down hems when the four-year-old hurried into the house, spied my tape measure on the table and said:

"We need to borrow this a little while, I'll bring it back when we get through."

A little while later he came in with his hands behind him and announced in what he hoped was a convincing voice:

"Mother, I have a nice surprise for you. Look, you have two of these now!"

Surely this was a much better approach than saying, "I broke your tape measure."

Our baby bed, holding its third occupant, has become rather creaky, and the casters drop out of it nearly every time we move it. That is, they did drop out until the next door neighbor came by and fixed it for us.

Her method of correcting the trouble was so simple it made me wonder why I had put up with the annoyance for so long. All she did was to wrap some adhesive tape around the stems of the loose castors until they fit snugly.

The other morning I went on a spree of doing some serious cleaning in the bathroom, beginnnig with a wholesale throwing away of partly-used bottles of medicine in the medicine cabinet and ending with a thorough scrubbing of the tub.

The discolored glasses presented a problem until the neighbor down the street suggested that I fill them with vinegar, let stand for ten minutes and then wash with soapy water. This treatment removed all the sediment caused by lime in the water and left the glasses sparklingly clean.

This same neighbor told me the secret of removing those yellow stains in the tub and lavatory: Make a paste of equal parts of peroxide and cream of tartar, and rub the stained places with the mixture.

Speaking of vinegar, it can help out with all kinds of cleaning jobs around the house. For instance, it does an amazing job of removing brown scum from flower vases. Just soak the vases in a strong solution of hot vinegar and then wash in clear water. They will shine and will smell fresh and sweet, too.

Those fresh peaches arriving at the markets now seem to be asking to be made into desserts like this Peach Whip our neighbor makes: Peel and mash 6 ripe peaches and stir in 1-3 cup sugar. Whip 1 1-3 cups evaporated milk (chill in refrigerator so it will whip), add 1-3 cup lemon juice, 3 teaspoons grated lemon peel and peaches. Serve at once or chill in refrigerator a few minutes.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician and a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

SUMMER ALLERGIES

The allergic person carries in the mucous membrances and in the skin certain substances created within his own blood which are called antibodies. Specifically, antibodies are fighting agents which oppose the source to which the person is sensitive. Thus, some people are susceptible to various pollens which are carried through the air.

When inhaled through the nostrils, the antibodies present in the mucous membrances attempt to set up a resistance. A chemical reaction takes place which releases a substance, normally present in the body, called histamine; and it is this element that causes the nose to run, the eyes to water, and the delicate muscles of the bronchial tubes to constrict. With all the characteristics of the common cold, the allergic person has difficulty in breathing, sleeping and carrying on daily activities. He develops what is commonly called hay fever or, if the irritation is located deep in the chest, hay asthma.

In June and July grasses are the main offenders. There are many varieties of grasses—Kentucky blue grass, orchard grass, June grass, Red Top and Timothy. A person who is allergic to one type is usually allergic to all of them.

In mid-August, ragweed pollen is the culprit. Even though growing in remote and patchy areas, the pollen travels with the wind, causing great misery to those sensitive to it, particularly when the pollen count is high.

Grass pollen allergies are often called rose fever because they always occur when the roses are in bloom. Similarly, ragweed sensitivity is called hay fever although hay has little to do with it. Both grass and ragweed pollen are so microscopically small they cannot be seen. That is why victims of grass pollen think they have rose fever because they suffer most when roses are in bloom, and persons sensitive to ragweed think they are allergic to goldenrod because it too is in bloom when they develop characteristic symptoms.

Because the summer months associated with the troublemaking pollens yield such misery to allergic persons, it is no wonder they look forward to a long and cold winter.

Non-Farm Employment Is Low In Alabama

Non-farm employment in Alabama remained steady from April to May with a minor loss of 600. The total May figure of 679,600 represented a gain of 9,000 from a year ago, according to a statement released by Joe. L. Coleman, director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

In manufacturing industries primary metals, textiles and the chemical industry accounted for the most of the 2,300 drop in workers from April to May. A 700 decline in metals resulted from one shutdown and a partial shutdown, whereas textiles lost 600 primarily because of the destruction of one mill by a cyclone. The current level of 51,000 in textiles is 800 above the May 1952 estimate. Although fertilizer and vegetable oil palnts, members of the chemical industry, were at seasonal downturns, their 7,600 employees in May represented a rise from last year.

Federal employment continued downward, dropping 500 workers from April to May. The total decline since the first of the year was 1,200 as contrasted with the similar period last year when there was a gain of 1,700 workers.

Contract construction had a 1,900 boost from April. However the current level of 37,100 reveals a loss of 1,800 from last year's comparable period.

Following true to the longtime down-trend caused by mechanization, coal mining dropped 400. Compared with last year totals there are fewer coal miners in the state. Metal mining has also suffered losses due to further mechanization. The present total of 4,900 was a gain of 100 as compared with the April figures but was 1,100 below the year ago estimates.

The average production worker's weekly wages of $55.20, as revealed by mid-month payrolls in May, were up nearly 8 percent from a year ago, although the average work week has increased little more than half an hour. There are about 207,000 production workers in the state.

ASSEMBLIES SHOW A REMARKABLE GROWTH

Some very interesting information has come from a careful survey of Assemblies of God records made by the General Secretary's office during the month of March, 1953. At the present time there are listed 6,362 affiliated and co-operative assemblies with a constituency of 370,118 persons of sixteen years of age or over. Two years ago there was only 5,854 assemblies with membership estimated to be 318,478.

There are 742 churches of the Assemblies of God in the state of Texas alone, with a combined membership of 52,318. This means that in the state of Texas there are nearly seven Assemblies of God members to every 1,000 of population. The national average is 2.4 members per 1,000 of population.

Sunday School enrollment and attendance is even more remarkable. Latest statistics compiled by the National Sunday School Department reveal that there are 6,230 Sunday Schools with an estimated enrollment of 710,220 and an average attendance of 517,090. This represents an increase of 52,950 in enrollment and an increase of 46,750 in average attendance during the past year. These 6,230 Sunday Schools are staffed with 74,760 teachers and officers. During the 19552 calendar year 68,530 souls were won for Christ through the Sunday Schools.

From the Pleasant Hill Times, Pleasant Hill, Mo.: It sometimes seems to us that this (editorial) column is the most expensive space in the paper. It is costly in time, because it seems to require a great lot of dilly-dallying to get it written. It costs criticism because what we say does not always please everyone. It even costs us advertising, because we are not a "good" little paper to be rewarded. It would not be true to say that we do not give a hoot, since we attach value to all these things, but we do not give enough of a hoot to quit speaking our piece, however poorly. A newspaper that never spoke its own mind would not be, to our notion, much satisfaction to publish or read.

From The Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: A trade bulletin recently editorialized on the shopping situation in large trade centers. It observed merchants have kept abreast with the public demand, with better stores, improved and expanded lines of merchandise and increased parking facilities. However, the Bulletin said, "Competition is terrific."

The same is true, in varying degree, in thousands and thousands of American communities. And this is the reason why retailing, in America, has reached a peak of efficiency and service unknown abroad. That hasn't happened because merchants are any more public spirited than the rest of us. It has happened because, where competition is free and open, success and survival depend upon keeping up with the swim.

Furthermore, in this kind of a system anyone can rise to the top —there are no artificial checks on growth and progress. The small store of today becomes the great store of tomorrow. And today's great store, if it fails to meet the competition, swiftly goes down hill. The prizes go to those who honestly earn them.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

The Righteousness and Justice of God.

Lesson for July 5: Romans 1: 8-17; 2: 1-2; 3: 21-22a.

Golden Text: Romans 1: 16.

In the third quarter, we continue studies in the Epistles of Paul. The Epistle to the Romans was written several years before Paul reached Rome, not as he had hoped but as a prisoner who had appealed unto Caesar.

After expressing his great desire to go to Rome, that he might impart unto the Christians there some spiritual gift to the end that they should be established in the gospel, Paul acknowledged his weighty debt, not only to his own race but also to the Greeks, to all men, and he declared his readiness to preach the gospel at Rome. Then he declared the great truth, that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.

The righteousness of God is revealed in the gift of Jesus, through whom men of faith can escape the penalty of a broken law and receive power to keep that law. For the "just shall live by faith." These words just quoted seemed to sound in the ears of Martin Luther while he was climbing, as a penitential exercise, a sacred stairway.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—Is Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, new Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the first woman to hold a cabinet post?

A—No, she is the second. Miss Frances Perkins was Secretary of Labor under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Q—What has been proposed for the government-owned rubber plants?

A—President Eisenhower recommended to Congress April 14 that the $550 million rubber plants under government ownership be sold to private industry. He said the disposal must be in line with three objectives: The facilities should return to the government "their full fair value;" they should be disposed of in a manner that would insure the public and fabricators "the benefits of fair competition;" and they should be sold "on such terms as will guarantee their ready availability . . . in time of emergency."

Q—What procedure is required for amending the U. S. Constitution?

A—The Constitution itself states in Article V: "The Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either Case, shall be valid to all Intents and Purposes as Part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other Mode of Ratification may be proposed by the Congress . . ."

Q—Could a Constitutional amendment be proposed and ratified without a vote of Congress?

A—According to the American Law Section of the Library of Congress, this is an academic question since all amendments so far have been proposed by Congress. However, the legal specialists said even if Congress did not propose the amendment and the alternative method for proposing an amendment — by Constitutional convention — were employed, the Congress probably would have to vote on a resolution to submit the amendment proposed by Constitutional Convention to the states for ratification.

PROFESSOR FINDS TOOLS 500,000 YEARS OLD

Professor Camille Arambourg, of the Museum of Natural History in Paris, recently dug up several crudely-formed stone implements which may be the oldest known implements of man. The discovery of these tools indicates the existence of a form of humanity at the beginning of the Ice Age.

No human remains were found in Professor Arambourg's excavations, which have been carried on for a number of years in his search for fauna. But the discovery is taken to indicate that primitive creatures roaming North Africa 500,000 years ago were capable of mechanical thought.

Leading anthropologists and archeologists the world over have expressed intense interest in the discovery, which took place in Northern Algeria, not too far from the Mediterranean coast. Similar discoveries in the past have enabled man to reconstruct some of the ancient habits and characteristics of ancient peoples.

ALABAMA DEEP SEA RODEO JULY 24-26

Mobile, Ala.—Approximately 2,000 fisherman are expected to be in competition for an $8,000 prize cache offered on the week-end of July 24-26 at the 1953 Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo.

This 21st edition of the internationally famous fishing festival, the oldest of its kind in the nation, gives promise of some fine catches judging by present fishing conditions in the Gulf of Mexico near Dauphin Island, Rodeo Headquarters.

Gus Woolford, 1953 Rodeo president, points out that "tarpon, ling, cavalla, red fish and many other species of game fish are being caught daily now by fishing parties and the '53 Rodeo catch should be the best in a decade."

Roy H. Martin, holder of seven world's fishing records, will be on hand again this year to judge Rodeo catches. One of the nation's top fishing experts, Martin is from Panama City, Fla.

Also being held in connection with the Rodeo this year are the Rodeo Stock Car Races, offering $1250 for race winners and $300 in spectator prizes.

The Rodeo Stock Car Races are sanctioned by the National Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing and forty or more of the South's top-flight drivers are expected to compete in the oval classic at Lakeview Speedway.

Free folders and full information concerning the entire program may be obtained by writing the Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, P. O. Box 172, Mobile, Ala.

Everyone is invited to attend this homecoming, especially former residents of the Poplar Springs community.

These are signs of life—and the life they save may be your own. Despite all efforts toward safety through the years, traffic deaths still total 38,000 a year. A terrible toll, one that every person who drives can help reduce.

It's no accident that telephone employees who operate cars and trucks are careful drivers. They're constantly trained in safety. The Bell System's safety creed expresses it this way:

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Many farmers in the Sixth District will be interested to know that the House last week passed a bill to prevent the Interstate Commerce Commission from doing away with the practice of "trip-leasing." Two years ago the ICC issued an order which would, in effect, eliminate trip leasing, but by its vote the House indicated that it feels the ICC should not have the authority to interfere.

Trip leasing was established many years ago as an economical and flexible method of transportation for agricultural products. This transportation practice has been used primarily by those who haul cattle and agricultural commodities from their farms by truck. It has enabled small or "exempt" truckers to pick up a return load after they have delivered their own farm load to a certain destination.

An exempt hauler is a person (usually a farmer) whose truck operations are not regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the exception of certain safety rules. Unlike common or contract truckers who are regulated by the ICC, the small or exempt trucker is not allowed to engage in the hauling of such products as manufactured goods. However, under the trip leasing arrangements, exempt haulers could lease their trucks to common or contract carriers after they had delivered their own load. Through the lease agreement, they could pick up a return load of any commodity which the ICC-regulated common or contract carriers were entitled to haul. Such a practice permits a farmer or other small independent trucker to return with a load so that he does not have to make the back-home journey with an empty truck. This practice has been supported by the American Farm Bureau Federation which has opposed efforts to eliminate trip leasing.

The trip leasing method was suddenly threatened two years ago when the Interstate Commerce Commission issued an order providing that common and contract carriers could not lease exempt or private trucks for less than 30 days. This order made it virtually impossible for trip leasing to continue since the leasing of exempt trucks was for short periods only. The small truck owners could not afford to turn over their equipment to an ICC-regulated carrier for such a long period. Neither did the ruling meet with the approval of the contract carriers because they hesitated to bear the responsibility and expense included in leasing a private truck for a 30-day period.

For instance, under the ICC ruling, a farmer in Chilton County who delivered a load of his agricultural products to Atlanta, Ga., would have to return home with an empty truck. He would incur expenses for a trip to and from Atlanta, but would have his truck filled for one-way only.

The 30-day regulation issued by the ICC has been questioned before the courts a number of times. A recent Supreme Court decision upheld the authority of the ICC to regulate the duration of leases. However, a minority of the members disagreed sharply with the majority decision and argued that such ICC authority would automatically eliminate many small truck operators who could not afford to carry a load in only one direction. The court decision was appealed, but no further action has been taken, pending possible action by Congress on the matter.

I supported the action of the House in adopting the bill to prevent the ICC from abolishing trip leasing. To deny the farmers and small truck owners the opportunity to trip lease would be to inflict hardships on agriculture as a whole. If this were allowed to happen, it would be necessary for many farmers either to return from interstate markets with empty trucks and a consequent loss of revenue or to rely on more expensive and less flexible means of transporting commodities. As a result, it would have been necessary for consumers to pay higher retail prices on most agricultural products.

Truman Visits—

Periodically, the first-term Democratic members of Congress breakfast together and have some prominent Democrat as guest speaker. Since the group organized in January, we heard such outstanding men as Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, Rep. Sam Rayburn of Texas, Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, Stephen Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic National Committee and others.

Former President Truman was the guest at our most recent meeting in the Capitol dining room. Speaking without notes and in an informal manner, the past President offered some brief "off the record" remarks to our group. Later, he talked personally with a number of the freshmen Congressmen who found him to be most friendly and affable.

Mr. Truman appeared to be in exceptionally good health. As a matter of fact, I thought he looked closer to 50 years old than his actual age of 68.

NAVY PREPARING FOR ATOMIC WAR AT SEA

Rear Admiral T. S. Combs, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, and Vice-Admiral R. A. Oftsie, Deputy Chief of Naval operations for the Air recently told a Senate Appropriations sub-committee the Navy hoped to enter any new war with guided-missle warships and atom bomb-carrying aircraft.

The two officers, appearing in behalf of a request for $150,000,0000 in new funds for guided missiles, said the Navy envisioned a substantial number of guided missle fleet units and a large fleet of planes capable of delivering small atom bombs.

The Navy would also have a small number of aircraft capable of carrying larger atom bombs but Admiral Oftsie testified small atomic weapons had created many possibilities for naval aviation, and that there were many targets on which the small bombs could be effectively used. He also expressed the opinion that the eventual solution to the Navy's air force problems will [illegible] aircraft-carrier.

The prospect outlined by these officers is a U. S. Navy [illegible] aircraft carriers, armed with guided missiles, and aircraft capable of delivering both small and large atom or hydrogen bombs. Like the British, the U. S. Navy is emphasizing air power, in line with the lessons of World War II, and this is the only logical approach open to the sea arm.

Montgomery, Ala. — The 1953 Alabama Employ the Physically Handicapped Poster Contest produced a record number of 400 posters. This was three times as many posters as were submitted last year and eight times as many as in 1949, the first year of the contest. Some students did not participate, however, because of the mistaken idea that there must be an art instructor in the school in order to be eligible.

The contest is sponsored jointly by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Department of Industrial Relations (Alabama State Employment Service). Joe L. Coleman, Director.

Participating school children have come to realize why it is good business for industry to hire physically handicapped people. This has been accomplished by students studying the VFW rehabilitation program and utilizing the ideas gained from creating their posters.

Many school principals assisted students in a technical way and gave moral support as well. This was especially so in Etowah, Calhoun, Hale, Walker, Madison, and Limestone counties. These principals have shown by their enthusiasm and their cooperative attitude that they are personally interested in the problem of employment the physically handicapped.

Outstanding support to the Poster Contest was given by the State Superintendent of Education, Dr. W. J. Terry, who wrote letters of encouragement to county superintendents of education and school principals.

VFW Department Commander, T. J. Mashburn, Jr., Bay Minette, Alabama, reports that contest promotion was accomplished through local Employment Offices of the Department of Industrial Relations. Representatives of these local Employment Service Offices conculted and advised VFW post commanders as to promotional procedures.

Although the results of the Poster Contest are largely intangible, it is significant that in localities where participation in the Poster Contest has been heavy, such as the industrial areas of Etowah and Calhoun Counties, the attitude of employers toward hiring the physically handicapped has changed for the better. The employer now does not automatically reject the idea of hiring a handicapped person before he has talked with him.

It is encouraging to discover that the ratio of handicapped people in industrial jobs to the number of persons available for work has increased each year for the past few years. This trend, as noted above in employer-attitudes toward the handicapped, is mainly evident in areas where publicity has been given to physically handicapped men and women.

Counsel and technical advice was given to the VFW contest hands to school principals by the Vocation Rehabilitation Service of the State Department of Education. The Vocational Rehabilitation Service is manned by experts in the field of physical rehabilitation and training of the physically handicapped. Alabama has 12 district offices of the Vocational Rehabilitation Service whose reason for being is to serve the physically handicapped.

James C. Gates, Assistant Veterans Employment Representative for Alabama, Veterans Employment Service, and Vice-Commander of the VFW, served as Chairman of the VFW Poster Contest program.

It is interesting to note that the 1953 contest winner also won the 1952 contest. For those who might suspect favoritism, it should be pointed out that this year's judges are an entirely new set from last year's. The judges are men highly skilled, professionally, in the art-illustration field.

"The first-place winner's poster, showing a person supporting the world on his shoulders, his crutches discarded, expresses the whole story behind the Rehabilitation Program," said James C. Gates, contest chairman.

The winner, Miss Augusta Cobbs from Greensboro High School, has come under the influence of an instructor, who from childhood has successfully overcome a serious physical handicap, caused by a spinal injury.

The instructor, Miss Evelyn Anderson, because of her inspiring work with Greensboro High School students, has undoubtedly had a profound influence on the quality and the quantity of posters which Greensboro High School has submitted each year.

Etowah County, in which Gadsden is located, has had considerable number of entries in the VFW Poster Contest each year. In 1951 their entries made a clean sweep of the contest, winning first, second, and third place. Not only that but they have had at least one winner each year since the inception of the contest in 1949.

The other winners were: 2nd place — Carole Olson, Gadsden High School; 3rd place — Lanis Page, Gadsden High School; 4th place — Jesse Snow, New Market High School; 5th place — Mary Hammond, Walker County High School.

Honorable Mention went to: Fay Throneberry, East Limestone High School; Minnie Rains, [illegible] School, Birmingham; Paul D [illegible], Gadsden High School; Max W[illegible] Watson, Gadsden High School; and Margaret Neal Marsh, Huntsville High School.

After each school had selected its most outstanding posters, they were bundled up and mailed to VFW Headquarters, Montgomery, Alabama. Here they were judged and put on display in the ballroom of the Thomas Jefferson Hotel, Montgomery, for three days during the annual VFW encampment June 12-14, 1953. Some 1,500 people viewed the posters.

Students are not the only ones who benefitted from the contest for the publicity created each year awakens the minds of many. With such educational forces as the VFW Poster Contest there is bound to come an ever increasing public awareness of the good in hiring the physically handicapped.

Alabama Has Suffered Many War Losses

Montgomery, Ala.—Three years of participation in the Korean War has cost Alabama nearly three thousand casulties as the third anniversary of hostilities approaches, said C. C. Horton, Director of the Alabama State Department of Veterans' Affairs, here today.

The record, taken from official casulty lists of the Department of Defense reveals a total of 481 who were killed in action or died of wounds, while another 1959 were wounded or injured. "Missing in action" or "captured" account for another 335, while other categories smaller in number provide the remainder.

An entirely erroneous impression is held by many people in respect to those listed as Missing in Action, said Horton, in the belief that such persons will be declared dead after they have been missing one year. Actually, the statement continued, the Missing Persons Law provides for a full review of the case of a person subject to the Act when the twelve month period of absence in a "Missing or Missing in Action" status is about to expire. The Act, of course, does not state what determination will be made. The law contemplates merely that a determination will be made on the basis of all available facts.

During World War II, particularly in the European and Mediterranean Theatres, the Nazis and their allies observed the terms of the Geneva Convention uite closely with respect to reporting prisoners with reasonable punctuality and accuracy. Consequently, when a man in those theatres was listed as missing in action, and when he had not been reported as a prisoner of war by the enemy the military authorities were reasonably certain that he was dead. This condition was not true in the Pacific Theatre however, nor is it true in the present Korean action. The communist forces are not complying with the terms of the Geneva Convention in reporting such prisoners. As a matter of fact, the only evidence available concerning our military personnel who are now in the hands of the Reds, aside from a few who were properly reported and a few sick and disabled who were returned for exchange, the only information obtainable is through the propaganda broadcasts of the Reds and through rare and occasional letters written by prisoners which are released by the Korean communists and sent to their families. Consequently, it is not correct to assume that after persons missing in action in Korea have continued in that status for one year that they will be automatically dead. As a matter of fact, such determinations thus far have been few.

PEACHES LEAD LIST OF 31 LOCAL CROPS

Peach production is the major perishable food crop item produced in commercial volume by Chilton's 300 enterprising farm families. Approximately thirty additional products go to Alabama and other consuming markets from the rolling sandy loam areas within the County.

Chilton County farm people are individualists by heredity and in action. The production of a wide variety of different crops allows each of the County's many small owner-operator farmers to express their skill and personality in the products offered an increasing food crop market.

Peach production, as the leading commercial food crop item, has reached an important national production level. The 1953 crop will exceed one million bushels. With favorable markets the income to Chilton's six hundred peach growing families will exceed three million dollars. Peach production is only one of the many food crops that are being produced in the County. Other food crops being produced are:

Blackberries—

Over three hundred farm families produced and marketed approximately one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds of blackberries in 1953. Blackberries from Chilton County were processed in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Illinois. Chilton's blackberry crop is over ten percent of the national pack of this food item. The crop grossed three hundred farm families over two hundred ten thousand dollars during May and June.

Watermelons—

Chilton's quality watermelons reach all major southern and midwestern consuming areas. Beginning in early June and continuing thru August, four hundred farm operators are busy harvesting and marketing melons from an annual acreage of approximately five thousand acres of melons. Over one thousand truck loads of melons reach consumers from Chilton County melon fields. The income from melons annually ranges from one-fourth to one-half million gross dollars.

Tomatoes—

In 1953 Chilton County growers have in production twelve hundred acres of Rutgers tomatoes. They cater to Alabama and nearby ripe tomato markets and operate three wholesale bulk green tomato concentration markets. The green tomatoes go to re-pack houses located throughout the southeast and midwest. Chicago, Ill.; Atlanta, Ga.; Knoxville, Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn.; Tampa, Orlando and other Florida points; and New Orleans, La.; have been major consuming areas of Chilton's tomatoes in 1953. The tomato crop produces a farmer gross income of approximately four hundred dollars par acre.

The four products — peaches, blackberries, tomatoes, and melons are spring and summer crops of major importance. Other summer and fall food crops that occupy sizeable acreages, and the efforts of an appreciable number of farmers are:

1. Squash
2. Okra
3. Pole Beans
4. Bush Beans
5. Lima Beans
6. Field Peas
7. Cantaloupes
8. Bell Peppers
9. Pimento Peppers
10. Cucumbers (for pickles)
11. Cucumbers (fresh market)
12. Field Corn (cut green)
13. Sweet Corn
14. Plums
15. Grapes
16. Apples
17. Irish Potatoes
18. Sweet Potatoes
19. Egg Plant
20. Onions

Chilton County farmers are never idle. They grow and market some products every season of the year. Food products that reach market during the winter or early in spring from Chilton County farmers include:

1. Collards
2. Turnip Salad
3. Rutabagas
4. Cabbage
6. Strawberries
7. Bunch Onions

In summarizing the specialty crop crop program in Chilton County, it can well be said that farm people with special adaptions on adapted lands are utilizing approximately twenty thousand acres for the production of over thirty different food crops. They are producing vast quantities of wholesome food to feed a sizeable portion of the nation's people. And, by so diversifying their efforts, they are supplementing their cotton, corn, livestock, poultry and forest product income by over six million dollars (6,000,000.00) annually.

Chilton's diversified agricultural program now being developed and increased is the key item to the more prosperous agriculture found in Chilton.

BANK ROBBED TWICE

Seattle, Wash.—For the second time in two weeks, an armed man entered the Lynnwood branch of the Everett First National Bank and escaped with $11,238. On May 29, the bank was robbed of $50,970. Warren D. Smith, a paroled ex-convict, was arrested the next day and confessed the robbery.

IT MERITS FARMERS' SUPPORT

Many farmers give little thought and scant support to their own farm organizations until they get into trouble. If farmers supported and built up their organizations in good times, these institutions would be stronger and better able to serve them in hard times.

Two of the great needs of most cooperatives are more capital and more patronage, more volume. From 1940 to 1953, a period of favorable farm income, farmers could have invested more capital in their cooperatives and given them larger patronage. This not only would have benefitted farmers during this period, but it would have put these organizations in stronger position to serve farmers now in their hour of need.

Fortunately, the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans and the national farm loan associations in the fifth district have grown during this period, despite the fact that these institutions did not get the patronage they deserved on the basis of their unsurpassed record of service to farmers.

Now that money is getting scarcer and interest rates are getting higher, more farmers are looking to the land bank for the long-term credit they need. The Federal Land Bank and the national farm loan associations are owned by the farmers who use them. These credit institutions stand ready to help farmers when they need help the most.

And they are serving farmers at the lowest cost. The interest rate is still only 4 per cent. The loan terms are made to fit the needs of each individual borrower and member. Afid there is that friendly, understanding, and helpful service if the member should unfortunately get into financial difficulty and have trouble meeting his payments.

The Federal Land Bank first brought low interest rates and long-term loans with easy repayments to farmers. For 36 years the bank has served farmers faithfully and efficiently. On the basis of its record and the quality of its service. The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans deserves the wholehearted, all-out support of farmers.

Farmers can help to build their credit associations and other farmer cooperatives by telling other farmers about them and enlisting their membership and support.

CAMOUFLAGED MONEY-TRUCK

Hamburg, N. J.—State's policemen, waiting patiently for an armored car to arrive and transfer deposits to the Hardyston National Bank paid no atention to a wheelbarrow being pushed across the street. They should have, though because, under the old bricks, there was $60,000 in currency, and silver, moved to its new location in the new bank building.

Veteran Total Grows Daily

Montgomery, Alabama.— Alabama's veteran population has increased by more than 58,000 since the start of the Korean hostilities, according to a statement released here today by the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs. Discharges from Korean service have averaged 1600 per month, the statement reveals, with a high for the period of 3695 released in September 1952. May, 1953, totals were 1437. It ha been estimated that probably twenty percent of those discharged immediately re-enlisted for additional military service.

American veterans who had service anywhere in the world on or after June 27, 1950 are eligible for benefits as war veterans, including compensation, pension, hospitalization and educational rights. "A surprisingly small number of Korean veterans have enrolled for educational benefits so far" commented C. C. Horton, Director of Veterans' Affairs for Alabama. "Through the month of May slightly less than 10 percent of those believed to be eligible had taken advantage of their rights with only 5295 enrolled under Public Law 550; and 120 under the vocational rehabilitation act, known as Public Law 894. However, we predict a large enrollment of Korean veterans at the institutions higher learning this fall," he concluded.

LOVINGLY YOURS, TINA

By Tony Grabo

TINA heaved a weary sigh and got up off the bed. She picked up the magic-skin doll that shed "real tears" with which she had been playing, and once again assumed the role of a nurse.

"There, there," Tina said in a consoling voice, as the "tears" began to flow when she tipped it. "Don't cry, dolly—everything will be all right."

She lay the doll on the bed and went to her small desk to write out a prescription—the usual procedure. 'Good for one ice cream' she wrote.

At eight, Tina was a lovely little girl. But now as she sat on the bed, a troubled look came into her large, dark eyes, that were set in an oval face which was surrounded by soft, brown hair.

Today was her mother's birthday, and she wanted desperately to buy her a present. But Tina didn't have any money.

Bobby, her brother, was only ten—he had bought one for the past two years, and again this year.

It was a bottle of perfume. You'd think she was careless the way he held it himself and carefully put two drops on the front of her dress. It was heavenly!

And when she was helping him wrap it, he made her promise to keep it a secret—as if she'd tell!

In just a little while, it would be time to eat supper. Bobby would come down from his room and place the neatly wrapped box near mother's plate. Then mother would come from the kitchen and make such a terrible fuss. She'd open it and be so pleased with the gift. But Tina would only sit quietly—there would be no present from her.

Of course, Tina would say "Happy birthday, Mother." And give her a big hug and a kiss. Still, it wouldn't be the same as giving her a nice present.

Suddenly, as Tina was dressing her doll in a nightgown—she had an idea!

The sound of her mother setting the table downstairs, sent her into a flurry of action. And a moment or two later when she called for Bobby and her, she was ready.

Bobby was already seated when she came into the dining room. Tina could see his mouth sag with surprise as she placed a small, bright-ribboned box on the table near his.

He was about to say something when Tina's mother came in. Somehow, as always, she knew about Bobby's present, but her eyes grew wide when she looked down and saw one from Tina, too.

Tina clutched her small hands together under the table and held her breath as she watched her mother open the bright-ribboned package first.

It seemed like a long time to Tina before her mother opened the gift. Her fingers didn't seem to be able to untie the knot and the bow she had tied, and every once in a while, she looked at Tina with a puzzled expression.

Tina's gaze was only on her mother's face.

First, there was a warm smile, and a happy look came into her eyes. It made Tina feel good.

Suddenly, the smile faded and Tina saw the tears flooding her mother's eyes as she came quickly toward her. Her lips quivered slightly as she looked at Tina—for just a second—before clasping her to her bosom.

Tina looked hard at the slips of paper that fell from her mother's hand, but couldn't see anything that should have made her cry.

'Good for one ice cream'. Nothing wrong with that. It always fixed her dolly up!

'Good for one dish washing,' said the second one. No, that couldn't be it.

She looked at the last slip of paper. 'Good for three hugs and three kisses', it read.

She began to wonder if it had been such a good idea after all. Then her mother raised her head, and Tina saw the look on her face; the radiant smile.

Yes, she thought, it was a very good idea.

Chilton County Doing It's Part To Keep Alabama's 4-H Membership Tops In Nation

The 4-H Clubs are based upon the principles set forth in the Constitution of the United States of America; as a government of the people, by the people, for the people: whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice for which patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

4-H Club leaders realize that American life is largely founded on three institutions; family, school, and church. Helping our boys and girls to grow up into fine men and women are the objectives set forth in our 4-H Club program.

Alabama still holds the edge on all other states with the largest number of 4-H Club members enrolled. Chilton County has 1,743 active members.

The 1952-53 County Council officers selected by this group are:

President, Jimmy Kincaid.

1st Vice-President, Patsy Young.

2nd Vice-President, Philip Robinson.

Secretary Treasurer, Mary Edna Griffin.

Reporter, Zed Williams.

The advisers to this group include the Extension personnel; M. R. Glasscock, County Agent; John D. Sellers, Assistant County Agent; Daniel Ray Mims, Assistant County Agent; Mary Louise Wright, Home Demonstration Agent; Johnnie P. Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, and the many teachers, parents, and local leaders throughout the County.

Project work is the foundation of any good 4-H Club program. Chilton County being a highly diversified area provides every member something of interest. Over forty-five different agricultural commodities are produced and in many instances 4-H Club members have pioneered the way for their success. The major projects participated in are: peaches, berries, dairy, beef, corn, cotton, poultry and swine.

Specialist Outlines Home Freezer Care And Economy

Auburn, Ala. — Empty space in a home freezer is costly, declares Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservationist.

"It takes just as much electricity to keep empty spaces cold as it does to preserve frozen foods," she reminds homemakers. "Beef, now so plentiful, and baked goods or cookie dough are ideal to fill freezer vacancies — and they will save cooking time later on."

The more food that goes through the freezer, the less the operating cost per pound, continues Miss Curtis. Families who arrange to live out of their freezers as much as possible and have a rapid turn-over of frozen food make the most economical use of their appliances.

In answer to the question of whether freezing foods runs up electricity bills considerably, the specialist has this to say: "Operating tests show that only 10 per cent of the required electricity is used for freezing; the other 90 per cent holds foods at zero temperatures. So it pays to freeze home-grown foods or those purchased at low cost."

She lists these additional ways to economic freezer use. Locate the appliance in a cool, dry, well-ventilated place where the motor will not run excessively and where heat from the motor can escape easily. Don't open the freezer too much—just once a day, if possible. And provide a separate electrical circuit for the freezer to avoid overloading wires, which strains and heats up the motor.

Try All These Practices Cut Costs, Raise Income

Auburn, Ala. — Dairymen can keep farm costs down and income up by following these management practices, says Pete Turnham, API Extension assistant dairyman:

1. Use proven sires and D.H.I.A. tested, high producing dams for raising herd replacements.

2. Provide enough legume-grass forage mixtures to take care of the pasture, silage, and hay needs of your herd for the whole year. Harvest silage and store it economically in a horizontal or upright silo.

3. To save time and labor, put up new buildings and equipment or remodel old ones.

Are Your Livestock Now Playing Host To Flies?

From now until cold weather livestock will be playing host to deer flies and horseflies.

A single spraying will control these pests for only three or four days, according to API Extension entomologist W. A. Ruffin. But he emphasizes that even short-time control is worth while because meat and milk losses caused by these insects cost the farmer money.

There's another very good reason for waging war on these flies, adds Ruffin. They may carry blood-borne diseases from one animal to another. And screworm flies lay eggs in bloodstains left by deer flies and horseflies.

To control these livestock pests, use emulsifiable pyrenone as directed on the container.

TRY THIS FEED

With the addition of 75 pounds of blackstrap molasses per ton, immature corn stalks cut early and made into silage make satisfactory feed for wintering dry cows and heifers.

Jones Releases Figures On Certified Seed Crops

Auburn, Ala. — Figures on spring crops approved for certified seed production this year show an increased acreage in small grains and a decrease in reseeding crimson clover and fescue.

Ralph Jones, API Extension seed specialist, reports that 29,135 acres of crimson clover, fescue, and small grains are under field approval this year as compared with 42,223 acres last year.

"Of this year's total," says Jones, "19,842 acres are in reseeding crimson clover, 4,311 in fescue, 4,830 in oats, and 147 in wheat. Last year there were 32,772 acres in crimson clover, 6,610 in fescue, 2,817 in oats, and 10 in wheat."

Varieties leading in certified crimson clover and fescue seed production explains the specialist, is credited to a build-up in supply and a break in seed prices. On the other hand, oats and wheat are becoming more popular in livestock programs all over the state, and this increased popularity has kept demand in line with supply.

CARROTS TO THE RESCUE

Cincinnati, O.—A circus train, speeding toward a mid-Western town where the circus had a scheduled performance that evening, came to a low bridge. The train came to an abrupt halt and arinmen were faced with the problem of trying to persuade its prized giraffe to withdraw its head so that the train could go under the bridge. A freight clearance expert summoned from the nearby town, solved the problem. He produced a bunch of carrots and dropped them into the giraffe's cage. The giraffe, reaching for the carrots, ducked his head and the engineer opened the throttle and sped through the bridge.

IF YOU can take care of your odds and ends neatly and efficiently, many storage problems can be solved and order restored in the home. Here are some hints which may help you:

Keep crayons and pencils in a partitioned cutlery drawer in a desk so they're easily available when the children want to draw and color.

Your coupons and premiums can be tacked to a reminder board in the kitchen so they'll be available easily when you take the list from the board and the coupons when you go to market.

For bills and receipts, tape two large envelopes on the inside of a kitchen cabinet door. Bills can go in one, receipts in another. Or, have a small household file which is sectioned for bills and receipts.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Taffy Bread Pudding
(Serves 6)

2 slightly beaten eggs
¼ cup molasses
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup soft bread cubes
1½ cups hot milk
½ cup water in cooker with rack

Combine first five ingredients. Trim crust from bread slices; cut into cubes and add to the egg mixture. Stir in hot milk. Pour mixture into 6 custard cups; cover each with aluminum foil or several layers of waxed paper, securely tied. Arrange 3 custard cups on rack in cooker, containing the ½ cup water. Cover with a second rack or flat cover on which set the remaining 3 cups. Put the cover on cooker. Allow the steam to flow through vent pipe to release all air from cooker. Place indicator weight on vent pipe. Cook 3 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool cooker at once under cold water.

BELGIAN AIR LINES TO OFFER PASSENGERS HELICOPTER SERVICE

Sabena Air Lines in Belgium has revealed plans to initiate helicopter passenger service on short flights between nearby cities in Belgium, The Netherlands, West Germany, and France. The service is expected to begin September 1st, and the helicopters will be Sikorski S-55 aircraft.

These flights are the first regular international helicopter scheduled passenger runs set up by the air line. It is interesting to note that one of the flights is a 16 mile one, from Cologne, to Bonn. The longest flight is 131 miles.

The passenger carrying helicopters will take off from the heart of the cities served and spaces of approximately 500 square yards are being prepared as landing spots in these cities.

The initiation of this service is interesting because it is an attempt by the air line to enter a passenger transportation market now served largely by railroads. In the United States, especially in the East, a helicopter passenger service is highly feasible, since helicopters would be able to land much nearer large cities than conventional passenger aircraft.

Thus the time in travelling between the airport and one's downtown destination would be greatly reduced. Such service would be welcomed by Americans in Eastern metropolitan areas and possibly in other areas as well.

Follow This Advice For Quick And Thrifty Meal

One-dish meals put leftovers to good use, according to Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist. Combine meat with vegetables, macaroni, or rice. Then add a cheese or tomato sauce or just plain cream sauce and heat in a baking dish. Chopped tomatoes, green onions or chives will give extra flavor and color.

NEW PARKING BILL OPPOSED BY ASSA

Birmingham, Ala. — The Alabama Service Station Association today went on record as opposing a general bill before the State Legislature which would allow cities to enter the parking business.

Through a unanimous vote of its board of directors, the Association adopted a resolution in which the group said it was "unalterably opposed to cities entering the parking business, and that it hereby dedicates its energeries and influence to implementing this opposition." The resolution was directed to the Mayors of Alabama.

The Association called attention to the fact that many of its 000 active members are engaged in the private parking business and expect to expand their facilities as needs arise for additional service.

In addition, the resolution expressed the opinion: "that where commercial warking for a fee is not profitable, necessary parking should be provided by those who directly benefit from the provision thereof, particularly the retail merchant, and not by public monies and credit, which, in the result, supports the profits of a few with the monies of the many."

Meanwhile, in Selma, Chapman Meadows, president of the Association, called the bill "a dangerous piece of legislation which, if passed, would destroy a tax-paying industry representing private investments of $50,000,000 in the State of Alabama.

He further stated: "I just don't believe this bill represents the thinking of the entire group of fine men heading city governments in the state."

SEWER WALK SAVES CAT

Hollywood, Cal.—Hearing a kitten crying in a storm drain, Kill Kierluf, 36, attached a 150-foot wire to himself. Neighbors held it and he went into the drain. He spotted the kitten and reached for it. It backed away. Releasing himself from the wire, Kierluf followed the kitten from manhole to manhole. Finally, the kitten gave up and Kierluf emerged through a manhole—three and a half hours later and a half mile away from where he had started. He gave the kitten to a little girl, who named him "Sue," because he came from a sewer.

How To Make Friends

KEEP A PAD NEAR

And of course, a sharp pencil. They're your working tools. Write down pertinent facts concerning your conversation. The notes will be handy for future reference.

SEES AFTER 17 YEARS

Oxford, Miss.—F. E. Pitts, a Tennessee dairy executive recently saw his wife and son for the first time in 17 years, after a delicate eye operation. He got only brief glimpses of them as doctors changed the bandages on his eyes. The last time he saw his son, he was only 7. When the bandages are finally removed, Mr. Pitts hopes his sight will be fully restored.

Leave part of the green top on a carrot, and it can be grated without injuring your fingers.

When and how salt is added is important in cooking. Put it in early to blend with soups and sauces but add it to meats just before taking them from the stove. Mix salt with the eggs in cake ingredients. Salt the water in which vegetables are cooked. Put salt in the pan before frying fish.

Nail polish may be used to paint wooden buttons for dress trimmings.

A small lump of butter or lard added to starch will keep the iron from sticking.

Here's a simple way to determine when the jelling point has been reached in cooking jelly. Put some of the jelly on a cold plate and draw a path through it with a spoon. When the path remains without running together, the jelly is made.

A square of linoleum is a handy item for a sewing room. Placed on a table it will protect the top surface when pinning and cutting material.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Editor Chilton County News:

I read your remarks about parking meters being placed at the post office by the city officials. Very good, Ben, but you did not tell, or know quite all the facts, and place the responsibility for the presence of the meters now right where it justly belongs which is on the shoulders of "Mr. Average Citizen." He had the situation fully in hand, but SELFISHNESS and DISREGARD for the RIGHTS OF OTHERS was the direct reason the post office AUTHORITIES REQUESTED the city to install the meters at this time.

Parking meters were installed in Clanton in 1949. The mayor and councilmen purposely omitted placing them at the post office due to the fact the time required to get our mail and transact business with the post office was usually only one minute or two, and we did not believe it was fair to the people to place meters there. Soon we realized some kind of time limit was necessary to keep the cars moving as they should, and we placed a sign allowing only a few minutes, but the public paid little attention to it. With cars parked on both sides of the street, I have seen the entire street closed by cars driven by people who wanted to get their mail and had no place to stop except in the street.

A merchant called me today and asked that parking meters be placed at his store, saying cars are left at this store all day, and his customers had no place to stop enough to trade with him. So, Ben, "Mr. Average Citizen" is so darn SELFISH he should be sewed up in the bag instead of being left out to hold the bag.

Yours truly,
C. FENN JONES,
Mayor City of Clanton.

HOMECOMING AT ST. PAUL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Homecoming at St. Paul Lutheran Church will be held Sunday, July 12th. The morning sermon will be by Rev. Stallworth, and the afternoon sermon by Rev. W. C. Sowells.

Come and bring a well filled basket and enjoy the day with us.

It's a long holiday week end, but it's a short way to heaven!

Chilton County has gone a full seven months without a fatal automobile accident and the county's Chief Law Enforcement Officer has issued a plea for motorists to keep up the good work and try to get through this Fourth of July week end without marring this very enviable record.

Sheriff Luther Kendrick said yesterday that he and all other law enforcement officers are doing everything possible to help keep this record clean. He also said that he appreciated very much the efforts on the part of the motoring public of Chilton County in attaining such an outstanding record.

All law enforcement officers will be out in full force throughout the county over this coming week end in an effort to see to it that motorists in the county observe Alabama's highway laws.

The Alabama Highway Patrol officers stationed in the county will also be patroling our highways in an effort to keep the speed down as well as all officers in the town and cities of the county.

It is the urgent plea that all motorists have as much fun as possible during this week end, but to take every precaution so that the non-fatality record of Chilton County will still be standing next Monday morning and that the sorrow of disaster will not be a detrement to the county's celebrating the Peach Festival next Wednesday.

REVIVAL BEGINNING AT TEMPLE CHURCH

A revival will begin Sunday night, July 5th, at the Temple Assembly of God Church. Services will be held each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. E. G. McKnight of Mobile will be the evangelist. Mrs. McKnight is president of State Women's Missionary Council.

You have a cordial invitation to attend these services. — Troy B. Helms, Pastor.

Scanning the News

BLACK headlines the past few days told this story: EAST BERLINERS REVOLT, BATTLE REDS.

And under the headlines was the story of anti-Communist revolt, how workers stormed East German Government headquarters, and how they were repelled by Russian tanks and troops who fired into the mobs. Similar anti-Communist uprisings have been reported from Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

For some time Western observers have been watching this "we want to be free" movement with mingled hope and fear. They have watched it grow with the hope that it might bring the Russians to their senses and pave the way for an honest and lasting world peace. And the Western world has feared that an uprising would lead to bloodshed, which it has, and an even greater degree of suppression by the Russians on the occupied people of Europe.

Most observers in the free world believe the revolts will be quickly and ruthlessly suppressed. The bitterness that will survive the clash, however, will linger into future years. This bitterness may well be the final factor that will mean Western victory in the ultimate battle between freedom and communism.

There are only a few alive today who still believe the final climactic struggle between communism and democracy can be avoided. Most of the world believes it is inevitable, including the Communists who preach that communism and capitalism cannot live in the same world.

It now appears that freedom has millions of friends and allies behind the iron curtain. Now is the time to cultivate this friendship, Washington observers are saying.

● Econemists and observers in the Eisenhower administration are eyeing the 8½ cents hourly pay increase by U. S. Steel and the resulting $4 a ton increase in steel prices, which came five days after the wage contract was signed, with silent, but obvious distaste.

It could send the nation's living costs spiraling. This, certainly, is not the time for another battle with inflation.

The result will be an industry-wide price boost for the many thousands of items which are made of steel. This includes farm machinery at a time when farm prices are anything but stable and the future does not hold promise of anything better.

It is unlikely that manufacturers will absorb any of this price increase and that means the consumer ultimately may have to pay more for everything from pins to refrigerators.

To keep the economy in balance on segment of industry cannot increase prices without wages in other segment being increased. If the consumer cannot buy higher priced automobiles, refrigerators, tractors and pins, then a crisis arises that can be solved only by control of wages and prices.

The American people have had enough of controls to last them until eternity. It may be up to the Eisenhower administration to come up with another solution if the trend persists. Controls are, after all, better than inflation and an ultimate collapse of the nation's economy.

In the cattle section killer calves were reported at $67.00 per head and white-faced stockers in the 850-pound class were selling at about $88.00 per head.

There will be many pictures of many of your own friends and neighbors that you won't want to miss.

So, for the above reasons we ask your indulgence with the slimness of today's issue of the News, but be sure that you get Tuesday's Souvenir Edition of the Chilton County News. During the first two days of their trip Mr. Devaughn and his passengers passed through some very hot weather, but from then on they passed through more cooler weather with the temperature reaching 74 degrees in the middle of the day.

The tourists planned to leave Sioux City last Monday morning on their return trip by way of Chicago, Indianapolis or St. Louis, Mo. They plan to be back in Clanton Sunday or Monday.

Home Demonstration Club At Mt. Pisgah

The home of Mrs. L. M. Headley in the Mt. Pisgah Community was the scene recently of the organization of a new Home Demonstration Club with 16 present for the inaugural get-together.

Year books for the Home Demonstration Club were presented each member as she entered, and were reviewed during the meeting. Miss Mary Louise Wright, County Home Demonstration Agent, gave a demonstration on "The Sleeve That Fits."

At the same meeting new officers were elected for the organization which includes Mrs. Jack Deloach, Jr., President, and Mrs Headley was chosen to act as Secretary.

Twenty-nine members will compose the club roster. They are the Mesdames L. M. Yeargan, Grover Smith, E. P. Edwards, S. P. Rolland, R. W. Duren, R. A. Devaughn, James Coggin, R. V. Yeargan, Mrs. T. E. Chadwick, Ira B. Yeargan, Odell Jones, L. M. Headley, Lloyd Foshee, Otis Jones, Jack DeLoach, Jr., Jama Jacks, Lizzie Foshee, Ida Cleckler, Dalton Cleckler, W. L. Tatum, Dalton Burkhalter, Lloyd DeLoach, R. P. Maners, C. P. Yeargen, Alton DeLoach, Lillian Jones, Stanley Davis, J. J. Headley and Odell Rhodes.

Mrs. Headley served simple refreshments and the club adjourned

Banners have been strung up through the streets, store fronts have been decorated and committee chairmen put the final touches to all arrangements for one of the biggest and best Chilton County Peach Festivals in history.

But banners and decorations is not all as enthusiasm reaches a high pitch as everyone in the county attempts to be the judge of the 22 girls who will parade before the judges Monday night in the Chilton County High School Gymnasium.

For on next Monday night the eliminations will begin to select the young lady who will reign over the Peach Festival next Wednesday, the Chilton County girl who, immediately after receiving a "load" of gifts from such organizations as Chambers of Commerce from other Alabama cities, from the Peach Festival committee, from many others as well as from the Tiffin Furniture Company, will leave for a trip to Birmingham and a flying trip to the nation's Capitol and a round of sightseeing, luncheons and presentations to high officials of our country.

Even as this story is being written, the Peach Queen chairman, Mrs. Erle Ellis, and general chairman Dick Scott are making final arrangements to present all of the contestants at the high school. A small entrance fee will be charged at the judging of the girls Monday night, which will get underway at 8 o'clock sharp.

And, as is the usual practice of the Chilton County News to carry the latest news possible, this newspaper will hold up publication of next Tuesday's edition in order that we can announce and carry a picture of the newly-elected Peach Queen for 1953.

At the same time Ben Tucker, editor of the Chilton County News, has announced that next Tuesday's newspaper will be a very special [illegible] and one that everyone throughout Chilton County and the Central Alabama area will want to get and keep. Next Tuesday's Edition will be a Souvenir Edition. Be sure that you get your copy. It will be well worth your while.

At the Clanton airport hangar Mr. Marvin Marcus and his staff are working feverishly in an effort to get the many floats in shape for the big parade that will kick-off from Thorsby next Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. The parade will then come down Highway 31 and through the streets of Clanton to the Main Corner. From here it will turn east on Second Avenue and find it's way to Clanton's City Park.

At exactly 11:15 the ceremonies at the park will get underway and all is in readiness for many exciting events from the speakers stand including the "usual and famous" crowning of the queen and king.

Following this there will be a big barbecue under the shade trees of the park and then the crowd will return to the ball park for an excellent show by the Hillbilly Band from Craig Air Force Base, Selma. This will be followed by a baseball game.

And while all this is in progress, M. R. Glasscock has announced that there will be a public sale of thousands of bushels of Chilton's best peaches for all of the out-of-town guests that will come to help Chilton County celebrate next Wednesday.

TAKE HOME PAY

Aren't our legislators allowing themseves just a little too much "take home pay?"

Last Tuesday they voted themselves and most of their legislative employes, a 12-day vacation with pay that will cost the citizens of the state "about one-hundred thousand dollars." That's too much "take home pay" for the kind of legislation we are getting in Montgomery.

Usually our legislators work two days a week and get paid for seven. Now this is pretty good pay for the amount of work they do. That is bad enough, but now they come up with this 12-day vacation with pay starting July 2nd and ending July 14th; well, that is a little too much.

Confidentially, we think that the people should speak to their representatives about it.

MAKE IT CAREFUL

Let's make it a careful Fourth of July. Go places, have fun, do things, but take care you don't get hurt or maybe killed. There are just a lot of ways to enjoy the "Glorious Fourth" and go home safe and sound.

While you're taking care of you — lend a little thought to the other fellow, too.

SIMPLIFYING VA INSURANCE

"A freshman congressman from Alabama, Rep. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., has introduced in the House a bill that has the marks of something fundamental that is too often absent in lawmaking—the use of sound and simple principles.

Armistead's proposal would provide for the automatic renewal of all term insurance by the Veteran's Administration. Under the present law veterans who have term insurance with the government may renew it every five years. Every fifth year the premium rate increases and 60 days before the expiration date, the veteran receives a VA form to apply for renewal. If this form is not returned within 30 days another notice is sent 30 days prior to expiration of the term. If the veteran wants the insurance continued, the form for renewal must be completed and premium at the new rate tendered.

The bill introduced last week provides that the veteran's insurance would be automatically renewed when the term expires and the VA would bill him at the higher rate. If the premium is not paid by the due date or within the grace period, the VA would then assume that he did not wish to continue the insurance and it would automatically lapse.

We haven't seen the entire bill, but the feature outlined here would appear practical and deserving of approval. The bill has been referred to the Committee on Veterans Affairs. It would certainly eliminate a lot of paper work by the Veterans Administration and would encourage the veteran to keep his insurance by simplifying his part in keeping it in force." — The Gadsden Times.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By— R. L. SCOTT

Several varying shades of water from stained to crystal clear can be found on the ever beautiful Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes at this time. Scattered summer showers have stained some of the tributaries but generally the lakes are clear and in great shape for all types of fishing. Huge hatches of willow flies can also be found on all lakes, but the largest hatches were found on the Coosa Lakes, where in some places, the bushes and trees were loaded for about 12 feet back on the shore. It's needless to say that Bream fishermen are having a wonderful time.

Schooling Stripes have added much to the fishing picture during the past week also. About the flats near the mouth of Sawmill Branch, Lake Lay seems to be an outstanding stripe rendezvous. Creel limits of nice sized fish are being taken daily by all comers. Casting a chugger trailed by a spoon, spinner and popping minnow has been very effective. Reese Mims, Clanton, hooked three at one time on this combination lure. It's a common occurance to catch two Stripes on a single cast. Last Wednesday a large number of boats were out on Mitchell, down about the mouth of Cargile Creek, trolling and watching for the schools to show, but the wind fouled up conditions just when action should have taken place, however, several nice catches were made.

Lake Yates—

E. C. Ballard's Store, near Tallassee, reports: Eldridge Hornsby, Tallassee, used a Lazy Ike as bait to creel a mess of Largemouth Bass. The whopper on the string weighed 6 pounds, 2 ounces.

Lake Lay—

H. C. Leigh's Fishing Camp, Wahatchee Creek, near Shelby, reports: Tom A. Hutto, 1608 North 33rd Avenue, Birmingham, and Geo. Williamson, last month's Whopper Catcher Winner, had good luck in Waxahatchee. Together, they picked up 13 Stripes averaging a pound and one half each. Tom's best was 2 pounds, 2½ ounces and George's largest catch was 2 pounds even. Mr. Leigh tells us that willow flies have been plentiful up in the Creek and that Bream and Stripe fishing is excellent.

Lake Mitchell—

O. E. Oglesby, Mims Ferry Fishing Camp, below Lay Dam reports: Barris Christ and Joe Tobia, Birmingham, strung 10 Largemouth Bass and 1 Perch from about Gandy's Island. The string was taken on a home-made lure and weighed in at 16 pounds.

Other catches reported on Mitchell were made down about the mouth of Walnut Creek. J. L. Smith, Clanton, located 8 nice Stripes on 4 casts. Marion Easterling, Clanton, took the creel limit on Stripes in the same area.

Fishing as a rule, is slow everywhere during the hot summer months, but if you should happen upon a school of Stripes on one of Central Alabama's Lakes, you'll look no farther. Yes Sir! Business picks up in a jiffy and you'll feel like time's awastin' when you have to slow down to disengage a fish from your hook. Come on out and see for yourself. By the way, be sure and enter your best catch in the contest. You may win an attractive prize.

After spending a week visiting relatives and friends in Thorsby and Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Parrish have returned to their home in Jefferson City, Tenn. Also visiting with them for a week was Mr. J. D. (Jack) Vines of Birmingham, who has now taken up his duties again with Acipco. He and Mr. Parrish (Bill) enjoyed fishing together on the Coosa River most of the week. Calvin Pate (Dock) was another fishing partner of Jack's. Their luck wasn't too good, however, for it seemed that the fish preferred staying in the river.

Mr. and Mrs. Gattis Deloach of Panama City, Fla., visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Littleton this week.

Troy Maddox Participates In Truck Drive Way

TROY MADDOX

Troy Maddox, Troy Maddox Motors, local Dodge Dealer, participated this week in one of the largest new truck driveways ever held in the South.

He was among more than 150 Dodge dealers from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Tennessee who drove new trucks home to their dealerships from Atlanta for delivery to customers.

The huge truck caravan followed the formal opening of the large new Dodge Truck Merchandising Center set up in Atlanta to assist dealers in making prompt delivery of partically any type of truck their customers may need in business, industry, farming, and other vocations.

The center will carry a continuous inventory of trucks ranging from 4,250 to 40,000 pounds gross vehicle weight capacity to augment the usual stock of Dodge trucks carried by individual dealers.

The 150 dealers were guests of Lynn P. Jones, regional manager of the Atlanta region for Dodge, at a luncheon in the Ansley Hotel prior to the driveway.

Mr. Jones explained that the exceptional agricultural, industrial and business growth in the four states in recent years, and the resultant increased demand for trucks, led to the development of the new Dodge Truck Merchandising Center. When dealers draw on the inventory of trucks to fill rush orders, the units will be replaced by trucks from the Detroit factory. Truck buyers and dealers alike will benefit from the plan, it was pointed out.

The civilian population of the United States is consuming more gasoline than at any time in its history. The automotive gasoline consumption in 1952 was more than 40 billion gallons, over 7 per cent more than in 1951.

R. C. Williams Announces New Shell Product

R. C. WILLIAMS

Gasoline with TCP (a cresyl compound), the new additive that gives cars more power and mileage, will be available in this area soon and will be available at Shell stations throughout the country before the summer travel season reaches its peak, R. C. Williams, Shell Oil Company distributor said here today.

The new product, according to Williams, gives the average car up to 15 per cent more power, more mileage and 50 to 150 per cent longer life for spark plugs. It restores old, badly-operating plugs to top performance and virtually eliminates pre-ignition, a serious type of knocking.

Originally it was believed that nation-wide distribution of TCP would not be possible until the end of August, Williams said. The company therefore introduced it late last month in 16 large cities where blending equipment was available. Demand has proved so great in these cities that nation-wide distribution schedule has been stepped up over 200% by the addition of blending equipment at more terminals and bulk plants than originally planned.

Many motorists in test cities, Williams, added, have reported noticeable improvement in the performance of their cars with the use of TCP-treated gasoline and have complained at being unable to buy it at all the company's stations when they were traveling on the road.

TCP is the first gasoline additive to deliver improved engine performance without actually changing the characteristics of the gasoline, Williams pointed out. Instead, the chemical makes it possible for the engine to use the fuel more efficiently. It does this by preventing the spark plug deposits from causing short-circuits and consequently misfiring. It also has a chemical effect on deposits in the combustion chamber that cuts down pre-ignition, one of the most serious types of knocking.

"To appreciate what this means to engine performance," Williams said, "try driving your car with one spark plug disconnected—one cylinder out of operation. The engine no longer runs smoothly, it has considerably less power, and you notice it. Actually, the same thing happens in most cars during ordinary driving, but you may not always notice it because the missing may occur intermittently and with different plugs at different times. Although an occasional misfire is not very noticeable to the driver, every time a cylinder misses, the fuel in it is wasted and some of the power you paid for when you bought the car is lost. TCP stops this loss of power and fuel by keeping all the plugs firing all the time."

Peaches Head Prosperity March

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Bon

The Mayor took us to task this week about our article on the post office parking meters. In his statement as to who was the cause of it all, we will have to agree. In fact, we agreed to that point in our original article. However, we cannot backup on our statement as to who will pay the bill. We have paid off too many parking tickets to withdraw our claim that "Mr. Average Citizen" will pay the bill. After all, we hope we are an average citizen.

Burns Bennett this week said, "Nobody cares how bad your English is, if your Scotch is good."

Drove down to Charlie Wilkins at Enterprise Community Saturday morning. The Wilkins Clan was having a family reunion at Bethsalem and being a member of the Clan by marriage we delivered our Mother-In-Law to "Cousin Charlie's" for the day's festivities. We thought everybody in Chilton County but the News Force was taking a holiday until we saw the farmers between here and Enterprise gathering tomatoes, picking peaches, and the like. Now we believe just about as many people in the county worked as took off for the holiday. You know, these beautiful peaches, tomatoes, vegetables, etc., that you see daily being trucked out of Chilton County to market didn't just happen. It took hard work and long hours and when the crop is ripe it must be harvested.

An article from the State Department of Health this week tells us about how not to catch tularemia, or rabbit fever. Bet the poor little rabbit would like to know how not to catch human fever, too. One of the "Don'ts" are: "Don't shoot a wild rabbit that appears sluggish and slow of movement." Now that's pretty good advice except all rabbits are wild when you're after them with a shotgun, and second, we never saw a wild rabbit that was "sluggish." Guess the best way to determine this is to run along side the rabbit and figure out his speed. If it's say, fifty knots you fireaway. If it's less than fifty knots, say about thirty or forty knots, hold your fire—that bunny cotton tail may have something. And we don't mean the same that Marilyn Monroe has. The article goes on to give a lot of good advice about wearing rubber gloves (you, not the rabbit), and stuff like that. You'll find it somewhere in this vast issue of the CCNews. But you take our advice. Go to your butcher and buy you a pound of white meat or hamburger to be on the safe side. It'll save you a lot of worry. And, too, just think how the little rabbit will appreciate it.

You couldn't take a fellow out of the business life of Clanton who would be more missed than will Bob Alred. His friendly nature made him popular with the young and the old, the rich and the poor alike. Bob wore no man's halter. He was independent to the nth degree. We're sorry to lose him and our deepest sympathy goes to "Miss Hattie" and his other relatives.

Judges Make Choice From Field Of 22 Lovely Girls

An enormous roar filled the gymnasium of the Chilton County High School Monday night as the announcement was made that Miss Patricia (Pat) Broadhead, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Broadhead had been selected as the 1953 Peach Queen.

All was quiet as the judges motioned the master of ceremonies to their table and handed him a folded slip of paper. The announcer opened the paper, then stepped to the door of the dressing room to motion out the winner. As she appeared at the doorway a tremendous roar went up from the crowd of several hundred who had paid their way to be on hand for the big announcement.

Pat appeared then on the stage and the announcer pronounced her the new Queen to reign over the Peach Festival Wednesday. Then the flash bulbs began to pop as Miss Barbara McGowin Reynolds, the 1949 Queen stepped upon the stage to crown the newly selected Queen. As more flash bulbs were exploded the festival general chairman, R. L. Scott appeared on the stage and handed the Queen a big spray of red roses. And from that time on the place was a bedlam, what with photographers all over striving to get their questions answered and television cameramen crowding their way through the hundreds of well-wishers. The new Queen is sponsored by Johnson's Fashion Shop.

Monday night's festivities began at the Clanton Country Club as the girls were presented to prominent guests of the festival committee and to newspaper men and

1953 Queen To Fly With Top Peaches To Nation's Capitol

(Special To The News)

Washington, D.C., July 6, 1953—After she reigns over Chilton County's annual Peach Festival Wednesday, July 8th, this year's Peach Queen will have another exciting night and day awaiting her in Washigton, D.C. Complete plans for the queen's entertainment in Washington are revealed by Representative Armistead I. Selden, Jr., who has made the arrangements in cooperation with festival chairman R. L. (Dick) Scott.

Immediately after the festival in Clanton, the queen and her chaperon will leave for Birmingham to board a Washington-bound plane. When they arrive at National Airport at 9:30 p.m., they will be met by Representative Selden and a member of his staff and taken on a brief tour around the famous Tidal Basin and Hains Point along the Potomac River.

Thursday is scheduled as an activity-packed day for the queen, according to Representative Selden. Early that morning a member of the Congressman's staff will escort the Chilton County beauty and her mother on a sightseeing trip. One of their stops will be at the White House where arrangements have been made for a special tour through the Presidential mansion.

At noon the queen will be special guest at a luncheon meeting of the Alabama Delegation in the Capitol dining room. All members of Congress from Alabama are expected to attend.

Later the peach queen and her chaperon are to visit the galleries of the House and Senate to see Congress in session. At 3:00 p.m.

Garden Spot Of The World Showing Off

Bob Alred Killed In Wreck Sunday

Chilton County's Fourth of July week end holiday was marked with tragedy early Sunday morning as one of it's best-loved citizens was struck down by a fatal automobile accident.

Robert William Alred, 42, known to his hundreds of friends as Bob Alred, was killed probably instantly early Sunday morning when the car he was driving left Highway 31 at the intersection of Highway 22, and traveled 108 feet before coming to a stop in an adjacent field.

Highway Patrolmen Stein and Webb reported that Alred was apparently thrown from his car and probably died instantly from a broken neck.

Funeral services were conducted at the First Baptist Church of Clanton at 4:30 Monday afternoon by Rev. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, pastor. Burial was at Samaria with funeral arrangements under the direction of the Martin Funeral Home. Mrs. Erle Ellis was in charge of music and the flowers were under the direction of Mrs. Jack Hayes.

Active pallbearers were: James Tiffin, Lester Jones, Dr. Joe Moore, Dewey Rockett, Milton Barth and Guy McKee.

Besides his step-mother, Mrs. Hattie Alred, Bob Alred is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Margie Henley and Mrs. Marcus Polk, both of Clanton; a brother, Leo Alred, of Miami, Fla., and two half-brothers, Guy Alred of Montgomery and Dan Alred, of Clanton.

1953 Festival Marks Year Of Progress Of Our People

Last minute preparations have been made and the 1953 Peach Festival will soon be a thing of the past as Chilton County marks off another year of endeavor and achievement.

But as this great event takes place one cannot help but reflect the happenings of the past 12 months, not only in the peach industry, but the progress that Chilton County has made, for progress it is as we look back and recall all of the accomplishments that have taken place.

Chilton County is geographically located in the heart of our great State of Alabama, one of the richest state's in the whole Southeast. And by the same token Chilton County can be counted as one of the soundest and one with some of the best opportunities of any county in that rich state.

During these past 12 months, Chilton County went through one of the most hotly contested political campaigns of it's history, but after the smoke had blown away it emerged better off than ever.

During the past 12 months also we have seen more roads cared for, the county has had good prosperity during these months, farms have become much more diversified, which has resulted in more income for more farmers of the county.

Religiously speaking our churches have progressed immensely what with thousands upon thousands of dollar being spent for the remodling, additions and new houses of worship.

In our life of education some of the most modern school buildings are being used and maintained by the Chilton County Department of Education so that our children will be among the best housed anywhere. Our school bus system is something that could be the envy of most anyone as they plow through thousands of miles each year rain or shine.

Advantages? Yes, by the hundreds Chilton County abounds in advantages for everyone from every walk of life. In the form of public information our county boasts two good newspapers and in the form of communication it can tell the world that it has full-time radio service. It also has one of the most progressive Chambers of Commerce, whose officers have worked many a long hour on many projects.

Chilton County's building program has progressed enormously during the past 12 months and new houses are springing up like mushrooms on many a street and county road.

The county's payrolls are good and destined to grow just as is the whole area. In Maplesville alone several thousands of dollars are paid to workers each and every month of the year. The huge sprawling Stremming Veneer Company, whose products are shipped throughout the world, employs several hundreds of people. It's President and General Manager, Raymond Stremming is always ready whenever called upon for any civic enterprise.

The Graham Lumber Company is one of the largest of it's kind in the area and it's products are distributed far and wide under the guidance of father and son. The Graham Lumber Company employs the latest and best of equipent and it's payroll can be counted upon to be

CONSTRUCTION MAY START ON NEW COURTHOUSE SOON

Above is the architect's drawing of the proposed new Chilton County Courthouse that will be located on the property now partially occupied by the county jail. Probate Judge Dave Tingle has announced that construction of the new courthouse will probably get underway some time later this summer. No definite date has been set as yet for it's completion.

This is the season for beauty contests, and beauty contest judges and Chilton County is having her quota this week.

Farming is the basis of most of the nation's wealth; therefore everyone should be interested in agricultural prosperity.

We wish that Public Relation Departments of our public institutions sent out material that could be used.

INFORMATIVE BOOKLET

A booklet titled "Look At Our Colleges," and presented by the State supported colleges of Alabama reached our desk this week. It was designed by Education Interpretation Service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn.

The booklet is all that the title emplies and should be a must for every man and woman in our state who is a friend of education.

True it is a book of statistics but statistics that we should know and to which we should give our sincere attention.

Where you could get a copy of this most complete little book it does not state but it would be well worth your time if you would write your State Department of Education and secure a copy if possible.

ATOMIC POWER FOR INDUSTRY

Retiring Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission Gordon Dean recently told a Congressional committee that U. S. industry would probably be using atomic power in less than ten years. Dean gave that estimate when pressed on the question by Representative Melvin Price, Illinois Democrat.

The retiring Chairman believes atomic power might be utilized for U. S. industry in less than ten years and noted that each member of the commission had his own opinion on this score. The new chairman, Lewis Strauss, has also told a House committee that he hopes his chairmanship will coincide with an era of advancement in the use of atomic power for industrial purposes.

It is obvious that if atomic power is to be used to increase the standard of living and bring the blessings of cheap power to millions, civilian industry must be allowed to participate in its development. Judging from the statements of experts, who testified before the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, it appears that atomic research has reached the stage where it can be shared between civilian and military fields for the common benefit of all. This prospect is a bright one for the U. S. citizen, who might well see the inauguration of atomic powered ships and other atomic innovations within the next ten years.

Senator Hill Praises Fidelity Of TVA To Congressional Will

Speaking before the Senate Appropriations Sub-Committee recently, Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama lauded the management of TVA and said that this organization has for the past 20 years carried out the will of Congress with scrupulous fidelity.

Senator Hill said: "it is difficult for me, Mr. Chairman, to avoid a touch of personal reminiscence when matters relating to TVA are before us for consideration. I introduced in the House the bill H.R. 5081 to create the TVA, was a member of the House Committee which considered the original TVA Act, and I was appointed to the conference committee which adjusted the differences between the two Houses. I was present twenty years ago on May 18 when the President signed the legislation, and TVA began.

"We put our faith and our hope on record in the TVA Act. Men needed faith and hope in May of 1933, just as we do today. As the only member of the Conference Committee still a Member of the Congress, I want to say that the faith we knew then, and the hopes we shared then, the aspirations we tried to put in legislative language have been realized abundantly in the record of TVA. I am as proud of my part in the creation of TVA as I am of any other single accomplishment in my thirty years in Congress. I want my associates on this Committee to know that. I want the people of my State to know that, and I want the Board and staff of TVA to know it.

"TVA was an experiment. It established a new type of agency to carry out certain federal functions. We sought, in the original Act, to give one agency responsibility for federal leadership in the development of all the resources of one river valley, to locate its management in the region, close to the problem and out of Washington; to make it responsible directly to the President and to the Congress. Those were new ways to approach the age-old task of trying to develop wisely and fully the resources of nature for the well being of man.

"We tried, in creating a government corporation, to free TVA, insofar as a public agency can be freed, from red tape, from the ailments of bureaucracy. We tried to couple authority with responsibility so that we could hold the Board accountable for results. We tried to eliminate the chance for buck-passing, for the alibis which prevent the fixing of responsibility and frustrate accomplishment in the traditional fragmentation of federal programs. We set out specific goals for TVA to accomplish, but we left to management determination of the way to do it. We authorized and we encouraged cooperation with local governments and private groups in the Act, but we did not try to make a blueprint of procedure. It might be said that we tried to create a climate in which efficiency would be encouraged and good management promoted. Now all who have followed the record of TVA for twenty years can judge the job we did in 1933. Some have borne witness today.

"For my part, I should like to say that the accomplishments of TVA have exceeded our expectation. Floods have been controlled. Private investment is protected and the people are safe. The river has been made navigable and commerce between regions moves on this modern water highway. The largest power system in the United States has been developed. The people are using the power in their homes, on their farms and in their private enterprises as we hoped. And the nation's security has been fortified by power use for defense in ways we never dreamed. The soil of the Valley is more fertile, its forests bore productive, all its basic resources are utilized more wisely because of TVA. The region is more productive, the nation is stronger, the free world is more secure because of TVA.

"I do not now intend to discuss the details of the bill pending before us. I shall have my opportunity to do that in Committee sessions. I should like to make one point only; and that is this. The record of TVA for twenty years gives me faith in its recommendations for fiscal 1954. I know no better way to judge a man, an agency, or a nation than by their fruits. In twenty years we have seen giant dams constructed by this agency with final costs close to estimates even in the face of rising price levels. We have seen great projects come in on schedule and perform as promised under the most difficult circumstances. These are tests of efficiency, of competence and integrity in any enterprise, public or private. We have seen the management of TVA conduct a heavy construction program and run a chemical plant with one of the best safety records in the nation. In troubled times we have seen the development of a pattern of sound relations between management and labor which is a model for the future. In TVA, we have seen a high standard of technical competence and managerial efficiency combined with absolute integrity through the years.

The other morning while I was shelling peas in the kitchen, I heard the four-year-old and the six-year-old talking outside the window.

"If that old sky wasn't in the way," complained the four-year-old, "I could see far, far away. I could even see down to the coast! I'm going to get me a big old ax and chop down that old sky so I can see as far as I want to see!"

"That would be real silly," said the six-year-old, being practical. "What would you do with it when you chopped it down? There isn't a garbage can in this whole town big enough to hold it."

Thus was the sky saved from a terrible chopping.

We have been beset recently with invasions of ants. Before the baby started crawling, we could keep the visitations of the pests under control by putting out poison, but poisoning is too dangerous now—our small "building inspector" carefully samples the taste of everything she finds on the floor.

It was, of course, the netx door neighbor who told us exactly what to do.

"Put cucumber peelings around where you see ants," she said, "and the ants will soon disappear."

The place looks a bit strange with cucumber peelings scattered all round, but we haven't been bothered by ants since we tried the experiment. And the baby doesn't like the peelings any more than the ants do!

Speaking of poison, our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, says that back in the days when all bottles had corks in them, she used to stick pins through the corks of bottles containing poison to keep members of the family from mistakenly using the wrong medicine.

Now that most liquids are placed in screw top bottles, she ties a tiny warning bell around the neck of the bottle or pastes a strip of sandpaper on it. To be doubly sure that no mistakes will be made, she keeps poison substances in a locked cabinet.

Moaned the six-year-old, "I'd like to lose some pounds, but food is so delucious!"

On the subject of weight losing, our neighbor around the corner says she finally put a stop to the nightly raiding of the refrigerator by chubby members of her family by putting the bathroom scales right by the refrigerator door!

Congealed salads taste wonderful these hot days, and a favorite around our house is this one made with tuna fish:

Soften 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water and then dissolve in 3-4 cup hot water. Chill until it begins to set. In top of double boiler combine 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 2 beaten egg yolks, 2 tablespoons margarine, 3-4 cup milk and ½ cup vinegar and cook until thick and smooth. When cool, add 1 can flaked tuna and 1 cup chopped celery. Fold into gelatin mixture and pour into well-oiled quart mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on garden lettuce and garnish with lemon slices.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

A STROKE

"Stroke" is a term commonly applied to a condition within the skull, often resulting in paralysis or unconsciousness or both. The true term is apoplexy or cerebral vascular accident and refers to the sudden rupture of a blood vessel, causing a cerebral hemorrhage, or the development of a clot in a blood vessel, which is a cerebral thrombosis.

Basically, the most common underlying cause is arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries within the skull. A type of fat is formed in the wall of the blood vessel which causes a narrowing and weakening of the wall. If the narrowing is too marked, then blood flow is slowed down, resulting in inadequate nourishment to the brain. Then again the blood supply might be completely cut off by the formation of a clot or thrombus inside the vessel.

The victim of a stroke usually has symptoms of an impending attack. There may be a "pins-and-needles" sensation in an arm and a leg on the same side, which quickly goes away, or there may be a sudden or gradual weakness of an extremity, which is short in duration. There may also be some thickness of the tongue and difficulty in pronouncing words for a few minutes or hours.

On the other hand when a cerebral thrombosis is responsible for the stroke, the same symptoms may be present, but differs in that the patient takes a longer time to recover. If a hemorrhage develops, however, a severe headache is a common characteristic, which is the only symptomatic warning. If the hemorrhage is within the brain itself and is extensive, the patient may never awaken. If the damage is not too severe, the patient may awaken hours or days later to find himself unable to move certain muscles, or, in some cases, to speak. He may have various other disabilities depending on the particular area of the brain involved. If the affected blood vessel is on the surface, then the bleeding may be only into the space around the brain; and there may be no obvious difficulty with the nervous system other than a headache, a stiff neck and fever.

Strokes occur most often in persons beyond the age of fifty although they can also occur in a younger age group. That is why it is sometimes difficult, in young adults particularly, to decide whether there has been a hemorrhage around the brain or whether there is a sudden infection of the nervous system, such as meningitis or poliomyelitis.

Five years ago last March The Central Alabama Gas Company was a struggling Clanton business enterprise located on Highway 31 just South of Clanton when it was taken over by L. E. Foshee and two others.

Today the history of the Central Alabama Gas Company reads like an Horatio Algier story because the youngster has grown to manhood and is now rated as one of the largest between Mobile and Birmingham, Ala.

When Foshee first became manager of the Central Alabama Gas Company the organization sported about 400 gas customers, two full-time employees and a couple of trucks. Upon taking over the organization Foshee organized a complete new set-up and in the latter part of 1948 the Central Alabama Gas Company was moved from South Clanton to space now occupied by the J. C. Page Insurance Company on Sixth Street. That same year, too a brand new bulk plant with a storage capacity of 54,000 gallons was established in Lomax with complete pumping and unloading facilities. In 1951 the Central Alabama Gas Company added more equipment to their big bulk plant. This time it was a complete bottle filling plant and route service for bottled gas was begun.

1950 also saw the beginning of other members of the Foshee family entering the concern. First is was John Morgan Foshee and then it was another son, Harold L. Foshee, in 1951.

Today the Central Alabama Gas Company lists Mr. L. E. Foshee as its President, John Morgan as its Sec.-Treas., and Harold L. as Vice-President. And today too the local gas company boasts 2 tank trucks, one bottle delivery truck and two pick-up trucks for service to its customers.

To better facilitate the handling of it's product to its customer, the Central Alabama Gas Company has only recently installed two-way radio service between all its rolling units and the downtown office, which is now located next to the Page Insurance Company on sixth street. Their present location is said to be one of the largest exclusive L. P. Gas show rooms in the southeast.

And on display in that showroom are such products as Delta Mix-O-Gas systems, Coleman Heating Products, Dearborn Gas Heaters, Thermolaire Gas heaters, Caloric ranges, Maytag ranges, washers and freezers; Perma Glass hot water heaters, Servel Ice Makers, Refrigerators and Frigidaire Air Conditioners.

Luther Foshee, as he is known by his many friends, is a modest man and knows that he would have been unable to accomplish all he has in such a short time without the help of others. He says that without the fine help of his personnel and the general public that have believed in him and the Central Alabama Gas Company, not only in Chilton County but in five other surrounding counties that they now serve, he would have never been able to do what he has done in these past five short years. To all who have helped make the Central Alabama Gas Company what it is today, Mr. Foshee says, "Thanks a million."

Alabama 4-H boys and girls led the nation in completed club projects last year. Almost 108,000 members finished work in at least one farm or home project.

In Appreciation

"I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank all those who have worked so diligently in making this great day the wonderful success that it is. Without the help of all the committee chairmen and their helpers, the members of the press and radio, the members of the Chambers of Commerce of other cities in Alabama, and the hundreds of others who have so graciously helped, this 1953 Chilton County Peach Festival could never have been a reality. My heart-felt thanks go out to each and every one of you fine people." — RICHARD L. (Dick) SCOTT, Gen. Chairman.

THORSBY BANKER

J. ARCHIE OGBURN

A great believer in the development of Chilton County's Agricultural resources, J. Archie Ogburn, Cashier and a member of the Board of Directors of the Bank of Thorsby, has often been referred to as the "Grandaddy" of the Chilton County Peach Festival.

And Archie Ogburn was instrumental in the origination of the Peach Festival back in 1947, which was the first year this great event was held with the Thorsby banker as it's general chairman.

Born in Coosa County, Archie was raised on a farm five miles south of Goodwater, Ala. He received his higher education in Alexander City and went to Birmingham in 1926 to become employed by the First National Bank in that great southern metropolis.

He served in this capacity for 16½ years before moving to Chilton County and Thorsby.

For several years Archie has been active and instrumental in many civic enterprises in Chilton County. His main interest, however, has been that of farming and the progress of Chilton's great farming industry. From time to time he has held many positions in many of the farm organizations, such as the Chilton County Farm Bureau, and is given credit for the organizing and promotion of the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association, a farm cooperative that has grown until today it boasts of over $200,000 gross receipts in the sale of the farm products of Chilton County farmers.

Archie Ogburn is also a member of the Alabama Bankers Association, and at one time was chairman of the Chilton County Democratic Committee. He is a member of the Thorsby Baptist Church, a member of the Thorsby-Jemison Lions Club and a member of the Thorsby Masonic Lodge.

the best possible each and every month.

Turning now to other sections of the county we look next to the Northern end where is located the progressive little town of Jemison. The Cobb Brothers Basket works is growing just as the county grows and supplies many a packing shed, distributor and farmer all over Alabama. And during the past year Jemison residents have seen a brand new building and supply business open up on Highway 31 as you leave town headed north for the next stop of Thorsby.

As you pass into Thorsby you go by the big Howard Nursery and then approach the huge Higgins Lumber Mill operation. Immediately adjacent there is the Snug Harbor Concrete Products Company and then on into the main business section of Thorsby.

Only just recently Thorsby can boast of one of the most modern up-to-date super grocery stores in Central Alabama, which is owned and operated by Thorsby's Mayor. Thorsby is the place where the Peach Festival idea was conceived back in 1947.

Known for it's greatness in friendliness, Thorsby boasts also of it's own bank, a large modern drug store and an ever expanding tractor dealership.

Nestled in tall trees just to the side of the main street is the celebrated Thorsby Institute, a school that has had over 45 years of experience in the education field, as a high school.

Not too many years ago the Chilton County Fruit & Truck Growers Association was organized, a farmer cooperative that has run itself up until now it does over $200,000 a year in the wholesaling of Chilton County's farm products.

From Thorsby on north on High-31 there are many roads that lead off to what is fast becoming Alabama's foremost vacationland, the Coosa River. In the past 12 months hundreds of new summer homes and cottages have been built by people from all over Alabama. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent by summer vacationers in building and developing summer homes.

Many of these homes and fishing camps are built on Lay Lake and Lake Mitchell, while many others are on the shores of the many creeks that flow into the main Coosa River. At both lakes the Alabama Power Company has huge power generating dams that produce power for this whole section.

Fishing is the main sport on the lakes and river. Fishermen from all over come to try their luck and many have gone away feeling that their time was well spent in their favorite sport. Next comes boating and of course swimming is another favorite sport of the inhabitants of the Coosa River.

Coming back to Highway 31 the next place you enter is that of the County Seat, Clanton, a place that is growing by leaps and bounds. Clanton's home building progress just during the past 12 months is something that some would call mighty rapid for a city of comparison. In the West End of Clanton especially many new houses have been built and nearly all of them are occupied. At the present time there are many in the process of being finished.

Clanton boasts three of the most modern and complete tourists motels that would be found anywhere and all three do a thriving business all year around. Clanton also has two hotels that are the best between Birmingham and Montgomery, one being the Exchange Hotel and the other the Willingham Hotel.

Clanton is also fully equipped with many dry goods stores, several exclusive women's apparel shops and four drug stores. There are also many modern grocery stores, garages and automobile dealers for every popular make car.

Industrially speaking Clanton has a big furniture factory that has a substantial payroll and a big chair factory that employees from 60 to 70 persons the year around. There are many smaller manufacturing businesses that go to swell the payrolls each and every month of the year.

But, there is another big industry the all of Chilton County is justly proud. And that is the big Alabama Mills, one of several textile units with it's headuarters in Birmingham. Alabama Mills is vitally interested in our county and so is the county in Alabama Mills welfare.

On the agricultural side one will find a big peach packing shed on the side of the L. & N. Railroad and several cotton gins that run to full capacity each season. You will also find one of the most modern fertilizer plants there is in the state. Clanton also has it's own airport and it's own city park where hundreds of children go to play each year and where the Boy Scouts also have their own building. And Clanton has it's share of good eating places where thousands of tourists have stopped each year.

Yes, Chilton County is blessed with many hundreds of advantages that her people are justly proud of and cherish well. We could go on and on and write many pages about all of these and many more. We could go on and tell about the miles of beautiful drives through the well-kept roads of the county, of the thousands of tilled fields that produce so much income for our county, of the many scenic drives through the woods towards the Coosa River and of the hundreds of other reasons why people come to live in Chilton County and never even think of leaving again. Yes, Chilton's people are proud of what they have in this county, and they are thankful for it too.

Alabama Highlights

The Tennessee Valley embraces all of Alabama which is drained by the Tennessee River and its tributaries. It covers an area of about 40,000 square miles and comprises eight of the northern counties of the State. These eight counties form an area which was formerly known as the Cereal Belt because its soil is well adapted to the growth of cereal crops.

The Coosa Valley lies between the Talladega Mountains on the east and Lookout Mountain and the Coosa coal fields on the west. It takes its name from the river which drains it and flows through the entire length. The Coosa Valley region is the most varied portion of Alabama in its physical features.

H-W Chair Company Personnel Grows From 18 To 70

About two years ago four men got together, and pooled an enormous amount of energy and some money and started making chairs with a total personnel of 18 people.

Today, that same organization is still intact, employing about 70 people, contemplating building more additional buildings for further expansion, ships it's products in 14 of the 48 states of the United States, has 42 trucks operating throughout the country besides five big vehicles used in the transfer of it's products.

If you haven't already guessed what this story is about it is the story of the H-W Chair Company and it's four originators, Troy Maddox, W. N. Rainey, H. H. Wyatt and J. J. Brock. Mr. Brock is probably the general manager of the organization, but the others are active in one way or another in the business.

The H-W Chair factory is located on a plot of ground that covers approximately four acres and is located just adjacent to the city limits of Clanton, just off the Selma Highway leading out of Clanton.

In an interview with a Chilton County News reporter Mr. Brock said that the payroll of the H-W Chair Factory runs in the neighborhood of $2,000 per week and that every available piece of material that is purchased by the company is bought exclusively within the State of Alabama and as much as possible is purchased in Chilton County and Clanton. Mr. Brock also stated that he wanted to take this opportunity to thank the people of Clantin and Chilton County for their fine cooperation in helping to make the growth of the H-W Chair Factory what it has been in the past two years. Mr. Brock said he also wanted to thank the officials of the City of Clanton for making possible a proposed water supply that the city has said they will furnish. Mr. Brock said that this water supply will make it possible for the company to go ahead with their proposed expansion in the near future, therefore employing more help and increasing their payroll to some extent.

American manufacturers increased their output of goods last year by 3 per cent, as compared with 1952.

women. After a buffet supper the Peach Queen contestants were then taken to the high school where they were given last minute instructions before the start of the big night's program that was to end with the selection of some lucky Chilton County girl.

At the judges table sat two women and a man in whose hands was the selection of the 1953 Peach Queen. They were C. C. (Jack) Owen, of Montgomery; Mrs. Fred Brandt, also of Montgomery; and Mrs. R. L. Stapleton, of Birmingham.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the announcer opened the ceremonies with the introduction of the Peach Festival General Chairman, who in turn introduced the judges to the big audience. And then the first girl appeared on the stage with all the 22 contestants appearing one at a time dressed in play shorts and shirts. Then they were brought back a second time and this time dressed in their street clothes. This was followed by a third appearance of the girls still one at a time, but dressed in their evening dresses.

Between the appearances the crowd was introduced to other officials and past queens Mrs. Reynolds and Mary Frances Collins, the 1950 winner. The audience was also entertained by songs presented by Miss Pat Huddleston, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gloria Narramore, of Tuscaloosa, both music students at the University of Alabama.

At the request of the judges, the girls were again brought back to the stage still dressed in their evening clothes, but this time in groups of five and six before they were able to make their decisions. And then activity began to take place in the front of the room as the announcer picked up their decision and stepped to the dressing room door and then up went the roar.

After the excitement of the selection died away somewhat the Queen was asked who she would like to have as her King. She selected Wallace Neeley of Clanton to reign with her over the festival.

At the conclusion of Monday night's festivities Mrs. Erle Ellis, Peach Queen Committee chairman, announced that the Queen's mother would accompany her on her trip to Washington where she will present the prize basket of peaches to Sherman Adams, assistant to the President of the United States.

a peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

THE handicap under which he labors almost kept Johnnie Ray from singing at the London Palladium when the local musicians' union denied permission for Sammy Fede, Ray's American drummer, to go on with him . . . Partly deaf, Ray depends on Fede's practiced beat to give him the tempo . . . After talk of closing the show—and even of closing the theater—Ray went on with an English drummer behind him and with Fede sitting beside him, disguised as a member of the orchestra . . . Fede whispered instructions on changing tempo into the singer's ear.

Wally (Mr. Peepers) Cox, the night club comic with the daylight touch, made his debut on wax for RCA Victor recently with successful results . . . Cox, who is to the half-hour TV show what Chaplin was to one-reel comedies, has cut a monolog called "What a Crazy Guy" with the standard ballad, "There Is a Tavern in the Town," on the flip side . . . Hope RCA has this talented comedian on a long-term contract and that goes for the NBC network also.

IDOL CHATTER

COLUMBIA: Sweet and appealing LuAnn Simms of the Arthur Godfrey radio and TV shows, does a fine job with "Hand-Me-Down Heart," a custom-made tune for the gal . . . Flip side has "I Wouldn't Want It Any Other Way" . . . Here is one of the most underrated vocalists in the business . . . The same goes for Columbia's Champ Butler who goes on making good records but seems to be unrecognized by disc fans because he's never had one really big smash . . . But he will . . . His latest is "Take These Chains from My Heart" and he does his usual good job on it . . . Reverse has that beautiful new ballad, "I'm Walking Behind You."

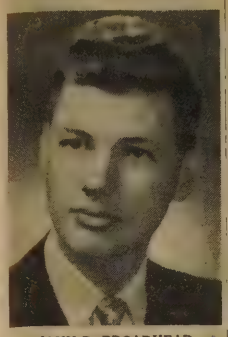
RECEIVES COMMISSION



JOHN D. BROADHEAD

John Durwood Broadhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Broadhead, has just received a commission in Artillery as Second Lieutenant in the Army of the United States.

Upon graduation at the University of Alabama this summer he will report to Fort Jackson, S. C., for active duty.

Join Guard Now!

When you join the National Guard you promise to protect your country's security.

And speaking of security the National Guard also agrees, when you join up, to protect your security.

The National Guard has a retirement plan that will stack up against most any other plan, but according to the Guard, it doesn't cost a penny. Every drill period, every 15-day training camp session, a guardsman accumulates valuable points. Every month that he piles up these credits they are worth a sizeable amount of money in his own name. Then at the time of retirement this money will be paid back monthly for the rest of the soldier's life.

And here's the way the National Guard explains their plan. If a veteran with five years active service in any of the Armed Forces joins the Guard, puts in 25 years service in the latter organization, and retires as a Master Sergeant, he will from the time he is 60 years of age, receive $75 per month for the rest of his life. Or, if the Guardsman has the rating of Chief Warrant Officer he will draw up to $120 or more per month retirement pay.

COUNTY AGENT

M. R. Glasscock

M. R. Glasscock, Chilton County's Farm Agent, has been a leader and is due much of the credit for the highly prosperous and diversified farming industry in the county.

"Red" Glasscock, as everyone in every walk of Chilton's life knows him, is mostly responsible for many of the farm projects that have taken place in the farming industry in the past several years.

It was through Red's efforts and those of his staff that the county is now rated one of the top in this section in the production of Grade "B" milk. It is also his sparking the interests of several of our farmers in the chicken business that has in the past several months made Chilton County's chicken and egg production almost "boom." At the same time he has had much to do with the growing cattle industry, hogs, berries and other crops.

Glasscock is also due much credit for his work in putting over all six of our Peach Festivals. He has worked many hours with farmers, committee members and marketing representatives and in this capacity has done much in helping to produce and market our peaches.

At the same time Glasscock has also lent his time and ability to many other projects in the county. He has worked with many civic organizations in helping to make the County Fair bigger and better each year. He was instrumental in organizing the Agricultural Council that comprises a member of each agricultural agency.

In 1948, the County Agent was General Chairman of the Peach Festival and has served on the General Committee ever since.

SUCCESSFUL OWNER

One of the most successful retail businesses in Chilton County is operated by a man that is known far and wide for his fairness in all of his business dealings and he has a reputation for being a hustler from the time he entered school.

Herman A. LeCroy, a native of Chilton County was educated in Chilton County Schools before attending Jacksonville State Teachers College. During the time he was attending school Herman is known to have started on his business career and was employed in many things in an effort to help the family load.

Following his school career Herman was employed as a school teacher, he worked at the powder plant at Childersburg and was employed by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company before opening his present location, the Clanton Home & Auto Supply Company, the Clanton, Firestone outlet.

If ever a man was well schooled in the whys and wherefores of tires it is Herman LeCroy. Herman knows what goes into every one of the tires that Firestone makes and as a result the Clanton Home & Auto Supply Store has probably sold as many tires as any other local outlet.

Herman A. Lecroy

Herman LeCroy is a great believer in Chilton County and one of it's greatest boosters. He is a member of the Chilton Chamber of Commerce and when called upon by it's leaders he is ready and willing to do more than his part in any civic enterprise. Herman is also a member of the Clanton Lions Club and the First Baptist Church here in Clanton. He is married and he and Mrs. LeCroy have one child.

ADOPTED SON

There are many self-made men in the world and one of them is right here in our midst in the person of Sam Beard, owner-operator of the Radio and TV Service Company, located in the Tiffin Furniture Store.

Sam Beard is a native of Birmingham and received his early education in the Birmingham schools. He also has seen service in the United States Navy as an Electronics Technician First Class during World War II.

In 1936 Sam started teaching himself the fundamentals of radio while he was still in school. During his spare time he was constantly "tinkering" with all kinds of radio gear.

After his release from the service Sam went to work for the E. E. Forbes Piano Company in Birmingham as head of their radio department and everything he knows about radio has been self-taught except for a short period of time when he ttended a television school at the Emerson Radio Company.

About three years ago Sam Beard moved to Clanton and opened his own radio and television retail and repair shop. He has been in this operation the full time he has been in Clanton except for a short time when he was employed by the Tiffin Furniture Company.

Sam is married and is the father of two children and maintains his home on the Poplar Springs Road.

RETURNS

DURWOOD MINOR

Chilton County can be justly proud of Durwood Minor, a native of Chilton County, who left this area for almost two years only to return to become General Manager of one of the most successful retail outlets in Clanton.

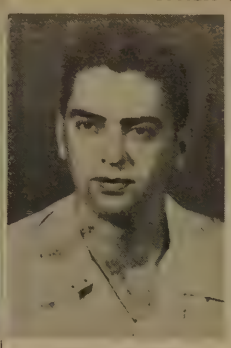
Durwood Minor joined the Goodyear Company in April, 1951, and worked in the local Goodyear Service Store for about four months before being transferred to the Goodyear Service Store in Selma to take a position as budget manager.

After having served in this position for only a year, Durwood was again shifted, this time to the Birmingham Goodyear office where he was promoted to the position of District Budget Supervisor for an area that included all of Southern Alabama and Northwest Florida.

Minor served in this capacity for the short time of nine months, when again Goodyear offered him another promotion, this time to return to his native Chilton County to become general manager of the Clanton Goodyear Service Store, a position he now holds. During his time as budget supervisor his duties were to increase the budget business of all Goodyear dealers in his territory as well as the company-owned stores. He now operates a store that has a total of eight employees and conducts a yearly business that runs into the thousands of dollars.

Durwood Minor is married to the former Miss Elizabeth Easterling and they have one son. They reside in their own home on Glendale Drive.

SUCCESS ATTAINED



JAMES A. DANIELS

WERNESS E. EDWARDS

Without knowing hardly anything about the furniture business, who made it or where it comes from, two Chilton County businessmen, one an insurance agent and the other a banker bought out the Chilton Home Furnishings furniture store here in Clanton.

But this month, after a very successful two years of operation, these two men are celebrating their second anniversary as owner-operators of this fine furniture establishment.

Two years ago, on July 16, 1951, James A. Daniels, better known as "Buck" Daniels to his hundreds of friends and neighbors, left the First National Bank of Clanton, where he had been employed for many years, to enter the retail furniture business. And he took with him his long-time friend, Werness E. Edwards, more commonly known as "Eddie" Edwards, and the two of them took over the management of Chilton Home Furnishings. And as Buck has put it from time to time "we had a pretty rough time of it."

Today as Eddie and Buck look back and think of all they have gone through these past two years they can draw a big sigh of relief and say to themselves "it was well worth it."

For on this second anniversary Buck Daniels and Eddie Edwards operate one of the most successful retail furniture businesses in the Central Alabama area.

At the present time the Chilton Home Furnishings store employs five full-time people on their staff and operate one good-sized truck. And in their big display room their teature such things as the famous Crosley Shelvadore refrigerators and most any size Crosley Home Freezers.

The Chilton Home Furnishings also deals in the best made and nationally famous furniture, plus a complete line of home furnishings.

In making his announcement about the celebration of their second anniversary, Buck Daniels was very emphatic in placing the blame for their success. Buck says it is entirely the fault of all his many friends throughout the Central Alabama area. He and Eddie are very appreciative of the fine support and they both take this opportunity to sincerely thank everyone who has helped to make their endeavor the success that it is today.

Buck Daniels is a native of Chilton County and received his education here. He is married and the father of two children. Eddie Edwards is also a native of Chilton County and has lived here most of his life-time. He received his early education both in Chilton County and in Anniston, Ala. He, like Buck, is a married man and the father of two children.

PROMINENT BANKER

OTTO JONES

Physical aspects change, people come and go, improvements match the times, but integrity goes on forever at the First National Bank of Clanton, a financial institution that has grown step by step to keep pace with the growth of Chilton County.

C. Otto Jones, it's president, has been associated with the First National Bank for over 20 years. He is one of Clanton's city fathers, having served as a councilman for over 10 years. He is also treasurer of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, a position he has held for over a year. Otto, as he is widely known throughout Central Alabama by hundreds of close friends, is vitally interested in the civic and economic growth of Chilton County. He is a man that is always ready to lend a helping hand to any project that is good for the growth and prosperity of the area.

"When we look over the agricultural resources of Chilton County we can all congratulate ourselves in living in such a wonderful area where nature does tremendous things for the farmer and the producer. Industry is moving South more and more every year. We have good schools, churches, and a fine spirit is reflected by those who live here.

"For the investor, the manufacturer, who wants to move his operations South, Chilton County would be a paradise. There is plenty of power, water, a good supply of labor and a wonderful climate. It is an ideal spot for any kind of commercial operation."

Mr. Jones is married and resides on the Selma Road here in Clanton. He is a member of the Shriners and the First Methodist Church of Clanton. For relaxation he can be found many times horseback riding either on his farm or on the edge of town.

Engagement Announced

MARGARET JO WILLIAMSON

Mrs. Robert Winfred Williamson announces the engagement of her daughter, Margaret Jo, to Donald E. Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Watson. The wedding will be an event of late summer.

YOUR home freezer will do all manner of jobs for you, if you'll let it! Try some of these hints to get more out of your freezer:

Opened packages of appetizer crackers will keep perfectly fresh in the freezer. Remove what you need for each time.

To avoid a last minute rush, place your filled parfait glasses in the freezer as much in advance as you desire. Your dessert's ready without last minute fussing!

Fruit salads which have a cream cheese or a cream plus mayonnaise base can be frozen perfectly for future meals or parties.

Recipe of the Week
Beef 'n Spinach Scramble
(Serves 4)

1 package frozen spinach
1 10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
½ cup milk
1 2½-ounce jar dried beef
½ cup grated cheese

Cut frozen spinach into quarters and place in 1½-quart casserole. Combine milk and mushroom soup in saucepan, then heat until smooth. Stir in dried beef. Pour mixture over frozen spinach and top with grated cheese. Cover and bake in a hot (400°) oven for 30 minutes.

Freeze small quantities of left over cooked meats as they gather. When you have enough on hand, prepare hash, stew or meat pie from them.

For an unusually large party when you'll need ice cubes, make them and store in the freezer. You need only a large paper bag to put them in.

To meet the daily need for sandwiches for lunch or lunch box, make, wrap and store in the freezer.

When you have sliced chicken or turkey leftovers, wrap and freeze these. You may be tired of eating turkey leftovers for several days in a row, but, when frozen, they can be used later, at a time when they'll be more appreciated.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

AS OTHERS SEE US

By Elizabeth Hall

GREG HENDERSON looked at the watch on his wrist and continued his indifferent saunter along the shady path of the small park. It was only three o'clock. Too early to find anyone at Pete's though in an hour or so they would all be hurrying in for their first drink of the evening. Janet, his wife, was, of course, at work. Idly he sat down on a bench without noticing the seedy-looking individual occupying the other end until he spoke.

"Hello, Henderson. Good day for meditation in the open."

Uncannily the man whom Greg remembered vaguely as being called Jones read his thoughts perfectly. "It's a little early to find anyone at Pete's." Jones said "You're Henderson, aren't you? Returned from Korea with a lot of Migs to your credit."

"Only three," he answered. "There's better guys than me in the air out there."

"And better guys that will stay out there." It was contempt in the voice but somehow Greg did not feel that it was directed toward him. More as if it were turned inward.

"How long you been home?" Jones questioned, peering at him through eyes that were almost imperceptibly filmed

"I don't know About a month." Greg's surprise firmed his tone "By God, it was a month yesterday."

Where had the time gone? A few days to look around and get acquainted again is what he had assured Janet Then a job, and Janet could stay home. She had worked enough while he was gone keeping things going until he got back. A month And this morning he did not even wake up before she left for work

That's the way it goes," he said "First the days, the weeks, then the months After that come the years."

The cold resignation, the calm absence of any emotion made Greg turn and study his companion.

Meeting Greg's scrutiny, Jones shrugged deprecatingly.

"You looked in the mirror lately?" he asked Greg.

Greg did feel anger then, hot and quick but as quickly it died. His eyes had been bloodshot this morning and there was a faint puffiness under them. He had had a little trouble holding the match steady for his first cigarette

"Sorry, fellow, didn't mean to insult you." There was compassion in his slurred voice. "Do you know my name? Jones is my first name. The rest is Middleton."

Recognition followed blankness in Greg's mind.

"Jones Middleton." he repeated eagerly assuring [illegible] got the D.S.O and [illegible] I read about it I remember the celebration." He stopped ashamed

He had not remembered the [illegible] airforce captain who had [illegible] a big open car with the [illegible] and chief of police in the [illegible] parade.

Yes, I remember the celebration." Jones said, the complete absence of inflection [illegible] pathetic. "The only thing [illegible] never ended."

"Time enough to be going to Pete's. Coming?" he asked.

Greg stood up too. "No, I'm not coming I'm going to meet my wife downtown, and tell her to give notice to her boss She is going to quit her job."

Jones looked at him carefully Greg straightened his shoulders before that understanding look For a moment Jones' back stiffened too He raised his hand in a half salute

"Thank you, Captain," he said. and stood there watching Jones shuffle away along the path.

CONGRESSIONAL Quiz

Q—With the 1954 mid-term Congressional elections coming up, I've been wondering: How have the "ins" and the "outs" fared in recent off-year elections?

A—Since 1930, the minority party has gained Congressional seats in every mid-term election except 1934. In 1934, the Republicans lost 11 seats in the Senate and 14 in the House. In the six elections, the minority has gained an average of five Senators and more than 41 Representatives. The most recent mid-term test, in 1950, resulted in a Republican gain of five Senators and 28 Representatives.

Q—Are cabinet officials entitled to vacations?

A—They are under present law, but Congress has passed two versions of a bill to abolish annual leave for these and other high federal officials, in order to prevent them from collecting lump sum payments for unused leave. They would continue to take time off under a sort of honor system, but would always remain technically on duty.

A—Doctors who are drafted receive no bonus. Those who volunteer and accept commissions, however, receive $100 a month above regular pay. Very few doctors have been drafted; faced with induction under the doctors' draft law, most of them volunteer and accept commissions. The Senate included the bonus in an extension of the law passed May 28, after the House version passed May 12, had omitted it.

Q—What sort of agency is the Women's Bureau, for which the House voted $350,000 May 26?

A—The Women's Bureau, part of the Labor Department, began as the Woman-in-Industry Service in 1918. It studies the entire field of female workers, engaging in research, writing reports and offering policy and program recommendations. Operating as a watch-dog agency, its interests range from wages, through health, to a woman's financial responsibility for family support.

OLD FISHERMAN

JEFF O. MILLER

Many a G.I. has returned from serving his country only to find it impossible to get himself accustomed to going back to work and settle down to the job of becoming a stable businessman.

But not so in the case of Jeff O. Miller, referred to many times over each day as the "Old Fisherman," because soon after Jeff was released from the Infantry after serving 58 months he opened the Miller 5c, 10c and $1.00 Store here in Clanton.

Jeff Miller is a native of Chilton County and received his education in Chilton County Schools. Upon his graduation Jeff left Clanton and went to work in Birmingham theatres as an assistant manager. When World War II broke out in Europe Jeff enlisted in the United States Army and was assigned to the 31st Infantry Division.

Jeff Miller served his country well having been sent to the Pacific theatre and seeing many months of foreign service. Immediately after his release he returned to Clanton and opened his present location.

The Miller 5c, 10c & $1.00 Store has the reputation of having one of the most complete fishing equipment departments of any in this area. Fishermen from far and wide stop there on their way to their favorite fishing grounds to get stocked up with their favorite supplies.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Lon Burcaw, Salem, Ohio: I remember over 50 years ago when I was a little girl and the carbon lights at each street corner in our town. A lamp-lighter with a horse and cart would come around each evening and put in new carbon. The light was lowered and then pulled back to the top of the pole.

From Mrs. Edward Koch, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: I remember when I was small and lived in a village of seven or eight houses. Each family had a cow that was turned out to graze in the surrounding forest. Each cow wore a bell. Each evening as the first cow came in the others would follow. Each family had hogs that were also turned out to feed of nuts and acorns. Sometimes they would be gone as long as six weeks at a time. Each owner had a special mark to identify his animals. Our mark was two V shaped notches in the right ear. These marks had to be registered at the county seat.

From Tommy Tucker, Ephrata, Pennsylvania: I can remember the grind-organ man and his monkey that used to travel through the section where I lived. The monkey would hold his hat for your contribution as they traveled from farm house to farm house.

From Mrs. John P. Messer, Mott, North Dakota: I remember when old timers used to travel in wagons. When mother would see a team coming miles away she would hurry to get a hot meal ready by the time these hungry people arrived. Usually they had traveled for miles and miles without warmth and food and were very thankful to mother. That was pioneer hospitality.

Ralph Johnston Has Twenty-Five Years In Drug Business

Learning the business of a chosen career from the bottom up may be the hardest way, but in most cases it is the surest and most thorough way that anyone has devised as yet.

And that is the story of Ralph Johnston, part owner and manager of the famous Upchurch Drug Store on Clanton's main corner.

Ralph Johnston is a native of Chilton County and received his education in Chilton County schools. After leaving school he was employed by the Upchurch Drug Store, starting by taking a job behind the soda fountain. He worked himself on up the ladder in this same store where he stayed for about 10 years, working in every capacity in the store.

His drug store career was interrupted with the advent of World War II. He served for three years as a Surgical Technician, attached to the Infantry, and saw 10 months overseas, serving in the South Pacific Theatre.

Following his release from the service he re-entered the drug business and served for 10 years as a store manager of the Leggett Drug Company in Montgomery, before returning to Chilton County, this time as a part owner of the still famous Upchurch Drug Company.

Mr. Johnston is married and the father of two boys. He is a member of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, the V.F.W., Woodmen of the World, and the American Legion.

Ralph Johnston is well qualified for the job he now has. He has 25 years of every phase of the drug business that a person could possibly acquire and because of this experience the people of Chilton County have an over-abundance of confidence in him and his store.

PROMINENT LEADER

A. Reedie Taylor

One of the most civic minded residents of Clanton and Chilton County, and one of the most successful business men of the county is A. Reedie Taylor, owner-manager of the Chicago Sales Company Store.

Just as Chilton County has grown and progressed so has Reedie Taylor until today he has become a friend and benefactor to many a man in need. But that's not all! Reedie, as he is known to hundreds throughout Alabama, is probably one of the most civic minded citizens of Chilton County. Since the organization of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, Reedie has either served as an officer of that group, or has given willingly of his time and money to make the county as progressive as it is today.

Reedie Taylor was born and raised in Chilton County and in 1923 entered the employe of the Peoples Savings Bank where he remained for three and a half years.

Upon resigning from the bank, Reedie entered business with his uncle, Tom Taylor, when they bought the Chicago Sales Company from the late V. I. Elmore. At that time the Chicago Sales Company was situated where the First National Bank now stands.

In 1930, Reedie Taylor moved his store to it's present location. And in that same year married the former Pauline Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lawrence. They have three children, two girls and a boy.

In 1933 Reedie Taylor sold the Clanton Chicago Sales Company and moved to LaFayette, where he opened another dry goods store. He also opened and operated another business in West Point, Ga., which he operated for three years.

In 1940 Reedie Taylor moved back to Clanton and repurchased the Chicago Sales Company back from Tom and Dewey Rockett, and has taken an active part in the civic and religious activities of Chilton County.

In past years the dry goods executive used some of his spare time playing golf, but in recent years he has spent most of his outside hours either at his camp on the Coosa River or running his farms. Reedie Taylor is the envy of many a prominent farmer because he is the proud possessor of some of the finest cattle in this section of the state.

SPORTSMAN

Outside of his business, his charming wife and his family, Claud Craig's next interest is that of his fishing and his spacious camp on the Coosa River because he has spent many hours relaxing at this summer playground and he and his wife delight in sharing their retreat with their hundreds of friends.

Claud Craig has been owner-operator of the Western Auto Associate Store here in Clanton for a good many years and through the thousands that pass through his store each year he has made a host of friends that range in every walk of life.

Many years ago Mr. Craig opened his store across the street from where it now is located on Highway 31, next to the Exchange Hotel. He has one of the most complete accessory stores in this area and his merchandise runs from household furnishings to sports and hunting euipment, to some hardware items and automobile accessories.

Claud Craig is a very enterprising business man and one that Clanton and Chilton County are proud of. He was one of the original investors in the Chilco Quick Freeze Plant just north of Clanton and is still an officer in the company.

He also is one of the original stockholders in the Clanton Country Club and a former member of the Clanton Lions Club. Mr. Craig is vitally interested in the development of our county and this whole area and when called upon by the officers of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce to give of his time and money, Claud Craig is one of the first to come through. Many times during the past 12 months this was born out time and time again when the Chamber officers were in need of some much-needed help.

Any time that Claud Craig is not in his store a customer knows full well that they will get the same friendly service as if he were there. The Clanton Western Auto Associate Store is staffed by highly trained and courteous personnel and Mr. Craig is proud of them.

And too, when Mr. Craig is not in his store he is most likely either at home with his family or he is with them at their summer camp on the Coosa River. Claud spends many off hours with his fishing pole as his only companion and he has brought some big ones from the Coosa.

Co-Chairman 1953 Peach Festival

POPE PAYNE

Mr. J. Pope Payne, Co-Chairman of this year's Peach Festival, is well known throughout Chilton County. Mr. Payne is a successful business man, having been in the Hardware business since he finished high school. After leaving Jemison, Alabama, his boyhood home, he established a hardware business at Maplesville, Alabama, where he lived for a number of years. In 1939 he moved to Thorsby where he has since been in the duo business of hardware and 5c and 10c store, the latter which has now grown into a most successful "Dry Goods and Ready-To-Wear Store." This is operated by his charming wife, Katy Lou Payne, and daughter-in-law, Elsie Payne.

Mr. Payne has served on the Chilton County Board of Education since 1934, and is still a member. He is Vice-President of the Bank of Thorsby, also Vice-President of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce. He is a charter member and strong supporter of the Thorsby-Jemison Lions Club, a member of the Thorsby Baptist Church, where he serves as Secretary of the Men's Bible Class.

Mr. Payne was educated in the Chilton County schools, being a former student of Thorsby Institute.

How To Make Friends

STAY ON THE LINE

Long distance calls get through much quicker if you stay on the line while the operator is reaching your party—and the party you're calling doesn't have to wait for you to return to the line.

CHILTON BOOSTER

J. D. Bell

Although he is not a native of Chilton County he is the next best to it and probably has done as much for this area as any other man since he has been in Clanton.

Jimmie Bell came to Clanton many years ago and opened a hole in-the-wall hardware store with a partner. Before very long he had purchased his partner's interest and from then on the Bell Hardware Store has grown in leaps and bounds just as his adopted county has grown and progressed.

And along with everything else Jimmie Bell has grown also. He has given freely of his time and efforts in more than one campaign for a civic enterprise, charity or religion. Jimmie is always one of the first to make known his intentions in any effort that is for the good of the county.

A few years ago Jimmie moved the Bell Hardware Store from it's location on Highway 31 to it's present housing on Second Avenue Soon after this move he obtained the space formerly occupied by the Evans Supply Store, which he has redecorated and restocked in an effort to bring a bigger and better hardware store to the people of this county.

The Bell Hardware Store is packed with every piece of merchandise that one could want from such an establishment. And nearly everything is of national brand, such as the Kelvinator line of refrigerators, stoves, home freezers and air-conditioners. Bell's is also headquarters for the Chilton County Farmer who knows that when he has to have something in a hurry the place to go is Bell's.

Since coming to Clanton, Jimmie Bell has also acquired the Willingham Hotel, which is operated by Buddy Willingham, and between them they have turned it into a place with an excellent reputation that is known throughout the land by the hundreds of visitors that come here and especially by the many salesmen that call on our merchants every week or month.

Jimmie Bell is a past Worshipful Master of Masonic Lodge 423, and a member of Shrine Temple of Alcazar at Montgomery, and the Clanton Kiwanis Club. He is also a past president of the Chilton County Chest and a member of the First Baptist Church of Clanton.

Chilton County's Luscious Peach Crop Travels To Market Using Every Available Method

Nine Modern Packing Sheds Now In Chilton

A rapid survey of packing sheds and roadside stands made July 2nd revealed a number of interesting facts relative to the County's "Peach Marketing Program."

Modern packing sheds capable of grading, brushing, sizing, and packing up to five hundred bushels of peaches per hour, down to thirty bushels per hour graders were busy preparing peaches for shipment to distant points.

Nine modern packing sheds are now in operation. They are operated by Mr. Austin Scott, Mt. Creek; Chilco Packing Company, Clanton; Clyde and T. J. Headley, Clanton Route 3; Esco Clup, Clanton Route 3; Durbin and Son, Clanton Route 3; D. Gentry, Thorsby; Bentley Farms, Thorsby; A. D. Headley, Clanton Route 1; C. J. Mitchell, Stanton Route 1. The combined pack of the nine grading sheds to the mid-season shipping date—July 2nd—exceeded 100,000 one-half bushels of graded peaches. In addition, 40,000 one-half bushels of fruit below U. S. No. 1 grade moved through the sheds to nearby retail outlets.

Packing sheds preparing peaches for distant points had, on date of survey (July 2nd) sold peaches in Birmingham, Ala.; St. Louis, Mo.; New Orleans, La.; Pensacola, Fla.; Chicago, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; and New York, N. Y.

Peaches from Chilton's smaller orchards move to practically all Alabama cities and towns. One grower, H. O. Headley of Clanton Route 3, stated that he had retailed over four thousand baskets in several different towns by June 2nd.

Over 600 individual farm families are growing and marketing peaches from the area. From a representative sample, it is estimated that 600,000 baskets of tree ripened peaches have reached consumers in Alabama and neighboring states through direct farmer to consumer sales.

Many interesting facts were revealed in interviews with roadside stand operators. Forty-two roadside retail peach stands were in operation along Chilton's main highways July 2nd. The combined retail sales of the forty-two roadside stands prior to June 2nd exceeded 16,000 twelve-quart baskets of Chilton County top quality peaches. Most stands had been in operation only three weeks. The average roadside peach sales season is seven to eight weeks. Roadside stands offer the traveling public a top quality tree-ripened peach. Roadside peach sales personnel gave the following report on their customers.

A very high percent of all sales are made to tourists from mid-western states — Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois were the states most frequently mentioned as homes of buyers at Chilton County roadside peach markets. Neighboring state tourists were second largest group of buyers. Georgia buyers were quite frequently named by roadside sales representatives interviewed. Alabama purchasers are largely Jefferson or Montgomery county residents.

Tourists from practically every state in the forty-eight were mentioned as buyers of Chilton County peaches along our highways. A few of the rare purchasers mentioned were from Ontario, New Zealand and Alaska.

In addition to the graded peaches that go to distant markets, the retail sales in nearby towns and Chilton's roadside peach trade, Chilton County growers load many out-of-state peach hucksters' trucks with orchard run or ungraded fruit. These peaches move in bulk containers to points as far distant as New Orleans, La.; Tampa, Fla.; and Louisville, Ky.

It is evident in Chilton County that an enterprising group of growers will devise a method of securing a fair portion of the consumer's dollar after they have produced something to sell.

4-H Lamp Contest

Recently the 4-H Clubs of Chilton County held a Lamp Contest at the City Hall in Clanton. Twelve lamps which were made by the boys and girls were entered in the Contest.

The first place lamp was made by Raybon Sandlin from Thomas Jr. School. He is the son of Mr. and Charlie Sandlin. Raybon's lamp was made from a piece of drift wood.

Second place lamp was made out of a vase. It was made by Joan Smitherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Smitherman, Maplesville Route 1. Joan is in the Maplesville Jr. Club.

Both of these lamps will be taken to Auburn and entered in the State Contest during State 4-H Week July 6th-11th.

A Letter To The Parents Of Our 4-H Boys And Girls

It is our pleasure and privilege to work with your boys and girls who have joined the 4-H Club in Chilton County. The 4-H Club stands for equal development of the Head, Heart, Hands, and Health.

The 4-H Club Pledge is: "I Pledge My Head to clearer thinking; My Heart to greater loyalty; My Hands to larger services; My Health to better living; for My Club, My Community and My Country." Our 4-H Club motto is: "To Make the Best Better."

We have 1,467 4-H Club members in Chilton County. Alabama has 126,039 4-H Club members. The 4-H Clubs began in 1908 as the Corn Clubs and Tomato Clubs.

You are interested in seeing your sons and daughters develop into fine men and women. The 4-H Club offers equal opportunity for all boys and girls.

There are over thirty 4-H Club projects for girls and boys; and there are all types of group activities such as 4-H camps, picnics, state camp, out-of-state trips, and our County 4-H President gets a trip to Birmingham each year.

We hold a training meeting for the 4-H Club officers each year. Some 260 4-H boys and girls get experience in holding meetings, keeping the minutes of meetings, and nearly every 4-H member gets a chance to take part in a program.

We have an annual 4-H Dairy Cattle Show, 4-H Beef Show, Dress Revue, Summer 4-H picnics, and a 4-H Talent Program. Your sons and daughters are invited to participate in these events.

In order to be a 4-H Club member, a boy or girl should have at least one good project. Now the main 4-H boys' projects in our county are row crops, hogs, and cows; and the main 4-H girls' projects are cooking, sewing, and home improvement. Won't you please sit down with your sons and daughters who have joined the 4-H Clubs and help them with their projects so that they can make reports at club meetings.

We are willing to help them in any way that we can, but there isn't much that we can do unless you do your part and really back up your own boys and girls. If they have a 4-H project, you've got to do your part, too. If they serve as a 4-H officer, you've got to back them up. If they serve as a county 4-H officer, you have a job to do to see that they get to the meetings. If your boy or girl enters the 4-H Calt Show, you've got a job to do. Some time, all a boy or girl needs is a pat on the back—just a little encouragement. Some time their needs are much bigger.

May we urge you to join hands with us across Chilton County and let's really buckle down and give our own 4-H Club members the backing that they need.

When you sit quietly by your fireside in your favorite rocker and listen to the wind blow through the trees, and as you sit there quietly and reminisce about your own experiences; and then you are suddenly brought back to earth by that rosey-checked boy or girl saying, "What can I have for my 4-H project?" you know that now is the time to back up that boy or girl. Just a few more years Johnny will be gone to the Army, to college — somewhere; and Mary — she's gone, married at seventeen — Why?—and yet so many plans — but—always tomorrow, next month, next year.

Now is the time. We are counting on you to do everything that you can in backing your boys and girls who are in the 4-H Club.

Why don't you come by to see us about your boys' and girls' 4-H Club project work the next time you are in town? We would like to have a letter or even a post card if you don't have time to visit us.

Sincerely,
MARY LOUISE WRIGHT,
Home Demonstration Agent.
JOHNNIE P. MARTIN,
Asst. Home Demonstration Agent.
JOHN D. SELLERS,

Herbert Goodwin (colored) age 84, and his wife, Sarah Payne Goodwin, age 74, and have been blind for the past six years, have returned to this section. They have been visiting their children in Detroit and Chicago, but desired to come back home where they are better satisfied and happier. Both Herbert and Coodie (as she is known by her white friends and colored folks) are at home with their son, Harry Goodwin, on Route 1, Stanton, Ala. Both Herbert and Coodie are very feeble, however, their minds are active and they enjoy having their friends drop by and say, hello. They like to talk over old times. They speak of the many who have gone on and always end their conversation by thanking God that they have been spared to live this long. This colored couple reared a large family—a family that is respected by white and colored folks alike. They have lived good lives and have been leaders in the community in which they lived. They supported the churches and schools and have given of their time and money to help build a better community.

Preventing Thin Calves Outlined By Specialist

These management practices will prevent thin beef animals next February, according to W. H. Gregory, API Extension beef cattle specialist:

(1) Save all the hay possible. (2) Start fallowing land for winter grazing. (3) Continue to do a thorough job of spraying the beef herd. This will keep animals more comfortable, make cows give more milk for their calves, send the herd into cold weather in better shape, and aid in the control of diseases.

FRESH WATER

A good dairy cow giving 60 pounds of milk every day may drink as much as 180 pounds of water. In addition to the water they get in their feed, most cows need another two to three pounds of water for every pound of milk they produce.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

THE oldest boy received a telephone call from his girl. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen the contortions he put himself through while he talked to her.

For twenty minutes he rolled on the floor with his feet against the wall, until finally he was sitting on his shoulders and his feet and the rest of his body were straight up in the air.

"Down, Rover," I shouted.

He ignored me, but tackled me just as soon as the conversation ended in another 10 minutes.

"I want an extension phone in my room," he said, "so I can talk privately to my girl."

"Since when," says I, "has an 11-year-old anything he wants to say to a girl in private?"

"But, gee, Pop," says he. "Everyone listens."

"That's too bad," says I. "There's a 25-foot extension cord on that phone and that's enough. Take it into your room when you talk to her."

"All right," says he, "if that's the way you feel about it."

"While I'm about it," says I, "sit in a chair and stop rolling on the floor when you talk on the telephone."

"But, Pop," says he, "a guy thinks better with his feet up like that."

"That's hard to believe," says I.

"But it's a scientific fact. The blood rushes to a fellow's brain and he thinks twice as good and as fast."

"Too bad," says I, "that I didn't know that fact when I was a boy. By all means, son, think fast and stay alert. Stand on your head if it will keep you from getting trapped."

Just as I finished he screamed for me to duck, but it was too late. His mother bounced an aluminum pan off my head. She had been listening to our man-to-man conversation.

Defrosting Home Freezer Is Leader's Subject Now

Auburn, Ala. — Last week API Extension Food Preservationist Lavada Curtis had some tips on home freezer economy. Today she has this to say about defrosting home freezers.

"Freezers usually need defrosting only once or twice a year," she explains. "The best practice is to remove frost when it is about one-half inch thick on large areas of walls or shelves. However, tests show that frost can get as thick as one and one-half inches without warming the inside of the freezer enough to endanger frozen food."

Thick frost in a freezer is costly because it cuts down storage space, adds Miss Curtis. And just as much electricity is spent holding the frost at zero temperatures as would be used to keep frozen foods cold.

She reminds homemakers that frost can be removed while the freezer is operating. Scrape it off with specially-made scoop tools that catch the frost as it is scraped off. Never use anything sharp enough to damage walls or the gasket around the opening.

"Ice that forms in the freezer is too hard to scrape off so must be melted," warns the home leader. "Disconnect the freezer and take out the food. Then if the freezer has a drain, melt ice by running cold water over it. If the freezer does not have a drain, place an electric fan on the ice and remove it as it loosens. Keep sponging up water that forms. Be sure the inside of the freezer is completely dry when you connect the electricity and put the frozen food back in."

POULTRY PRECAUTIONS

Spray all poultry houses inside and out with DDT or lindane to control mosquitoes and flies. To control mites and lice, broadcast two pounds of sulfur per 100 square feet of floor space and rake it into the litter.

When washing lamp shades, remember that the quicker they are dried the better. Turn an electric fan on them as soon as they have been rinsed. Quick drying helps to prevent colors from running.

SHOULTS NEWS

The building fund for the Sunday School class rooms of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church continues to grow, and work is expected to begin soon. The committee and Pastor Rev. Joe Davis are working tirelessly to get this badly needed addition to the church completed. Any donation will be appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Seeley and small son of West Palm Beach, Fla., spent last Friday night here with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults. Mr. and Mrs. Seeley were en route home after a couple of weeks vacation in Indiana. Mr. Seeley stated that there had been so many changes made in this community since he was here 18 years ago that it was difficult for him to find the old home place of his grandfather, the late C. T. Walker. With the University Highway, new homes, new stores, improved roads, he felt lost. However, one could not expect places and things to remain the same after a period of 18 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Alsie Maness of Tuscaloosa, Ala., are regular visitors here, spending the week ends at their new cabin. Mr. Maness is doing a lot of work to the Oak Grove surrounding the cabin. When finished, it will be a beautiful place. He was born and reared here and is still interested in the church and community. We always welcome them.

Miss Ruby Lee Latham of Montgomery, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Latham, two daughters, of Orrville, Ala., were here last week visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Latham. Joe is football coach at Orrville High School.

Mr. and Mrs. George Shoults, two sons, Freddie and Jimmy, spent a few days recently with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Shoults, in Bessemer, Ala.

Visiting here with relatives for the past two weeks were Mrs. Howard Boie and son, Bruce, of West Palm Beach, Fla. Mrs. Boie and son returned to their home last Monday. While here they enjoyed a picnic lunch, given in their honor at the Nix Lake at Maplesville, Ala. Attending the picnic were: Mrs. Wheeler Walker, Miss Lucy Walker, Mrs. Layden Hicks' two children, Perry and Hilda, Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell, Mr. Brady McAfee, all of Maplesville; Mr. and Mrs. Claud Hathcock, Mrs. Sam Shoults of this community; T-Sgt. and Mrs. Phillip Hicks and son, Corky, of Moody Air Base, Ga.; and Mrs. Boie and son, of West Palm Beach, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Carson Snead of Centreville, Ala. This group enjoyed fishing, boating and swimming. Dr. Nix has at this lake a beautiful modern swimming pool for both grownups and children.

At the lunch hour, after Little Perry Hicks had thanked God for all our blessings, everyone sang, Happy Birthday to Mr. Quinton Mitchell as it was his birthday. After which all enjoyed many good things to eat.

T-Sgt. and Mrs. Phillip Hicks and son, Corky, of Moody Air Base, Valdoster, Ga., spent a few days last week with their mother, Mrs. Willie Hathcock.

Recent visitors with Mrs. John Foshee were her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Shoults, and son of Selma, Ala.

Mrs. Charles Shoults and two children of Selma, Ala., spent last Saturday here with her father and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults.

Mrs. Shoults is anxiously awaiting the return of her husband, T-Sgt. Charles Shoults, from Korea in October.

Mr. Erbie Sewell, son of Mrs. Annie Sewell is stationed on an island near Japan.

Willard Lawley, son of Mr. Walter Lawley, is now in Korea.

Hamric Hathcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hathcock, is stationed in the Pacific with the Navy.

Curtis Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Messer Smith is in Korea. All are from this community; also T-Sgt. Charles Shoults, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shoults; T-Sgt. Layden Hicks, son of Mrs. Willie Hathcock, are in Korea.

Several from this community attended a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. John Carter at Stanton one day last week, honoring Mrs. Donald Carter, formerly Miss Artie Hathcock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hathcock of this community. The bride's husband, S-Sgt. Donald Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carter of Stanton is a graduate of Maplesville High School and recently returned from Korea, after completing his 75th bombing missions there with the U. S. Air Force. Mrs. Carter is a Senior II at Maplesville High School and plans to graduate next term. Sgt. Carter is stationed at an Air Base in Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Latham say their daughter-in-law, Mrs. R. C. Latham, and two small daughters have arrived safely in England aboard the Queen Mary. After a few months visit there with her parents, she will return to America and to her husband and home in Birmingham.

One day last week Mr. and Mrs. Harvey McGee and son, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oden and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. McGee from Quincy, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Oden from Montgomery, Ala., visited friends and relatives here after they enjoyed a picnic lunch at the Perry Mountain Tower in this community. Both couples are former residents of this place and we are always glad to see them.

Mr. Cal Seales, an auto mechanic of Maplesville, has purchased land here on the University and has the grounds graded to erect a new home and garage. Also Mr. Carl Kelly is building a new home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams and four children of Maplesville, Ala., visited Mr. and Mrs. Claud Hathcock here last Sunday.

Take Care Of Brood Sow; She's Got No Substitute

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers are reminded this week that good brood sow management is still one of the most important keys to profitable market hog production.

"Right now, bred sows and gilts are carrying fall litters that will mean millions of dollars to this state next spring," says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist. "And the way they are fed and managed may well mean the difference between success and failure in the hog program."

The number, strength, and weight of pigs farrowed depend on the condition of the sow, adds the farm leader. Proper feeding and management also affect the number and weight of the pigs at weaning.

"To get big litters of thrifty pigs," advises Phillips, "keep the bred sow in good condition by limited feeding of grain and supplement. Give her all the good green grazing, simple mineral mixture, salt, clean drinking water, and shade she wants.

Careful Land Selection Is Urged By Specialist

Land selection plays an important role in producing money-making winter grazing crops, according to D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist.

"For example," he says, "put alfalfa only on fertile, well drained land. Clover grass permanent pastures should be planted on moist, fertile bottomlands or fertile clay uplands. Supplementary winter grazing crops succeed best on land that makes good yields of crops such as cotton and corn. And white or ladino clover and tall fescue should be planted on wet areas not adapted to other kinds of pasture."

MORE MONEY FROM HOGS

Last year market hogs led livestock cash sales in the state. Alabama farmers sold more than $46,000,000 worth of hogs in 1952.

PLENTY OF THESE

This month housewives will find plentiful supplies of fried chicken, sweet corn, new potatoes, and ice cream on their grocery shelves.

Also in abundant supply are peanuts, peanut butter, fats and oils, fresh and frozen fish, and a variety of summer vegetables.

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

TCP*, a Shell discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, puts an end to greatest cause of power loss. Actually boosts power up to 15%, sparkplug life up to 150%, by counteracting the deposits on sparkplugs and in combustion chambers.

Though you may not realize it, the chances are that your engine is delivering far less than its original horsepower.

This is because, in the average engine, deposits constantly build up on sparkplugs and in combustion chambers. These deposits actually "short-circuit" your sparkplugs causing them to misfire. They may also cause pre-ignition of the combustion mixture—resulting in severe knock. This is especially true when accelerating, climbing hills, or driving on the open highway.

To overcome this condition, Shell Research discovered a fuel additive, TCP. Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, TCP stops the short-circuiting effects of the deposits on sparkplugs and controls pre-ignition of the combustion mixture. This means, for the average motorist, a power boost of up to 15%, an increase in sparkplug life of up to 150%, plus an increase in gasoline mileage!

Shell Premium with TCP is the most important advance in gasoline since the discovery of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high-compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the sparkplugs. But high-compression or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps your engine working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone 30,000 miles or more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposits on sparkplugs and in combustion chambers that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

NOW IN YOUR TOWN
but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only at Shell Dealer Stations.

Liberty—

"Stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free."—Gal. 5:1.

"Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."—Leviticus 25-10.

This last Bible quotation is said to be inscribed in the Bell that announced the signing of the Declaration of Independence July 4th, 1776.

Liberty is one of the greatest blessings that can be bestowed on mankind. Liberty, not to live as you desire, but as you ought.

Liberty is the state of being free. There is freedom in the air we breathe, in the thoughts we think, in the things we do, in the words we say and this freedom tempered by the fires of conscience causes us to consider others. All do not see alike, so come different ideas and ways of life. It is necessary to reason things out and follow the right way. All should obey God's laws. He created the Heavens and the earth for man to enjoy, all the materials things for his benefit, to use for his glory. All have a hand in the building, all have a part in the plan, no one builds alone. By united efforts liberty will remain.

You Get More Milk From Artificially Dried Hay

Auburn, Ala. — Hay cured in the barn with heat has 11 per cent more milk-producing capacity than hay cured in the field under favorable conditions.

And in the same tests by the Bureau of Dairy Industry, wilted silage showed an increase of nine per cent and barn-cured hay without heat a rise of six per cent.

In explaining these research results, API Extension Assistant Dairyman Pete Turnham says that preserving the hay crop as wilted silage or barn-dried hay saves more dry matter, protein, and carotene from the standing crop than field curing.

He points out that even greater increases were found in tests with rain-damaged field-cured hay. Wilted silage showed a 38 per cent increase; barn-cured hay without heat, 33 per cent, and barn-cured hay with heat, 40 per cent.

Turnham adds that in line with these findings several Alabama dairymen are drying hay artificially and finding it very profitable.

Chilton's Livestock Production Program One Of The Best In Central Alabama

(By M. R. Glasscock, County Agt.)

Beef and Dairy Cattle and Market Hogs by the thousands are roaming the green fields and pastures of Chilton County as this area is still growing into one of the major livestock producing counties in the Central part of the State of Alabama.

Chilton County farmers are justly proud of the fact that a creditable livestock production program has been spliced into the highly diversified agricultural program.

Beef cattle, dairy cattle and milk production, and market hog production is a major project with 572 of Chilton's farm operators. Ten Grade "A" dairies are now in operation. Three additional Grade "A" Units are now in the process of being constructed. Two hundred and thirty farmers now ship milk to the Carnation station at Dadeville, Alabama, the milk being picked up by five trucks over two full routes and three spur routes covering over 150 miles of Chilton County roads to collect approximately 14,000 pounds of milk daily.

Chilton County's commercial dairy industry boasts of nearly 3,000 producing animals and produces a gross annual income of over $300,000.

Beef production involving purebred cattle breeding and commercial killer calf production is the major activity of 247 Chilton County farmers. Some of Alabama's top Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford cattle are found in breeding herds in Chilton County. Over 3,000 commercial brood cows produce market beef from clover, sericea and clover grass pastures.

Recently added and operating effectively is the Central Alabama Stockyard, a sales auction that marketed nearly $200,000 total sales from Chilton County pastures.

Hog production suffered a serious decline following the 1952 grain-crop failures, yet hog production holds the interest of over 100 Chilton County farmers. The encouraging grain crop prospects now in Chilton County fields will again supply the feed basis for renewed pork production.

4-H GIRLS HAVE JUNE NEIGHBORAIDE MEETINGS

In different communities throughout the County 4-H leaders are busy having Neighboraide meetings for the girls. 4-H girl and adult leaders are planning and working together. These leaders arrange the meetings and contact the other girls in the community as to when and where the meeting will be held.

At each meeting the girls sing, have a short devotion, discuss business, have a demonstration and play games. The demonstration for June was "First Air For 4-H'ers". Some of the older 4-H girls have had a little first aid in school, but many of the younger ones know very little about it. The demonstration includes material and information that each one can understand and use. Accidents may happen at any place and any time, so it is hoped that the 4-H girls may be able to use some of the knowledge in case of an accident.

The Home Agents have met with several of these neighboraide groups, but others have met with an Agent and sent in reports of meetings.

Miss Martin urges each leader to send in a report when she has a meeting in her community.

Diversification In Crops Is The Key To Chilton County's Agricultural Progress

PEACHES LEAD LIST OF 31 LOCAL CROPS

Peach production is the major perishable food crop item produced in commercial volume by Chilton's 300 enterprising farm families. Approximately thirty additional products go to Alabama and other consuming markets from the rolling sandy loam areas within the County.

Chilton County farm people are individualists by heredity and in action. The production of a wide variety of different crops allows each of the County's many small owner-operator farmers to express their skill and personality in the products offered an increasing food crop market.

Peach production, as the leading commercial food crop item, has reached an important national production level. The 1953 crop will exceed one million bushels. With favorable markets the income to Chilton's six hundred peach growing families will exceed three million dollars. Peach production is only one of the many food crops that are being produced in the County. Other food crops being produced are:

Blackberries—

Over three hundred farm families produced and marketed approximately one million seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds of blackberries in 1953. Blackberries from Chilton County were processed in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Illinois. Chilton's blackberry crop is over ten percent of the national pack of this food item. The crop grossed three hundred farm families over two hundred ten thousand dollars during May and June.

Watermelons—

Chilton's quality watermelons reach all major southern and midwestern consuming areas. Beginning in early June and continuing thru August, four hundred farm operators are busy harvesting and marketing melons from an annual acreage of approximately five thousand acres of melons. Over one thousand truck loads of melons reach consumers from Chilton County melon fields. The income from melons annually ranges from one-fourth to one-half million gross dollars.

Tomatoes—

In 1953 Chilton County growers have in production twelve hundred acres of Rutgers tomatoes. They cater to Alabama and nearby ripe tomato markets and operate three wholesale bulk green tomato concentration markets. The green tomatoes go to re-pack houses located throughout the southeast and midwest, Chicago, Ill.; Atlanta, Ga.; Knoxville, Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn.; Tampa, Orlando and other Florida points; and New Orleans, La.; have been major consuming areas of Chilton's tomatoes in 1953. The tomato crop produces a farmer gross income of approximately four hundred dollars par acre.

The four products — peaches, blackberries, tomatoes, and melons are spring and summer crops of major importance. Other summer and fall food crops that occupy sizeable acreages, and the efforts of an appreciable number of farmers are:

1. Squash
2. Okra
3. Pole Beans
4. Bush Beans
5. Lima Beans
6. Field Peas
7. Cantaloupes
8. Bell Peppers
9. Pimento Peppers
10. Cucumbers (for pickles)
11. Cucumbers (fresh market)
12. Field Corn (cut green)
13. Sweet Corn
14. Plums
15. Grapes
16. Apples
17. Irish Potatoes
18. Sweet Potatoes
19. Egg Plant
20. Onions

Chilton County farmers are never idle. They grow and market some products every season of the year. Food products that reach market during the winter or early in spring from Chilton County farmers include:

1. Collards
2. Turnip Salad
3. Rutabagas
4. Cabbage
5. Strawberries
7. Bunch Onions

In summarizing the specialty crop crop program in Chilton County, it can well be said that farm people with special adaptions on adapted lands are utilizing approximately twenty thousand acres for the production of over thirty different food crops. They are producing vast quantities of wholesome food to feed a sizeable portion of the nation's people. And, by so diversifying their efforts, they are supplementing their cotton, corn, livestock, poultry and forest product income by over six million dollars (6,000,000.00) annually.

Chilton's diversified agricultural program now being developed and increased is the key item to the more prosperous agriculture found in Chilton.

State Leads Nation In 4-H Club Membership

(By Miss Johnnie Martin, Ass't. Home Demonstration Agent)

The 4-H Clubs are based upon the principles set forth in the Constitution of the United States of America; as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice, for which patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

Four-H Club leaders realize that American life is largely founded on three institutions — family, school and church. Helping our boys and girls to grow up into fine men and women are the objectives set forth in our 4-H Club program.

Project work is the foundation of any good 4-H Club program. Chilton County being a highly diversified area provides every member something of interest. Over forty-five different agricultural commodities are produced and in many instances 4-H Club members have pioneered the way for their success. The major projects participated in are Peaches, berries, dairy, beef, corn, cotton, poultry and swine.

Alabama still holds the edge on all other States with the largest number of 4-H Club members enrolled. Chilton County has 1,743 active members.

The 1952-1953 County Council officers selected by this group are:

President, Jimmy Kincaid; 1st Vice-President, Patsy Young; 2nd Vice-President, Phillip Robinson; 3rd Vice-President, Cora Sue Sandlin; Secretary-Treasurer, Mary Edna Griffin; Song Leaders, Nina Sue Headley and Carolyn Cox; Song Leaders, Herman Kendrick and Willie Scott. Reporter, Zed Williams.

The advisers to this group include the Extension Personnel—M. R. Glasscock, County Agent; John D. Sellers, Assistant County Agent; Daniel Ray Mims, Assistant County Agent; Mary Louise Wright, Home Demonstration Agent; Johnnie P. Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent; and the many teachers, parents, and local leaders throughout the County.

Future Farmers Of America Are Very Progressive In Chilton

(By John D. Sellers, Assistant County Agent)

"Learning To Do, Doing To Learn; Earning To Live and Living To Serve."

That's the motto of over 300 Future Farmers of America of Chilton County, who are working and striving to live up to that motto the same as millions of others all over the world.

The Chilton County Future Farmers are a part of the National and State Future Farmers organization, Alabama, this year, had a total membership of 12,261 Future Farmers. The five Agriculture Departments in the County and the Vocational Agriculture Teachers which are the Future Farmer Advisers are: Jemison, Mr. Lamar Shields; Isabella, Mr. Gordon Conway; Maplesville, Mr. Carlos Owens; Verbena, Mr. J. F. Ledbetter; Clanton Mr. J'Reed Thompson.

The Chilton County chapters this year planted about 50,000 pine seedlings on their farms. They sold 200 "Keep Alabama Green" tags in cooperation with the State program. They secured from the Soil Conservation Service 25 pounds of bicolor lespedeza seed for the establishing of wildlife borders. They have erected ten welcome signs on the highways entering their communities. They have entered many contests, such as Public Speaking, Quartet, Tractor Driving, Quiz Contest, and many others.

In addition to the classroom and farm shop work, the Chilton County Future Farmers are carrying out 1,000 or more productive projects on their individual farms, projects from which they expect some cash incomes.

To give an example of what these boys are doing, G. C. Bolton of Clanton Route 5, is typical. G. C. is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Zeddard Bolton. This year G. C. has five acres of cotton, eight acres of corn, one acre of okra, five hundred peach trees, two hundred chickens and five brood cows. G. C. is operating his farm like a man of many years experience. He will certainly be one of our future farmer leaders of tomorrow.

There are numerous other Future Farmers doing the same as G. C. Bolton.

Where there is need for community service, the Future Farmers are there to serve. This year they helped with the Junior Red Cross Drive, Crippled Children's Community Chest and many others.

The Future Farmers always have exhibits in the County and State [illegible] responsible for the Peach Exhibits at the Peach Festival each year.

There are four degrees of membership in the Future Farmers organization. Greenhand, Chapter Farmer, State Farmer, and American Farmer. Chilton County had five boys to be awarded the State Farmer Degree this year. They were: Melvin Williams, Pat Owens, Odean Deavers, Charles and Max Scott.

Thomas Chapman was awarded a whiteface heifer last year by the Shelton Truck and Tractor Company for outstanding work in his chapter.

The Future Farmers Organization has a sister organization, the Future Homemakers Association. This organization works with girls along the same lines as the Future Farmers. Many activities are planned and carried out together by these two organizations. The Home Economics teachers are sponsors of the Future Homemakers Organization.

Our hats are off to our Co-workers, the more than 200 Future Homemakers and their Leaders in Chilton County.

TOPS IN THE NATION

Alabama 4-H boys and girls led the nation in completed club projects last year. Almost 108,000 members finished work in at least one farm or home project.

County's Peach Crop May Sell for $3,000,000 Total

(By R. B. (Bob) Taber)

About 4,000 acres of Peach Trees comprising from 40 to 50 varieties are expected to produce this year over 2,000 carlots of Chilton County's star fruit to the tune of some $3,000,000, which, if this goal is reached the latter part of August, will be the biggest crop in the history of this Central Alabama county.

But peaches are not new to this thriving and enterprising community. The huge peach industry of Chilton County has grown up today but not without the usual growing pains of any successful industry. This wonderful peach enterprise has grown from only a few trees to what is now estimated as over 600 families making money from peach trees.

For many years peach orchards in Chilton County were ravaged with insects and diseases that more than once very nearly crippled the infant, and yet it has survived even though it has been stunted again and again by poor weather conditions or poor markets.

But all of these difficulties have been surmounted. They have been overcome through the months and years of plugging and hard work on the part of our farmers, men who never give up once they put their minds and efforts to the job at hand.

All of these heart-breaking events have only done one thing, however, they have reached the goal that has earned the Chilton County Peach grower and his products the coveted slogan that is known the world over, "Chilton County Peaches Are Tops."

And this year's Festival is no exception to those that have been conducted in the past, because the Peach Festival has kept pace with the ever increasing growth of our great Peach Industry. As the industry has grown in size and income so has the Festival grown until now it is known the country over as one of the South's greatest annual events.

In keeping too with the great expansion of this industry is the fact that Chilton County interests have put shipping facilities on an ever-growing and expanding basis. Throughout the County during the peach-shipping months there are many shipping sheds that load out truckload after truckload of Chilton's finest. Huge transfer trucks are constantly loading out peaches, sometimes all 24 hours of the day. Chilton County also boasts large modern packing and shipping sheds, both in Thorsby and Clanton with facilities both for truck and rail.

The highways in and out of the County are lined with hundreds of retail roadside stands that attract motorists from throughout the State of Alabama as well as from surrounding states who come here to get the freshest of our Peaches.

Modern shipping methods, good roads, railroad spurs, modern loading docks and facilities, plus easy icing methods, all go to make Chilton County Peaches easier for the buyer and the shipper to handle in getting his loads of the top peaches of the world into the big city markets with the least amount of difficulty and the least amount of time consumed.

Rural Death Rate Declines In Highway Accidents

Montgomery — Alabama's rural highway death toll for June, provisionally, was 58, an immediate decrease of 31 per cent from the "Bloody June," 1952, rural fatality score of 84.

The Alabama Safety Commission said a few "delayed" deaths and reports, plus urban traffic tolls, may push the total Alabama June score to between 65 and 70, but described the decrease as "encouraging."

Urban scores won't be known for some months, the Commission explained, because municipalities do not report accidents to the Alabama Department of Public Safety as required by state law.

Commission Chairman Earl McGowin said the total state-wide score of 65 to 70 "is encouraging only in comparison with the 90 killed during 'Bloody June' and a predicted 'normal' of 83 for this June.

Actually, McGowin and Alabama Safety Council President Hugh Comer declared "it's horrible that we civilized Alabamians kill 65 or 70 of our fellow citizens while supposedly exercising special caution."

Both safety leaders praised the work of the Alabama Highway Patrol, whose officers Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said, "really buckled down during the month to prevent another 'Bloody June.'" Sullivan said the Patrol "and city and county police forces doubtless accounted for much of the difference between last June's 90 and this month's 65 or 70."

Comer asserted the reduction "shows we motorists can cut Alabama's death toll any time we sincerely decide to." He expressed the Council's thanks to "those who heard and read the warnings about the very dangerous month of June, and honestly drove and walked more carefully.

The Commission and Council sponsored jointly an intense publicity campaign during the month, under the slogan, "Remember 'Bloody June'—don't let it happen again." Comer said Alabama's press and radio "did a magnificent job of spreading the word" over the state.

History Of Chilton's Peach Industry Is One Of Phenominal Growth

A long holiday week end for most folks and temperatures ranging in the high nineties, meant nothing last Saturday and Sunday as farmers of Chilton County as well as truckers, and packing shed operators and the many workers who assisted them worked feverishly to get the 1953 peach crop rolling from the hundreds and hundreds of acres of orchards to markets and consumers.

If you were to ride out through the county last Saturday morning in the heat of the day, you would have seen every hand available out there in the orchards picking, grading and loading one of the biggest peach crops in the history of the county. And too, you would have seen pickup trucks, tractor-hauled trailors, or anything else that would haul, carrying load upon load of Chilton's golden crop to the packing sheds that are strewn about the county.

And then if you had traveled about a little more you would have come onto one of those sheds where huge tractor-trailor trucks stood lined up waiting to be loaded as the mechanical grading machines hummed out a steady din almost 24 hours per day.

You would also see standing around with blood-shot eyes women, girls and teenagers keeping a sharp lookout for any peaches that didn't come up to the world-known slogan "Chilton County Peaches Are Tops."

Yes, in just these past few days before the big day, Peach Festival Day, the day that all of Chilton County, the State of Alabama, and many others come to Clanton to pay homage to her highness, The Peach, thousands of bushels of the golden harvest have been moved out of the county to markets all over the United States. By freight car, and by truck hundreds of loads have been moving from the packing shed to such markets as Chicago, New York, Cincinnati and places along the West Coast. They have been going to these markets only to be shipped again, by rail and by truck to the retail markets where they are almost at once gobbled up by the thousands of retail consumers who know that "Chilton County Peaches are Always Tops" when they appear on the counters of some of the biggest super markets of the world.

All of this tremendous growth of Chilton County Peaches began way back several years ago, way back in 1896 at the beginning of that thriving little town of Thorsby, just north of Clanton on Highway 31.

At that time there was an acre of grapes, an acre of peaches that was used as an inducement by T. T. Thorsen and P. W. Peterson, founders of the Thorsby Land Company, to lure more settlers to the South. Thus, according to historians, began the growing of peaches on a commercial scale in Chilton County.

Some 43 years ago John Carlson had ten acres of the precious fruit and carloads of peaches were beginning to move North. The grape vineyards were beginning to give way to the strawberry plants. And then prohibition hit the country forcing the Thorsby winery out of business.

Then came the good farm roads and the peach growing business really began to boom, with men like D. Gentry and E. E. Cox and Harmon Headley taking the lead. Money was beginning to pour into the peach growers after he increased his knowledge of proper soil control and the control of the many insects that can ruin a peach orchard.

As time went on more and more farmers took to starting peach orchards and with the expert advice from the Extension Service at Auburn peach growers began to emphasize the quality of their product and "Chilton County Peaches are Tops" soon became much more than just a slogan.

Today, nearly every farm in the county is mainaining a peach orchard of some kind, and one can find them in almost every section of the county. However, more peaches are found around Maplesville, Thorsby and Clanton than in other sections of the area. In fact it is estimated that there are many more than a thousand acres of peaches being grown every year. The names of Golden Jubilee, Hiley, Hale Haven, Hale and Elberta mean greater cash to the farmer and to the visitor, the tourist and the folks at the consumer markets they mean better eating.

Many another crop has come to bolster the fact that Chilton County is the garden spot of the world. More than ten thousand acres are planted in various other fruits and vegetables, and from early spring until late fall there is a steady stream of fruits and vegetables streaming to the markets of the world. Strawberries, blackberries, tomatoes, bunch beans, pole beans, lima beans, squash, green corn, watermelons and other greens are grown in profitable abundance.

In Training In Georgia

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama Air and National Guardsmen are in training in Georgia from July 5 through 19.

Members of the 117th Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, are in training at Hunter Air Force Base, Savannah.

At the same time, some 35 miles outside of Savannah, the 142nd Anti-Aircraft Artillery, commanded by Col. John Sides, Mobile, is going through its exercises at Camp Stewart, Ga.

Both the Airmen and the Guardsmen travelled to their Georgia training centers via motor convoy.

Car Users Warned About Use For State

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has ordered state workers who are furnished State Automobiles not to use their own privately-owned cars for official travel.

He said it had been called to his attention that certain state employees who have state-owned vehicles assigned to them, for official use only, are using their private automobiles for official state travel. Later they submit an expense account and include in it an item of six cents for each mile travelled in the worker's privately-owned car.

In an executive order, Governor Persons said that in the future, workers with state cars, who use their own cars for official business, will not be reimbursed from state funds.

OUTSTANDING MERCHANT

AMON JONES

"Our farming friends have been most loyal to our city and we should do everything we can to promote their interests."

That is the thought that lies behind W. A. Jones, better known to his hundreds of friends as Amon Jones, owner and operator of the Jones Furniture Company, located on Clanton's main corner.

Before entering the furniture business Amon Jones was in the appliance and plumbing business. Soon after taking over the Jones Furniture Company, which was formerly the Luker Furniture Store, Amon Jones began to spread out until now he also operates a complete plumbing and plumbing fixture store as well as his furniture business.

Just as Chilton County has grown —so too—has the Jones Furniture Company and the Jones Plumbing business. Amon Jones has taken on many new lines of appliances and fixtures as well as being a dealer in many different lines of furniture, radios, refrigerators and home freezers.

Amon Jones is a native of Chilton County and is a part of a large family of boys who have made good in their home county. And like the other members of his family he believes in his home county and when asked to come forward and help with any civic project, Amon Jones is always on hand. He is a member of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and is vitally interested in this organization.

"For industry no position could be finer than that of Chilton County," says Mr. Jones. All our labor supply is of fine American stock. Our transportation is up-to-the-minute and of the finest. And the power supply is of abundance. Everything that goes to make up a good place for industry to develop and carry on is here for the asking," says Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones is married and owns his own home. He is a member of the Temple Church of Clanton.

Never use metal polishes or any kind of cleansing powder on a chromium finish. It is a soft metal and the plating wears off easily. For regular care, wash with a mild soap or other mild detergent and water, rinse well and dry with a soft cloth.

Kitchen Safety Outlined By Expert

THE kitchen is about the most important room in the house, but it is also the most dangerous place, especially for children.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, says it's best to keep children out of the kitchen while meals are being prepared. If this cannot be done, she suggests you do what is necessary to protect them. A play pen should be used for babies and an easy job, like setting the table, be given to the six-year-olds.

Proper use of the stove is another safety measure. If you have a wood burner, Miss Mitchell says it should be at least 12 inches from the window. When this isn't practical, make sure the curtains are well fastened so they won't dangle over the stove and catch on fire. All flooring and other combustible material within 18 inches of the stove should be insulated. Another point to keep in mind is to adjust the damper so deadly carbon monoxide gas will be carried off through the chimney.

Leaking fumes can be extremely dangerous to those who cook with gas. At the first smell of gas, turn off the burner and check the pilot to make sure it's on. Use a flashlight to look for leaks. If they cannot be found, open the doors and windows; then call a good service man. In case of large leaks, get out of the house immediately.

Miss Mitchell says correct use of kitchen tools and equipment prevents accidents. Such precautions as cutting away from the body, putting away the meat grinder, keeping sharp knives in a rack away from children, using can openers to open cans instead of knives, and drying foods that are to be cooked in deep fat may save lots of needless pain and expense.

Other safety measures are: keep poisons out of reach of children; open the far side of cooking utensils to prevent steam escaping into the face; wipe up grease, spilled water, and fruit peels promptly; tack the linoleum flat; center hot dishes on asbestos pads; place cords to prevent tripping, and turn pot handles parallel with surface of stove.

Your Tomato Crop Needs Plenty Fertilizer

By JOHN BAGBY
API Extension Horticulturist

TOMATO plants are heavy feeders and will remove large amounts of plant food from the soil; therefore, it pays to use a liberal amount of fertilizer if you expect to make maximum yields.

Research work at the API Experiment Station has shown that best results will be obtained by using 1000 to 1500 pounds of 6-8-4 plus 180 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent. Each farmer should determine the amount needed by the general fertility of the soil, amount of manure—animal or plant—turned under, and past fertilizer practices.

For the fall tomato crop, prepare land well ahead of planting. Two or more diskings about one week apart will help give a good smooth, firm seedbed and also help hold moisture. Apply one-half of the complete fertilizer 10 days to two weeks before planting, and the other half three weeks after planting. Extra nitrogen should be added when first clusters of fruit have formed or at the last cultivation.

Each tomato plant needs about 15 square feet of space. Width of rows and distance of plants in the row have no effect on yields provided plants have the required space. Spacings 4½ x 3⅓ feet, 5 x 3 feet, or 6 x 2½ feet should give equally satisfactory results. Use the spacing which best fits your equipment to be used for cultivating and dusting or spraying.

THEY'RE STILL BUSY—Alabama's county 4-H dress revue winners are busy these days getting ready for another big contest. They are making dresses to be worn in the state dress revue at Auburn early in July. Busy as a bee at her machine is pretty 15-year-old Yudora Farley of the Cedar Grove community in St. Clair County. Besides being a sewing expert, the Moody Jr. High student has done well with other projects, including home improvement, food preservation, and cooking. Yudora was named county 4-H rally queen, president of the county 4-H council, and selected dairy maid for the Moody Jr. High School this year. Yudora is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Farley.

LEAD SCHOOL GROUND IMPROVEMENT PROJECT—Sparks of beauty have been added to the grounds of the Crossville School in Lamar County. Striving to beautify the place where they learn how to make the best better, the 4-H Club girls and boys have spent lots of their spare time setting out shrubbery and keeping the lawn growing. What's more, the youngsters have marked the driveway with white four-by-four posts. Officers of the Crossville 4-H Clubs and their leaders are shown above, left to right, front row, Allen Jenkins, Brooks Perkins, Tallulah Randolph, Elizabeth Freeman, Jackie Mixon, and Peggy Jean Robertson. The Dress Factory

Home Sewing Cuts Clothing Bill

ALMOST anyone knows that clothes for two teen-age girls take a good portion of the family income, particularly when all have to be bought from a ready-to-wear store.

This fact is kept in mind by Mrs. Jones Owens, president of the Acton Home Demonstration Club in Shelby County. She cuts her family's clothing cost to a minimum by doing most of their sewing at home. It would be difficult to estimate the value of the clothing she has made for her two girls since school started last fall; however, she did some counting and found she had made during an eight-month period three suits, two skirts, two jumpers, 11 blouses, one evening dress, and 14 other dresses, two of which were two-piece garments.

Marian Cotney, home demonstration agent, said the sewing skill of Mrs. Owens not only shows up in more economical clothing, but that the clothes also fit better and in most cases are better made garments. She explained that one of the suits made by Mrs. Owens for $15 would have cost at least $45 at a store.

Although Mrs. Owens is kept pretty busy with her housekeeping and sewing chores, she never passes up an opportunity to help boys and girls. As 4-H adult leader, she has a wonderful chance to work with the youth of the community, and enjoys it very much.

FRESH FROM THE "SEWING FACTORY"—This two-piece dress which Annie Bell Owens (right) of Helena Rt. 1 in Shelby County is showing Home Demonstration Agent Marian Cotney was made by her mother, Mrs. Jones Owens, for only $15. Miss Cotney said the same dress would have cost at least $45 at a store. Mrs. Owens has made over 30 garments for her two daughters during the past eight months.

CUTTING THE COST—When Mrs. Jones Owens of Helena Rt. 1 starts to sew, the chances are pretty good that she will be making a dress for one of her two teen-age daughters. Since school started last fall, the Shelby County housewife has made more than 30 garments for her girls. Here she is working on an evening dress for Annie Bell. Mrs. Owens says she doesn't know how much money her sewing has saved, but is sure it is quite a sizeable amount.

Along the Way with

DIRECTOR, A&M EXTENSION SERVICE

AN old Chinese proverb reads: "A hundred men may make an encampment but it takes a woman to make a home."

To this Goethe added: "He is the happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home."

These two statements stand out as I write these lines about an organization that is also a movement. It consists of the home demonstration clubs of Alabama and all other states.

I'm writing about it now because we have just observed another annual home demonstration week. The theme this year, as before, was: "Today's home builds tomorrow's world."

The truth of this statement arouses inquiry as to the importance of the home demonstration movement in relation to the home, to society, and to the world.

This movement began with the greatest material necessity of people—food. Without food, life, of course, would soon be gone.

Pioneer home demonstrations, sponsored by home demonstration agents, were on food production and preservation. Each member took one-tenth of an acre, produced more and better tomatoes on it than they'd grown in the past, and canned them as part of the family food supply.

Then the movement spread to other foods, clothing, home furnishings, home management, consumer problems, and citizenship.

The latest addition on the home demonstration agenda is citizenship, which is broad and inclusive to fit the needs and activites of farm women in their local clubs and to the larger units.

These facts were emphasized at district meetings during 1953 over Alabama by Mrs. L. Chatterton, Greensboro, who is president of the Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Club Women. She discussed problems of farm women in relation to the international as well as the local and national situation.

In Alabama we're fortunate indeed to have 63,414 home demonstration club women working in 1,959 clubs in 67 counties.

Meetings of these clubs are forums for discussion and platforms for demonstrations. They enable members to exchange views and experiences, to participate in demonstrations, and to think and plan together on problems of citizenship at home and abroad.

During the first half century of home demonstration work, leaders and members clung to the basic fundamentals. Number one of these is the demonstration in foods, clothing, home furnishings, home management, and other things.

In this way they have remained firmly anchored to material needs, but have related these needs to better and richer living. As they have improved in their use of these things, they improved themselves in every way.

As I meet with and observe home demonstration women, I am impressed and inspired by the fact that it's great to live in a nation where such a movement, based on needs, upon science, and upon freedom, functions in its own way for the good of its members.

They are democracy in action, and a real democracy is pure political expression of Christianity. Thus we have in home demonstration clubs an expression of all human needs—physical, mental, spiritual.

AN UNDERGROUND FEED ROOM—To have plenty of home-grown feed for his dairy herd, J. M. Rowe Jr. of Vincent recently dug a trench silo that will hold 300 tons of silage. The huge storage room will be filled with chopped corn silage this summer and fed to the dairy animals during periods when other feed is short. The Shelby County farmer operates an 80-cow dairy on his 600-acre farm.

THE MILK FACTORY—Plenty of green grazing and good cows are the right combination for turning out lots of high quality milk. And on the J. M. Rowe Jr. dairy farm in Shelby County oats are used to do the trick. Part of his herd is shown grazing on peaceful pasture in the Vincent community while Rowe proudly watches.

PLANTING THE SILAGE CROP—Corn is used on the J. M. Rowe Jr. dairy farm to provide plenty of good home raised feed for his milkers. Here Pfister 631 is being planted to furnish silage for the Shelby County dairy herd this year. The corn receives 500 pounds of 0-14-14 at planting and 400 pounds of ammonium nitrate as a side-dressing per acre. Rowe says the 40-acre field will make enough silage to fill his 300-ton trench silo.

With most crops laid by, July is a good time to plan for getting a cover of green on every acre you possibly can in late summer and fall. Arrangements should be made for winter legume, clover, grass seed and small grain, and fertilizer.

SHE LIKES THEM ALL—A champion grower of champion animals—that just about describes Mildred Johnson of Hardaway. The 14-year-old Macon County 4-H Club member started with two dairy calves in 1946 and since that time has carried more than 40 dairy and beef calf and hog projects. The 9th grade Tuskegee High student has been a successful contestant in many livestock events, exhibiting the individual grand champion at the Montgomery Hog Show in 1949, the reserve in 1951 and again in 1953, and the grand champion pen of three animals this year. Above, Mildred displays some of the prizes won by her at various livestock shows. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Johnson.

Farm Life Proves Pleasant And Profitable

THE wide-open spaces and a busy farm life have a wonderful attraction for some city folks.

Testimony to this fact was given near Vincent the other day by a progressive and successful young dairyman who was reared in Alabama's biggest city.

The farmer is J. M. Rowe Jr., who never gave up the idea of one day moving to the country on a farm of his own. To be prepared for the business of farming, he studied agriculture at API for nine quarters.

In 1947 Rowe bought a 600-acre farm near Vincent in Shelby County and started a grade A dairy business with 27 cows. Since then he has increased that number to 170, including the heifers being raised for herd replacements.

Raising plenty of home-grown feed is given first consideration on the Rowe farm, for he knows that's the best way to have a good part of his milk check left each month. His feed program consists of grazing crops, silage, and protein supplement.

Silage is one of the main crops because it can be stored and used at any time, and especially during periods when other feed is short. For the silage crop, Rowe recently dug a trench silo that will hold 300 tons. Plans are to have another the same size next fall. The huge storage room that was completed in the early spring will be filled with chopped corn silage this summer.

Planted in April, the silage crop receives 500 pounds of 0-14-14 broadcast at planting and a side-dressing of 400 pounds of ammonium nitrate on each acre. The plants are spaced nine inches in the drill to produce a large tonnage of feed.

Grazing crops are also given special attention on the Rowe farm. The cows feast on oats, ryegrass, white dutch clover, and crimson clover in winter and on dallis grass, white clover, sericea, and sudan grass in summer.

Always a problem with dairymen is raising herd replacements; however, on the Rowe farm this job is taken care of in good style by A. J. Fretwell. He raises the calves on nurse cows, and sprays the barn once a week to control diseases. Rowe said nurse cows get calves off to a good start and are less trouble, while spraying the barn cuts calf losses to a minimum. He commented that about 50 per cent of the calf crop was being lost before the barn spraying program was started.

Evidence of the good job being done on the dairy farm is found in the fact that Rowe's cows are averaging three gallons per day the year around.

Before installing a water system with an electric pump, make a check to be sure that the water supply is safe and adequate. More water will be used when pumped with an electric motor than when drawn by hand. An additional well or cistern may be required to supplement the existing supply.

Early corn should be ready for your hogs this month. They should have kudzu, o-too-tan soybeans, alfalfa, or other good legumes to graze while on corn. When early corn is hogged off, prepare the soil for seeding to a winter grazing crop.

On The Farm

To Prevent Accidents, Be Careful Around Machinery

By J. T. GAILLARD
Specialist in Farm Mechanization

LESS spectacular perhaps than many other accident hazards, but just as dangerous, are moving belts, power take-offs, shafts, or other moving parts of farm machinery. These hazards are responsible for many deaths and injuries every year.

A good rule to remember is that machines have tremendous power for doing work but have no sympathy for you.

It's your responsibility to prevent accidents by keeping the tractor and other machinery in safe operating condition, with all shields and protective coverings over moving parts in place. Look at the gearshift lever before cranking the tractor or other power unit by hand. Be sure it's out of gear before attempting to start the engine.

A tractor is built to carry only one person, so don't take on extra passengers in the field or on the highway. Children do not realize the danger of farm machinery; therefore, adults should protect them by keeping them off tractors or pulled equipment. Above all, never treat a tractor or other farm machine as a toy.

Watch cigarettes and open flames, such as a lantern, when filling the fuel tank. And never fill a tank while the engine is running or very hot. Too, remember the place for tractor fuel, oils, and greases is in a fuel storage building and not in the barn.

Occasional adjustments are necessary, but be sure the machine is out of gear—or better still, shut off—when adjustments are being made. Inspection holes and plates should be painted a contrasting color, such as red, yellow, or striped, to warn you that you may lose your hand or foot if it's put inside while the machine is in operation.

Be very cautious while driving a tractor on highways. In 90 per cent of the automobile-tractor collisions, the tractor driver is injured or killed. Most motorists consider a tractor a very slow moving object and do not expect it to make quick turns onto or off the highway. As a tractor operator, you should follow safe vehicle operation rules while on the highway, indicating turns and stops with arm signals and looking carefully before entering a road. A red flag mounted on the tractor or pulled equipment will warn motorists of possible danger. Never drive on a highway or other road without proper headlights and red tail lights.

HOGS are versatile!

Although they can adapt themselves to most conditions, they fare badly in real hot weather. The reason is simple: An average market hog has a blanket of fat averaging about one and a half inches thick wrapped around him. Compare that with the same thickness of woolen blankets on a scorching day and you can imagine how his temperature goes up.

Research has shown that hogs make faster gains on less feed when the temperature is between 60 and 75 degrees. Hog men can't provide air conditioning, but they should furnish the best cooling system possible so their animals will make the most economical gains.

As shotes go onto corn fields this summer, remember that shade is a great feed saver. A clean spring branch close by is about as good for them as an old fashioned "wash hole" was for a bare footed country boy. Clean, sanitary wallows are good; however, it's better to have no wallows with plenty of shade than to use stagnated, parasite infested water holes.

If plenty of shade trees are not close to the corn, supplement, and water, brush arbors make good inexpensive shade.

The important thing is to keep feed, water, and shade close together. A well fed pig spends most of his time eating, sleeping, and drinking. He isn't lazy, but if the shade is a long way from the feed and water, he will postpone leaving it as long as possible. The result, of course, is low feed consumption and slow gain.

It's been said that a well fed pig eats a little, drinks a little, and naps a little. While napping, he dreams he is hungry so he gets up and begins eating again.

So it's good business to make your shotes' eating, sleeping and drinking convenient and comfortable. This will help push them off to market as tops before the Midwest market rush starts in October and forces down hog prices.

Timber owners should contact several mill operators before selling their logs. Often sawmills 30 to 40 miles from the timber will bid. Don't depend entirely on the market in the immediate vicinity. Competitive bidding will bring higher prices.

USE surplus oats or other grain to creep feed beef calves for an earlier market and a better grade. While nursing their mothers, the calves make faster and cheaper gains on grain than at any other time of their lives. Locate creeps near shade and water.

MARKET top calves from the herd this month. These calves will sell for more dollars while they still have their milk bloom. Also, by marketing now the early calving cows will get a longer rest period.

REMOVE bulls from the cow herd by July 1 to keep from getting summer calves. If bulls are in a run-down condition, give them a limited ration of oats and some corn along with their regular pasture. This will insure a better calf crop next year. Remove cows with heifer calves six months and older from the regular herd to prevent heifers being bred too early.

GOOD soil preparation is a "must" if you expect to get and hold good stands of crops like crimson clover, alfalfa, and permanent pasture mixtures to be seeded this summer or early fall. If the land has not been turned, this job should be done at once in most parts of the state. Let the land remain in the rough until rains come. Then disk and harrow enough to control weeds and grass and to get a firm seedbed.

STORE your combine harvester under a shed. Remove all seed and chaff from the cylinder, straw racks, and around the elevating canvas. After it is cleaned thoroughly, it should be tightened, checked for worn and loose parts, and greased. All worn or broken parts should be replaced immediately.

TO control peach tree borers, use 4 pounds of 50 per cent wettable DDT to 50 gallons of water (¼ pound to 3 gallons). Spray the trunks of trees from the ground up to a little above the main branches with a low pressure sprayer, or paint on with a brush. Three applications are necessary and should be applied about July 1, Aug. 1, and Sept. 1.

OVERGRAZING kudzu results in thin stands and often in complete destruction of the stand. The crop is overgrazed when remaining growth does not cover the ground. Kudzu that has been grazed down in May and June should have a chance to recover before the dry weather in August and September. The growth made during this time can be grazed off after the first frost.

THE heavy flow of milk earlier this year created problems for many dairymen. But right now you should be looking forward to the late summer and fall marketing season. Remember the short milk supply and the extremely heavy demand last fall? Come next September you will probably again have a high demand for all the good quality milk that you can produce.

FIGHTING FOR SUNSHINE—When heavy rains of the past spring packed peanut fields on Max Blackburn's farm, it was mighty hard for the seedlings to push through the soil. Nevertheless, Blackburn has a good stand on his 60 acres of peanuts. The crop was planted the last of April on a well prepared seedbed and fertilized with 375 pounds of 4-10-7. He hopes to beat his half-ton per acre yield of last year if rains hit his crops at the right time. Looking at a young peanut plant that has just pushed through the packed soil are J. W. Langford (left), assistant county agent, and Blackburn.

Peanuts For Oil Are A Profitable Crop

THERE'S a wealth of oil under some soils in South Alabama! And you don't have to be one of a privileged few to own a tract of the land. Neither does it take a geologist with lots of expensive equipment to find the oil.

Almost every farmer has some of this wealth clearly located with green markers that dot his fields. The oil we are talking about is in peanuts. Although less spectacular than a gushing oil well, this crop has paid off mortgages on many farms.

One oil farmer is Max Blackburn of Brundidge Rt. 2, who planted 60 acres of the crop this spring. Allotted only 43 acres for commercial peanuts, Blackburn explains that the rest of the crop will be harvested by market hogs. Last year the Pike County farmer dug 26 tons from a 43-acre field.

Blackburn gets his peanut crop off to a good start by fertilizing it with 350 to 400 pounds of 4-10-7 at planting. To control weeds, the Southeast Alabama farmer hoes his crop once and plows it about five times —more often if wet weather increases weed growth.

Blackburn recalls that when he replaced his mules with two tractors 11 years ago his main crop was cotton; peanuts were grown as a sideline. Now peanuts are the main cash crop, and cotton is grown only on halves with tenants—Blackburn furnishes the land and fertilizer. Although hogs have always been a part of this farmer's operations, they became a bigger money-maker after the shift from cotton to peanuts.

In the past, about 75 to 100 head of shotes have harvested extra peanuts plus an additional 50 acres of corn. Starting this year, Blackburn plans to finish out about 50 market hogs each year as part of his balanced farming program which includes peanuts, hogs, and beef cattle.

The Pike County farmer, who believes in diversification, has already started his beef herd. He has 47 head of animals that have been raised during the past three years, and plans are to increase this number to 75 brood cows soon.

TWO-ROW WEED KILLER—Although Max Blackburn of Brundidge Rt. 2 hoes his peanut crop only one time, he does a good job of controlling weeds with his two-row tractor equipped with solid sweeps. Blackburn has 17 acres of peanuts and 50 acres of corn that are harvested by 50 market hogs. Another 43 acres of peanuts are dug for oil, and 20 acres of corn is pulled and stored for winter livestock feed by the Pike County farmer. Blackburn is shown plowing his peanut crop after a heavy rain this summer.

Blackburn explained that falling prices of beef cattle don't worry him too much because he has grown into the business. In fact, he has saved all heifer calves, and what's more, money from steers he's sold has been used to buy more heifers.

Grazing crops for the cattle and hog herd include 20 acres of crimson clover and ryegrass, 15 acres of sericea, seven acres of kudzu, and 10 acres of native grasses.

Watch Your Step

Better Light Will Prevent Falls

IT'S possible to fall by slipping on a banana peel on Main Street, but William T. Cox, API Extension farm building specialist, says your chances of taking a tumble in the home are much greater.

Cox says that adequate light in the yard and on stairs, where about 40 per cent of the accidents occur, is particularly necessary. He explains that a projector flood lamp mounted on the house or garage should be used to light up a path of safety at night. The light should be mounted so that it shines downward and not into the eyes.

Good lighting is also needed at entrances to the house and on stairs. Stair lights, controlled by wall switches at the head and foot, will prevent many needless falls.

Inside the house a switch near the entrance door—not behind it—will instantly light the hall to disclose an object that might be in your pathway. Then, to prevent stumbling over the coffee table or sending a table lamp crashing to the floor as you try to find a light in the living room, you should have a ceiling fixture or other light that can be turned on at the entrance door. If the living room is lighted only by floor and table lamps, have at least one of them plugged into a wall outlet that is controlled by a convenient entrance wall switch.

MORE SUMMER EGGS. Pullets started in December, January, and February are now ready to go into the laying house. The pullets are your real bank account so give them preference. Don't make the mistake of leaving yearling hens in the laying house just because they are still in production. The old hens will be profitable for three to four months yet, so move them to temporary quarters—a laying shelter or range shelter will serve their needs.

Use night lights to get top production out of the old hens when they are moved. Suspend the light to shine on the roosting and feeding areas. A 15-watt bulb for each 40 to 50 hens should be used at first and the size increased to a 25, a 40 and a 60-watt light as the fall progresses.

BULK FEED STORAGE. A new feed storage system is being introduced in the poultry business. It's bulk storage of feed on the farm.

Although farmers must provide storage bins to use this feeding system, it has several advantages over bagged feed. First, it reduces feed cost about $3 per ton. It eliminates lifting and opening feed bags, reduces loss to rats, and makes inspecting of feed easy.

One problem of the bulk feeding system is the lack of scales on which farmers may check the feed load. Poultrymen who use this method of handling their feed should make sure it's weighed on scales certified by state agencies.

A report from the U. S. Department of Agriculture indicates there will be a considerable drop in the number of turkeys produced in 1953. According to the report, 19 per cent less poults are being started this year than in 1952. Hatcheries had produced 11 per cent fewer birds of the heavy breeds and 28 per cent fewer of the light breeds by May 1 than at the same date last year. They also had 11 per cent fewer eggs in incubators May 1. Moreover, the turkey supply in storage is moving out rapidly, and the consumption of turkey meat is up. All this points to a good turkey market for turkeys in the fall.

Now is the time to take advantage of this situation and start some poults for the Christmas market.

COOL water helps a chicken stay cool, while hot water either keeps the bird from drinking enough or may actually raise its temperature. This is why it's important to have pipe lines leading into the chicken house placed deep enough in the ground to keep the water cool.

SOMETHING TO BE PROUD OF—Always eager to show off his replacement Hereford heifers is K. N. Murchison (right) of Tallassee Rt. 1. The Elmore County farmer, a great believer in the value of a thorough crop and fertilization program, explains to Assistant County Agent V. L. Keeble how he keeps 24 grade and 26 purebred Herefords grazing most all the time and cultivates nearly 60 acres of cropland.

Murchison's 10 acres of corn, planted in mid-April, got 600 pounds of 4-10-7 at planting time and six weeks later at lay-by time was side-dressed with 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate.

The cattleman's pasture also gets a generous annual supply of fertilizer. The Summer grazing acres, consisting of white dutch clover, dallis grass, sericea, kobe lespedeza, and other native grasses have an application of 500 pounds of 0-14-14 each March. The cotton field receives the same fertilization as the corn, except that the side-dressing is only 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate. Last year a bale was picked from every two acres.

Recipe For June

POTATOES, one of America's favorite energy foods, are plentiful this year. And what's more, the housewife will find them economical, says Mary Hulsey, API Extension food specialist.

Miss Hulsey says potato salad, an old favorite, is delicious and very wholesome. It deserves to be attractive and flavorful, though —not too dry, not too mushy, nor tasteless. So here's a recipe, designed especially to please the whole family. Ingredients for four servings are:

Three cups of cubed cooked potatoes, chilled; 1 tablespoon of minced onion; 1 cup of thick salad dressing; 1 teaspoon of salt; ¼ cup of chopped green pepper; ½ cup of finely cut celery; ¼ cup of chopped pickles or cucumber.

To make: Gently mix potatoes, onion, dressing, and salt, taking care to blend well yet not break up the potatoes. Chill the mixture until serving time. Then add the rest of the ingredients, mixing lightly and adding more dressing, if needed. Serve on lettuce garnished with tomatoes cut in wedges.

Many people like sliced hard-cooked eggs with potato salad, or deviled eggs in the border arrangement with the tomato wedges.

One point to remember about potato salad is that it should always be kept cold until served. Potato salad taken on picnics or in lunch boxes can't safely wait in a warm place without danger of food poisoning.

MADE RAPID PROGRESS—Viola Beard, a Troy Senior 4-H Club member, was rewarded for her sewing ability when she took top honors in the county dress revue last year. The Pike County 4-H'er had previously won third in 1951 and second in 1952. Since she became a 4-H member four years ago, Viola has won many honors. She was named first place individual county talent contest winner this year and last year; and best camper, best swimmer, and best sport at the county 4-H camp last year. The Pike County girl has also served as president of her local club for two years and song leader for a year.

With hot weather just around the corner, egg quality will drop unless poultrymen take the necessary steps to cool their eggs and keep them cool.

A good underground storage pit will hold eggs at a satisfactory temperature for a few days, points out John Weeks, API Extension poultryman. This pit is very good to use with small flocks of from 300 to 500 hens. On larger poultry farms a mechanically refrigerated room is better.

Things You Should Know About Snakes

SUMMERTIME is barefoot time and a period of the year normally taken for vacation. It is also the time to be on the lookout for snakes.

There are only four types of poisonous snakes found in Alabama which include six distinct species. They are the copperhead, the water moccasin, the coral snake, the timber rattler, the pigmy rattler, and the Florida diamondback. All these snakes, with the exception of the coral snake, are pit vipers and strike with fangs. The coral snake chews on its victims.

There are possibly 35 or 40 species of nonpoisonous snakes, but many of them mimic the deadly ones. The safest way to avoid snake bite is to wear boots when wading in water or hiking through timber. Water snakes like those ponds where banks and shallow water produce thick weeds. All water snakes should be killed, since most people do not know the difference between the water moccasin and the non-poisonous reptiles.

Should you or a friend get snake bitten here are five things to do:

1. Keep victim quiet.
2. Sterilize a sharp knife blade with a burning match and cut X's one-fourth inch deep in each fang puncture.
3. Tie a tourniquet above the bite, if on the arm or leg.
4. Apply suction to the wound if there are no sores in the mouth.
5. Get the victim to a doctor or bring a doctor. Do not make the victim walk.

National Farm Safety Week

NATIONAL Farm Safety Week will be observed throughout the nation July 19-29.

"The purpose of setting this week aside," says P. O. Davis, API Extension director, "is to reduce the tragic farm accident toll by urging every farm family to adopt safe practices of living, working, and playing throughout the year."

He asserts that nowhere is the problem of safety more important than on the farm. One-fourth of all on-the-job work deaths occur in agriculture, and one-fourth of all home accidental deaths occur in farm homes. A total of 15,000 farm people lose their lives in accidents each year. The seriousness of the situation is further emphasized by the fact that less than one-fourth of the total U. S. population lives on farms.

You and every member of your family should put into effect this simple, three-point safety program: (1) Learn to recognize and hunt out accident and fire hazards on the farm. (2) Correct or remove all hazards possible. (3) Learn to live, play, and work safely around hazards that cannot be removed.

"In addition to deaths," reveals Mr. Davis, "1,300,000 farm people are injured in rural accidents each year. The time loss resulting from these accidents is estimated to be 25,000 man days, enough effort to produce the nation's wheat crop. Therefore, the cost of farm accidents runs into hundreds of millions of dollars each year, not to mention the suffering and unhappiness they cause.

"It should be remembered that fire alone destroys $100,000,000 worth of farm property each year.

"With these facts in mind, let's plan to make every week farm safety week."

Rescue is another very promising new grass. It is a perennial under some conditions and an annual reseeding grass under others. Texas 46 and Chapel Hill varieties look best in the API Experiment Station tests.

Be sure that pullets on range have plenty of shade so they will not crowd themselves and start feather-picking and cannibalism. If enough range shelter cannot be provided, a brush arbor built on poles or poultry netting will help. It is important to keep pullets away from areas where adult poultry has ranged.

All calves and yearlings not vaccinated for blackleg should have this treatment at once. This disease is soil-borne and can be carried from one pasture to another in numerous ways. Cattle are likely to pick it up more readily when grazing short pasture. We still have too much loss in Alabama from blackleg. Use the double-dose treatment that immunizes for blackleg and malignant edema. This is a disease similar to blackleg and cannot be distinguished by field examination.

SAVING THE SURPLUS—R. W. Kent of Siluria and his grandson, Douglas Jr., look over a field of fescue, orchard grass, and ladino clover to be cut for silage. Although this is the first time Kent has attempted to save surplus pasture crops as silage, he has confidence in the feed and will fill a 300-ton silo. Kent moved to his 550-acre farm in Shelby County 23 years ago, and he and his sons have operated a dairy since that time. They have a 95-cow operation.

Expert Outlines How To Fertilize Alfalfa Crop

J. C. LOWERY, API Extension agronomist, says to follow good fertilizer practices to alfalfa success.

Black Belt

Alfalfa is recommended only on lime soils of this area that require no additional lime. Fertilizers are used at the following rates:

Establishment Per Acre	Annual Maintenance Per Acre
100 lb. P_2O_5	100 lb. P_2O_5
20-25 lb. borax	20-25 lb. borax

These amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O, and borax can be obtained from approximately 900 pounds per acre of an 0-12-20 fertilizer (with borax), or from 500 pounds of superphosphate, 300 pounds of muriate of potash, and 20 to 25 pounds of borax.

Gulf Coast and Lower Coastal Plains

Establishment Per Acre	Annual Maintenance Per Acre
4 tons lime	140 lb. P_2O_5
140 lb. P_2O_5	240 lb. K_2O
20-25 lb. borax

These amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O, and borax can be obtained from about 1200 pounds of an 0-12-20 fertilizer per acre (with borax) or from 700 pounds of superphosphate, 400 pounds of muriate of potash, and 20 to 25 pounds of borax.

Upper Coastal Plain, Piedmont Sand Mountain, and Coosa River Valley

Establishment Per Acre	Annual Maintenance Per Acre
20-25 lb. borax

The above amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O, and borax can be obtained by using about 900 pounds per acre of an 0-12-20 mixed fertilizer (with borax). About 500 pounds of superphosphate, 300 pounds of muriate of potash, and 20 to 25 pounds of borax will supply the recommended amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O, and boron.

Tennessee Valley

(a) Red Soils

Establishment Per Acre	Annual Maintenance Per Acre
2 tons lime	100 lb. P_2O_5
20-25 lb. borax

These amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O, and borax can be obtained by using 800 pounds of 0-12-20 fertilizer (with borax) per acre, or by using 500 pounds of superphosphate, 250 pounds of muriate of potash, and 20 to 25 pounds of borax.

(b) Gray Soils

Establishment Per Acre	Annual Maintenance Per Acre
3 tons lime	120 lb. P_2O_5

These amounts of P_2O_5, K_2O and borax can be obtained by using 1000 pounds of 0-12-20 fertilizer (with borax) per acre, or by using 600 pounds of superphosphate, 325 pounds of muriate of potash, and 20 to 25 pounds of borax.

THE STARTING POINT—Recent regulations passed by the Alabama Crop Improvement Association require all seed processing plants cleaning certified seed to meet certain minimum specifications. A plant owner must make application for a certificate of eligibility and agree to abide by the organization's regulations. Here Robert Ethridge Jr., plant manager for the Piedmont Seed Processing Plant in Lee County, makes application for such a certificate.

THE NEXT STEP—Making certain plant facilities are in good shape is the second step in getting ready to clean certified seed. Here elevators are being checked to make sure there will be a minimum of mixing while the cleaning operation goes on. County Agent Jack Taylor (left), Lee County agent, and Henry Jackson (right), a co-owner of the Piedmont Processing Plant in Opelika, watches Jackson's plant get the first inspection by Melvin Moorer, chief field inspector, after the new rule went into effect.

READY TO GO—With inspection complete and everything in order, the plant is ready to start processing seed. After the plant is passed by the inspector, its operator is given a certificate authorizing him to clean certified seed. Frank Jackson (right), receives a certificate for his plant from Ralph R. Jones, secretary of the Alabama Crop Improvement Association.

For Farmers

Better Seed Are On Their Way

ANOTHER step recently taken by the Alabama Crop Improvement Association will raise the quality of certified seed produced in this state. Ralph R. Jones, API Extension Service seed crops specialist, says the new regulations required of custom seed processors who are cleaning certified seed will help safeguard the product all the way from the breeder to the user.

Jones said H. Owen Murfee, Jr., president of the farmer controlled certifying agency, announced the new regulations requiring all custom processors to be approved by the association before they are eligible to process certified seed. Before approval is given to any plant, Murfee says certain minimum requirements must be met. Some are:

1. The plant must be equipped with the necessary machinery and other facilities to do a good processing job of seed to be handled.

2. The plant must be of such size to provide ample space for machinery, storage, and working area.

3. All machinery, conveyors, elevators, and storage bins must be constructed and installed to permit thorough cleaning.

4. Processors must agree to properly tag or otherwise identify all certified seed when they are received and to retain the identity of seed during the time they are in his possession.

5. Lots of certified seed must be handled while in possession of the processor to prevent mechanical mixing.

6. Processors must clean all processing equipment, including elevators and conveyors, between processing different lots of certified seed.

7. The processor must keep a complete record on all certified seed which he processes.

Commenting further on these regulations Murfee says his group knows that plant personnel plays a big part in the kind of cleaning job done; therefore, no plant will be approved which does not have capable operators.

Jones points out that the new processing measures being put into effect were adopted to strengthen the superior qualities of certified seed. To many, he says, it seemed negligent for a certifying agency to guard against varietial mixtures during the production of seed and then take no steps to guard their purity during the processing operations. He predicts that the new regulations will give added demand for certified seed.

Jones went on to say that the seed plants, about 30 commercial organizations, have been very cooperative in working out the program. After inspection and approval, the processor is given a certificate which authorizes him to process certified seed.

Fall Irish potatoes are a risky crop. Studies at Auburn indicate that risks may be reduced by the following: planting on a moist but well-drained bottom land; growing the Triumph or Sebago variety; using seed dug long enough for "rest period" to be broken; preparing the land and applying fertilizer 3 or 4 weeks in advance of planting; planting on a cloudy day; opening the furrow, planting seed, and covering immediately; mulching with pine or grain straw; dusting for blight and insects; irrigating if on a dry site.

CHEMICAL TREATMENT OF GRASS AND LEGUME FORAGE SEED for control of seed and soil-borne diseases has proved profitable in securing and maintaining a stand. Results of tests conducted for the last 2 years indicate that stands may be increased 10 to 15 per cent by treating seed of these crops with fungicides such as Arasan, Spergon, Phygon, etc. Other tests have shown that these materials do not interfere with nodulation of legumes.

FOR HIGH QUALITY CANNED TOMATO JUICE use well-colored, vine-ripened tomatoes. After washing and trimming the tomatoes, heat them very rapidly to a low simmer and pass them through a fine screen to remove seed and skins. Pack the hot juice in clean cans or jars, salt, seal, process for 10 minutes in a boiling water bath, and cool.

SOIL TESTING has been available to Alabama farmers since Feb. 1, 1953. By May 1; 1,900 soil samples had been analyzed for acidity, available phosphorus, available potassium and lime requirement. Of the samples analyzed so far from all parts of Alabama, 30 per cent were low in phosphorus, 60 per cent were low in potassium and 44 per cent showed a lime requirement of ¾ to 1½ tons of lime per acre.

BOLLWORM is the second most important cotton pest in Alabama. Experiments have shown that DDT is the most effective insecticide for the control of this insect. Toxaphene is also effective. Of the newer materials on the market, endrin is the only one which is effective against this pest. Application of all insecticides should be made when the worms are small.

CHEMICAL TREATMENT OF SMALL GRAIN SEED, such as oats, wheat, and barley, is good insurance in maintaining a stand by controlling seed-borne and soil-borne diseases. Experiments have proved the value of planting treated seed. In general, organic mercurial fungicides such as Ceresan M. Agrox, and Panogen, have been more effective in disease control than other organic materials such as Arasan, and Spergon.

TREE GROWTH ACCUMULATES LIKE INTEREST ON MONEY. A sound, fast-growing tree adds a layer of new wood every year. This added growth may be compared with interest on money in the bank. From experimental forestry plots, it has been determined that this wood growth considerably exceeds the usual rates of interest paid by banks. This does not hold true for trees that are defective, over-mature, or of undesirable species.

FARMERS SELLING MILK FOR MANUFACTURE raise a greater proportion of their herd replacements than do farmers who sell grade A milk. Preliminary results from studies in the Piedmont Area of Alabama indicate that about 90 per cent of replacements on farms producing milk for manufacture were raised on these farms, whereas, more than half of the replacements for grade A herds in this area were purchased.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We just have to say a few words about the wonderful work the Chilton County News force did on our special edition that we published Tuesday. We believe most of the honors for that edition should go to Vernon Payne. Vernon drew up all the ad lay-outs, drew the cartoons, helped sell advertising, wrote heads, and an even 100 things that are necessary to the publishing of an issue like that. Of course Bob Taber worked like a dog holding up his end of the work and in-between times contributing to the success of the Sixth Peach Festival by handling most of the publicity. The boys in the "shop" all worked tirelessly and sometimes around the clock to make the issue possible and our deepest appreciation for their loyalty and cooperation is expressed.

We stated Tuesday that M. C. (Jack) Hayes had gone after his seeing-eye dog, but we learned later that he leaves this week end. When Jack told us he was leaving we understood him to mean he was leaving immediately. Alice says she hopes he will return with his new dog within three or four weeks. Let's be optimistic and hope he gets through in a hurry, too.

John DeRamus was just telling us that he had never seen anything like the way the buyers in Northern and Eastern markets are waiting for Chilton County Peaches. They are days behind and just can't fill the orders fast enough. Some of the big trailer trucks wait three and four days until they can get loaded to start North. Reports are that our peaches are bringing the best prices and the buyers don't want anything but Chilton County peaches. Now those fellows are getting smart.

Compliments have come in from all sides about our special Peach Festival Edition of Chilton County News and we do appreciate all of those kind words. They help take some of the corns off our hands and other places for our efforts in publishing it.

Wilson Bryant of Clanton Route 4 brought a bird of a bird in for us to see Wednesday morning. The "bird" measured 66 inches from wing-tip to wing-tip. Wilson said it was an eagle, but being very unfamiliar with eagles, we couldn't say. We've seen a few on loose change in our pocket over the past few years, but not many. Wilson said his 13-year-old son, Milton Bryant, shot the bird at their home. Whatever it was, we'll tell you one thing—it was a bird.

Better tell you this one before we sign off. The little boy was getting a bawling out from his father for playing hooky from school: "What makes you do this thing?" The father asked. "I do not know," returned the child, "unless it's class hatred."

MRS. DOLLIE A. WILSON

Mrs. Dollie Adoline Wilson, age 73, of Jemison Route 2, died July 1 at 11 p.m. at the home of a son, Ed Wilson. Funeral services were held from Archers Chapel at 2:00 p.m. Friday, conducted by Rev. Brasher Northcutt. Interment in church cemetery.

GAMMA GLOBULIN NEEDED BY RED CROSS

With the polio epidemic nearing its peak, the need for Gamma Globulin is becoming acute. The American Red Cross, which collects the blood from which Gamma Globulin is processed, calls on Chilton County to assist in the collection of more human blood.

Thirty thousand doses of Gamma Globulin—processed from blood given through the Red Cross by 30,000 volunteer doners, was recently used in Montgomery to inoculate every child under 10 years of age in that city, in an effort to combat a threatened polio epidemic. This GG was packaged at Red Cross expense, with the doses costing approximately $100,000.

Although there was enough Gamma Globulin available to inoculate the children in Montgomery, the supply is becoming alarmingly low. The collection of blood must be stepped up immediately if the vital serum is to be on hand for other epidemic areas. The Red Cross stresses the fact that polio could very easily strike at the children and adults of Chilton County. If such a tragedy occurred, it would be the Gamma Globulin element of human blood which would be needed to prevent paralysis. For this reason, the Red Cross is urging every man and women in Chilton County to answer the call for blood.

The next visit of the Blood Mobile is scheduled for July 31, Rev. R. E. Wilkins, Blood Recruitment Chairman, announces that it will collect blood from Maplesville on this visit. Mrs. Ray Stremming, wife of the owner of the Stremming Veneer Company, has been appointed as local chairman and will be responsible for getting donors from Maplesville and surrounding communities.

The need for human blood is greater than ever before. In addition to being used to secure Gamma Globulin, it will also be used for the boys in Korea and for civilian emergency use. Make your plans now to give blood when the Blood Mobile comes to Maplesville on July 31. Contact Rev. R. E. Wilkins in Clanton, Mrs. Ray Stremming in Maplesville, or call your American Red Cross office at 216 in Clanton. The need is urgent. Volunteer today!

Chilton County and all it's people settled down and got back to the regular routine again yesterday after one of the most successful Peach Festivals of it's history.

And as the rest of the county relaxed and discussed last Wednesday's festivities, Chilton County's bearer of prize peaches and good will prepared for two big days in the nation's capitol where she will meet and present to the Assistant to the President, Sherman T. Adams, the prize bushel of peaches.

Almost immediately after the ceremonies Wednesday afternoon, which were conducted under a broiling sun in Clanton's City Park, beaming Miss Patricia (Pat) Broadhead was rushed to Birmingham's airport, there to board an airliner with her mother and sail through the skies to Washington, D.C., where she landed the same night about 9:30.

As the parade began to organize in Thorsby early Wednesday morning many of the officials and spectators alike feared for the weather as big black clouds began to gather. However, the rain was limited to the Clanton area and by the time the parade arrived in Clanton the skies had cleared.

Starting almost on schedule the parade arrived in Clanton ahead of time which gave parade officials plenty of time to place the floats in the ball park. The parade was well-handled and policed by highway police on motorcycles and in patrol cars under the direction of the safety chairman. Sheriff Luther Kendrick, James Carl Martin was also on hand with an ambulance for first aid emergencies.

As the parade reached Clanton the crowd thickened and the streets were lined several deep to watch the colorful floats and the many bands marching.

As the festival procession organized itself at the ball park a welcome address was given by the General Chairman of the Festival, R. guests from many parts of the state L. (Dick) Scott. Introduction of were then presented and the coronation was conducted. The Queen was presented with many gifts from organizations from throughout the state as well as a new mattress from Tiffin Furniture Store.

The principle speaker for the day was Rep. Carl Harrison of Columbiana, and he was followed on the program by the auctioning off of the prize peaches. The whole crowd was then treated by a delicious barbecue under the trees in the park and under the able direction of the master of the culinary, Cecil Ramsey.

The afternoon was again started off with band concert and a show by a hillbilly band from the Air Force at Craig Field, Selma. A baseball game finished out the day of celebration.

The prize peach winners were:

Bushels — First, H. O. Headley, Halehaven; Second, A. J. Scott, Southland; Third, A. D. Headley, also Southlands.

Half-bushels—First, A. S. Scott, Southland; Second, E. S. Chasteen, Elberta; Third, E. S. Chasteen, Halehaven.

KEY TO FAR EAST

Chester Bowles, former Ambassador to India, hit the nail on the head recently in discussing the critical situation in the Far East when he pointed out that the people of the three states of French Indo-China will not put their hearts into the war against Communism if they believe victory would only mean continued French domination. He points out that the people of these three countries are entitled to an answer to the question of what will happen to them and their aspirations for independence after the war with the Communists.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee only recently recommended the French promise Indo-China self-rule. Therefore Mr. Bowles' argument is one more solid indication that French colonialism, and resulting resentment of many of the natives, is a major reason why the war in Indo-China has not been won in seven years of fighting.

It is vital for Americans to realize that Asians desire their own freedom, just as the American colonists in the thirteen colonies did, in 1777. If the United States does not put pressure on France to grant self-rule in Indo-China, or fails to understand the psychology involved in the present war—and the way the Communists are using Asian nationalist aspirations to further their own cause—the democracies will probably continue to lose allies and countries in the Far East.

THE RISING DEBT

There have been many warnings from economists recently that consumer debt, or the total debt of the American economy, was expanding too rapidly. Usually these words of warning have been accompanied by figures showing a steep rise in consumer credit and other debt totals in the United States.

It is true that the total debt of the American economy is, and has been, rising sharply. However, one could not expect anything else. The income of the American economy is rising, as well as savings, population, and total production. Thus, it is only natural for total debt to rise too.

To get an accurate picture of what the rising American debt means, and whether or not it threatens us with an economic recession, one must look at the increasing debt compared with increased production, income and savings. When one does this, it is reassuring, since it is discovered that the growth of savings is moving upward faster than the growth of the total American debt. In fact, only in one year since World War II has the total American debt grown faster than have increased savings.

Also, when comparing income and the total American debt, one can summarize the comparison by showing that the gross debt has expanded about two hundred per cent since 1940, while the national income has expanded over two hundred fifty per cent. Therefore, the American debt in 1952 was a smaller proportion of the national income than it was in 1940.

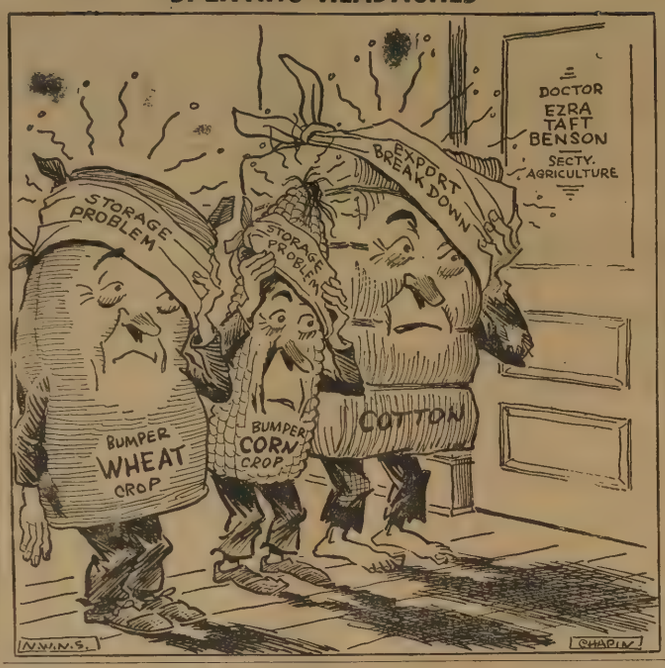
SPLITTING HEADACHES



Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Recently a rider was attached to the appropriation bill for the Legislative and Judiciary branches of the government allowing members of Congress to deduct from their federal income tax return all expenses of living in Washington. There was no recorded vote on this amendment, but I would like to state for the record that I did not vote in favor of this plan. This same proposal was introduced last year and passed by a voice vote, but was defeated in the Senate. I predict the same fate awaits it in the Senate again this year. Should, however, this measure be adopted by both Houses of Congress, it would, in effect, mean an increase in income to members of Congress.

While this is a somewhat roundabout method of increasing the income of members of Congress, a number of more direct methods have been proposed during this present session. Only a few weeks ago the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a bill to increase the annual salary of Senators, Representatives, and most Federal Judges by ten thousand dollars. I am opposed to this bill, at least insofar as it affects congressional salaries.

Members of Congress who have been here for a number of years have seen their present salaries buy less and less each year. These members would certainly be much more justified than I in voting for a salary increase. I was fully aware of the salary I would receive when I ran for Congress only last year. I was willing, if elected, to serve for that amount, and I haven't changed my mind in the six months I have been in office.

Aside from my reaction to this matter on a personal basis, I frankly do not feel this is the time for members of Congress to vote for themselves any type of salary increase. With an already astronomical debt, taxes the highest in history, and our budget far from being balanced, it is my belief that all plans for salary increases should at least be postponed.

Perhaps the best way to approach this matter is for Congress to devote its greatest efforts to the restoration of the integrity of the dollar by the adoption of sound fiscal policies, and the practice of economy wherever it can safely do so. In this way, the purchasing power of everyone's dollar, including the members of Congress, will be increased.

Excess Profits Tax—

In a tense and dramatic meeting of the House last week, the majority leadership decided against by-passing the important Ways and Means Committee in an effort to extend the excess profits tax. The bill granting this extension is scheduled for hearings by the Ways and Means Committee on July 8th. Most members think it will be reported to the House in the near future and that the extension will be granted.

Defense Appropriations—

Other important legislation considered last week included the appropriations bill for the Department of Defense which was unanimously approved by the House. The bill carried a total of new funds amounting to $34,434,140,500 for the support of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and the office of the Secretary of Defense for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954.

This sum of $34,434,140,500 may be compared to appropriations of $47,185,004,142 for the fiscal year ending last June 30; with $40,719,931,000 requested by President Truman in the budget he presented shortly before the end of his term last January; and with $35,771,563,000 asked by President Eisenhower in the revised estimates he sent to the Capitol after the new Administration had reviewed the whole pattern of expenses of the Federal government.

A move was made by Rep. Mahon, (D.-Texas), to add $1,175,000,000 to the amount appropriated for the Air Force. The addition of this amount would have brought the budget up to only slightly less than the amount recommended in the Eisenhower budget. This motion, supported by the entire Alabama Delegation, failed to pass.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Well things are about back to normal in Chilton County this week after one of the best Peach Festivals ever held. Queen Pat and Mrs. Broadhead are back home after a whirlwind tour of the nation's Capitol. Dick Scott had both feet on the ground for the first time in several weeks and his co-chairman and all committee heads deserve a vote of appreciation for their hard work in this year's festival. Dick made a good chairman and we're sure the people of the county appreciate his contribution to the cause.

We been talking to a "Hello Girl" and we bet we know something you don't know. About telephones that is. Southern Bell Telephone Company employs approximately 6,000 men and women in Alabama.

Their combined payroll is more than twenty million dollars each year.

We're kidding those facts didn't come from the operators. They came straight out of the horses mouth. They're absolute fact.

At a dinner party, a shy young man had been trying to think of something nice to say to his hostess. At last he saw his chance when she turned to him and said: "What a small appetite you have, Mr. Jones." "To sit next to you," he returned gallantly, "would make any man lose his appetite."

The warden of a prison was escorting a party of visitors through the institution. They passed a room where two women were sewing. "My, what hard-looking women," said one of the visitors. "What are they in for?"

With ice in his voice the warden replied: "They are here because they have no other home. This is our private living room and these are my wife and mother-in-law."

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Prior to the coming of the white settlers and the establishment of state and county lines, there were no political divisions in what is now Alabama. There were, however, well defined natural boundaries, in which the several tribes of Indians had their homes and their hunting grounds indicated by marked trees or ridges and streams.

Four powerful Indian tribes once occupied Alabama territory. The Creeks held the region between Oconee and the Alabama Rivers. In the northeast and along the upper Tennessee region lived the Cherokees. The Chickasaws occupied Southwest Alabama and Central Alabama and Central pied the territory in northeast Alabama and northern Mississippi. Mississippi were held by the Choctaws. The Creeks and Choctaws were still disputing over the region between the Tombigbee and Warrior Rivers. The Alibamos lived along the Alabama River south of Montgomery. During the later period of Indian occupancy of Alabama this tribe was included in the Creek Confederacy. Detachments of other tribes resided in towns within the limits of the present state.

Of all of the Indians in Alabama the Creeks were the most powerful and the most important. They occupied more territory than any of the other tribes—probably as much as all of the others combined. Because of this fact, earlier settlers had more trouble with them than with other Indians. The Creeks fought to the "last ditch" in defending their homes and territory against the on-rushing settlers. The other three main tribes, Cherokees, Chickasaws, and Choctaws, occupied only corners of the state; and since their principal seats were located in other states, they did not offer so much resistance to the Alabama pioneers.

The Choctaws were generally friendly to the whites. During the Creek War of 113-14 this friendship was very important to the early settlers. Had all of the tribes united in the same general cause, the whites, in all probability would have been annihilated. The friendly attitude of the Choctaws was due to two main clauses: First, the kind treatment they received from the French who were the early settlers in that region; and second, the influence of the friendly chief, Pushmataha.

Stopped For Tire Repair ---

Local Man Killed As Garage Burns In West Virginia

Elbert Cleckley, age 25, was burned to death at Anstead, West Virginia last Thursday about noon when a service station where he had stopped was destroyed after an explosion.

It was reported that Elbert, who was accompanied by his young wife and baby, had stopped at the service station to have a tire repaired when the tragedy occurred. He had driven a load of lawn furniture to Anstead for sale, and according to members of the family, was planning on staying there after sale of the furniture to go to work. A sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Cleckley, make their home at Anstead.

The body was returned to Clanton early Sunday where funeral arrangements were made

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2:30 from Pinedale Church with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. Burial in adjacent cemetery.

Take Advantage Of The Rainfall In July

Auburn, Ala.—Gardeners can normally expect rainfall in July. And while there is a good supply of moisture in the ground, they should prepare soil and plant fall vegetables.

That's the advice of John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist. "Fall vegetable crops usually do much better when planted early," he explains, "because they have a chance to start growing before the fall dry season sets in."

The specialist advises growers to set tomato, cabbage, and collard plants now. Bunch beans, lima beans, rutabagas, broccoli, and carrot seed can also be planted in July.

"At this time of year," adds Bagby, "seed should be planted a little deeper than in early spring as soil dries out more rapidly. To insure germination of small seed, after planting cover the row with old plants, cardboard, or other mulching material to hold moisture in the soil until seed have germinated. Be sure to remove mulching material before plants come through the soil."

HOMECOMING AT ROCKY MT.

Homecoming will be held at Rocky Mt. Church on July 26th, the last Sunday in July. Everyone is invited to come help us make a great day. We have always had a fine day. Each one gets better. Everyone is welcome. We are honored to have a young man to bring the 11 o'clock message, Mr. Jimmie Grant, son of Mrs. Ira Grant. He is a fine preacher. We will also have some good singers.

Saturday night before homecoming there will be services. Rev. C. E. Perry and Bro. Pear, of Birmingham, will have the Bannem Family, also of Birmingham. We will have the Baptist preacher, Bro. Skipper, of Moundville, Ala. So come out Saturday night, July 25th, and enjoy yourself. Also come on Sunday, July 26th, and bring a well-filled basket. — T. C. Harrell.

Trying To Lose Weight? Then Eat Lettuce Daily

"A whole head of lettuce weighing a pound has only 68 calories," she explains. "A bulky food, it also satisfied the appetite without adding a lot of energy. When combined with other low-calorie vegetables, it is an excellent accompaniment to meals that have rich foods in them.

The specialist adds that reducers must avoid using high-calorie salad dressings on lettuce.

First On The List

Here are some interesting dairying facts: dairying is the nation's number one farm enterprise; the United States has 13.8 cows per 100 people; 23 million Americans live on milk-producing farms; and there are about 35,000 plants in the country which process milk, cheese, butter, ice cream, and other dairy products.

BLANCHING VEGETABLES

Blanching vegetables before freezing is the best way to preserve their natural color. It will not improve vegetable quality, but blanching will prevent loss of color, flavor, and quality during storage.

Death Takes Holiday, But

Property Damage Heavy In Week-End Auto Smash-Ups

Death took a holiday but smashed automobiles and broken bones were plentiful in three seperate wrecks in widely scattered county communities the past week-end.

At Lomax a truck driven by Joseph Bullard was in collision with an automobile driven by John R. Nobles of 941 Cloverdale Road, Montgomery, Alabama.

Nobles was uninjured but Thomas Arledge of Montgomery, and formerly of Clanton, was hurt in the accident. Mr. Arledge received several broken ribs and cuts and abraisions of the face.

This wreck occured at 6:30 p. m. and was answered by Martin's Ambulance. Arledge, who is 67 years old, was taken to Central Alabama Hospital.

Another wreck one mile South of Stanton on State Highway 22, involved Mr. and Mrs. Ed. P. Davis of Stanton. Their automobile was hit from the rear by a car driven by Percy Seward. No one was injured but much property damage resulted from the wreck according to Highway Patrolman Huga Champion who investigated.

At 2 a.m. Saturday a car driven by Lela Marshall of Lexington, Ky., sideswiped a truck loaded with structural steel one mile South of Verbena on U.S. 31, and then ran off an embankment on the opposite side of the road. The driver and her sister, Minnie Marshall, who lives in Montgomery, were both injured and brought by Martin's Ambulance to Central Alabama Hospital. Lela Marshall received an arm injury and abrasions and Minnie Marshall received a back injury the Highway Patrolman, Hugh Champion who investigated, reported.

Three others in the car, nor the truck driver, were injured in the crash. The automobile was destroyed.

Be Safety Conscious And Stay Off Of Acqident Lists

Auburn, Ala.—Next week marks the beginning of National Farm Safety Week. "And during this time," says J. T. Gaillard, API Extension farm machinery specialist, "plenty of emphasis should be put on safety during the haying season."

He reminds farmers that this is not only a busy season—it's a dangerous one for careless operators. "Take these few extra precautions," adds Gaillard, "and don't become a victim in the predicted accident peak of July or August."

1. Carefully check all equipment before haying starts. Watch out for defective hitches, ropes, pulleys, and other hay-lifting equipment. See that hay racks, ladders, and loft floors are in good condition ad hay chutes guarded to avoid falls.

2. Be sure you have the right equipment to do the job safely. For example, the common method of lifting baled hay with hay forks is dangerous; the job can be done much safer with hay slings.

3. Be alert and avoid getting into dangerous positions. Always stop equipment for oiling, adjusting, or unclogging. Keep safety guards in place.

4. Sharp, unguarded steel tines of pitchforks are hazardous. Never throw a pitchfork or leave it where someone can jump or fall on it.

5. Remember that damp hay is one of the principal causes of barn fires. Make sure hay is well cured before it is stored in the haymow, and check it regularly for several weeks for signs of heating.

Chilton County Fair To Be Held Here August 25th-29th

Plans are being made for a real County Fair; the first in several years. In fact, many of us have never attended a Chilton County Fair. The date is set for August 25th-29th.

The main attractions will be the registered Jersey Cattle Show and sale, swine exhibits of the major breeds, beef cattle, poultry, sheep and grade dairy cattle show. Other exhibits will be represented by the County Educational Department, 4-H Clubs, Home Demonstration Clubs, F.F.A., and the many commercial exhibits that supply much of the funds toward making this occasion possible.

As an added attraction, the Lee Amusement Company is scheduled to be on hand at this time. This should add a great deal of pleasure for the youngsters.

Members of the County Agricultural Workers Ciuncil, as well as representatives of the County Beef Cattlemen's Association and Jersey Cattle Club are working hard to make this occasion a big success.

The Fair is being sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce—an organization highly interested in the welfare of the farmers and progress of the county as a whole.

Exhibitors of beef and dairy cattle should begin fitting, grooming and training their animals to bring out their better qualities before show time. Cattle should be blanketed and kept in the shade during the hot days, and grazed at night if possible.

CATTLEMAN'S SHORT COURSE SCHEDULED FOR AUGUST 11-13 AT API

Auburn, Ala. — The Pucebred Cattleman's Annual Short Course is scheduled for August 11-13 at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, according to an announcement by W. D. Salmon, head department of animal husbandry and nutrition.

Discussions on feeding, breeding, management, and disease control of beef cattle with demonstrations in selecting, fitting, and showing will highlight the three-day program.

The affair is sponsored by the Alabama Aberdeen-Angus Association, Alabama Hereford Breeders' Association, Alabama Cattlemen's Association, and the School of Agriculture, Agriculture Extension Service, School of Veterinary Medicine, and Agricultural Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, and Southeastern Shorthorn Breeders' Association.

DO YOU WISH TO AVOID TULAREMIA?

Montgomery, Ala. — If you wish to avoid tularemia, or rabbit fever—and who doesn't—here are some don'ts from the State Department of Health:

(1) Don't shoot a wild rabbit that appears sluggish and slow of movement. (He may have tularemia.) (2) Always wear rubber gloves when handling wild rabbits or any other animals. (3) Be sure to wash your hands carefully while handling rabbits, dead or alive, even when you wear rubber gloves. (4) Keep your hands away from your face while handling wild rabbits and until you have washed them thoroughly. (5) Be on the watch out for ticks and fleas which may be tularemia-infected. (6) Do not eat any wild rabbit meat that has not been thoroughly cooked, or cooked until the red juices have been cooked out, including those around the bones.

Caution Pays Off

Most insecticides used for spraying crops are poisonous to humans. For safety's sake, mount spraying equipment behind the driver on the back of the tractor.

PROTECT BURNERS

When frying food that spatters grease, place paper plates over stove burners not being used. This will protect them from grease and save cleaning time. Be sure not to put plates too near the pilot light.

While each of the Alabama Indian tribes had its own language, the Muskogee or Creek tongue was the official language of the county. It was in that tongue that all diplomatic relations and treaties took place.

WE AIM TO FIND OUT!

Is Chilton County the Garden Spot of the World? We are sure that it is but we are also sure that there are out-of-towners who would want to argue with us.

We will be able to tell you more next week. Bob Taber, our Associate Editor has gone to upstate New York for the week and while there he's keeping his eye open for a more prosperous Shangra-La.

But we won't stop there. Bobby Tucker, our Commercial Printer, is headed now for San Francisco and the California coast in general and he'll make an intensive study of their little garden spots to see how they stack up with the one and only Chilton County.

We'll tell you more when our wandering reporters return, sans finances.

Looks Better —

Hospital Fund Restored To $75,000,000

Senator Lister Hill has won Senate adoption of his amendment restoring Hill-Burton hospital construction funds to $75,000,000 — as originally recommended in the Democratic budget. The Republican-controlled House of Representatives recently cut the hospital funds by one-third.

"The House cut," Hill said, "would seriously impair the hospital program in Alabama. A number of Alabama communities that have worked long and hard to raise their local share of funds and are ready to build their hospitals would be unable to do so."

Hill said that the restoration of funds voted by the Senate will now —if agreed to by the House—mean that our Alabama hospital program can go forward.

During the Senate debate, the hospital program, authored by Alabama's senior Senator, was praised by Senators from every section of the national, particularly by Senators from the South. The South has benefited most under the program by receiving the larger share of Federal hospital funds. Alabama has already built some 52 projects under the Hill-Burton program. Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee told the Senate that "the hospital program has brought untold benefits already and will continue to bring even greater benefits in the future."

Senator Clements of Kentucky declared that "there is no grant-in-aid program that has done so much as the hospital program."

The Senate heard Senator Hill list many benefits which the nation has derived from the hospital program since its beginning six years ago. Among these are:

For the first time in our history there has been State-wide hospital planning. Assistance has been provided to many communities that would not otherwise have a hospital. The program is helping to overcome the shortage of doctors in rural communities. A great contribution has been made to the quality of patient care, with improved physical health and higher standards of health care in the community. The program has enabled early diagnosis of disease and much better preventive medicine for the people.

The new hospitals are training large numbers of new hospital personnel and helping to relieve the shortages of doctors, nurses and other health personnel. The existence of the program is insurance against socialization of medicine and of health services. The construction of the hospitals has greatly stimulated enrollment in voluntary health insurance plans such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield and Hospitalization Insurance.

HOMECOMING AT MT. NEBO

Next Sunday, July 21, will be homecoming at the Mt. Nebo Church. The new pastor, Rev. Hughen, will preach at 11 o'clock and dinner will be served at 12 noon.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

PEACHES IN ALABAMA

Chilton County has been to the fore this week with its sixth annual peach festival. Speakers at the festival have pointed out that the crop this year will be worth $3,000,000. This is quite a marked increase over some recent years. In 1951, for example, according to the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, Alabama's entire peach crop of 256,000 bushels brought $640,000.

But Alabama has been forging ahead in peach growing. In 1950 it ranked 18th among the states in peach production, and in 1951 it was 16th. And of the 39 counties in Alabama which in the 1950 census showed 10,000 or more peach trees, only Chilton County had more than 100,000 trees.

Chilton County's favored marketing position has helped it to develop its fruit-growing industry. It lies midway between Birmingham and Montgomery, two large consuming centers. It is served by a main-line railroad and a principal highway. And its farmers have learned the value of cooperative selling. The annual peach festival serves well to draw attention to this growing industry.

However, the emphasis given peaches at this time of the year should not hide the fact that Chilton has a well-rounded agriculture. In 1951, when the county's peach crop was about half a million dollars, its cotton crop was valued at $1,832,000 and its corn crop at $904,320. It also had, that year, 16,100 head of cattle, including 5,700 milk-producing cows valued at $1,932,000, 11,500 hogs and 136,000 chickens. It grows large quantities of other fruits and berries, and also soy beans, peanuts, pecans and other stuff.

In short, while the state salutes Chilton's luscious peaches, let it also recognize that the peaches are a part of a rounded program. Chilton's farmers, as it were, don't put al their eggs into one peach basket.—Birmingham News.

Report from Washington

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Peach Queen Visits—

Last week we were honored with a visit from Chilton County's 1953 Peach Queen, Miss Patricia Broadhead, of Clanton, Alabama. Accompanied by her mother, Mrs. J. A. Broadhead, the Queen arrived by plane for a thirty-six hour visit to the ation's Capital.

Patricia, a lovely blonde, was crowned Queen on Wednesday of last week and left only a few hours later for Washington. While here, she and her mother attended the Alabama Delegation's weekly luncheon where Patricia presented a basket of peaches to the Alabama members of Congress. Later the same afternoon, I accompanied Miss Broadhead to the White House and she presented to Presidetial Assistant, Governor Sherman Adams, the number one prize winning basket of Chilton ounty peaches. Governor Adams assured us that some of these peaches would reach President Eisenhower's table.

Patricia, an attractive, friendly, and very pretty young lady, made a splendid good will ambassabor from Alabama's great peach producing section.

Senate Approves McCoy—

On Friday of last week, the Senate approved the appointment of Mr. Whitley P. McCoy as Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. The appointment of Mr. McCoy should be of especial interest to the residents of the Sixth District as he has been a professor at the University of Alabama Law School and a resident of Tuscaloosa for a number of years.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, which Mr. McCoy is to head, attempts to prevent or minimize, through mediation and conciliation, interruptions to commerce growing out of labor disputes. More specifically, its duties are to assist labor and management to improve the climate of industrial relations, prevent industrial disputes, and settle industrial disputes. Whenever a labor dispute arises which, in the opinion of the Service, threatens to produce a major disruption in commerce, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service may offer its facilities on its own volition or at the request of one or more of the parties to the dispute. Since its inception, the Service has participated in a wide variety of disputes in almost every major industry.

The Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is appoited by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Mr. McCoy succeeds David L. Cole as Director. Mr. Cole succeeded Cyrus Ching in September, 1952, following the latter's resignation.

Mr. McCoy is well qualified to direct this important service. In addition to his duties as a Professor of Law at the University of Alabama, Mr. McCoy has devoted much of his time in recent years to arbitration of disputes arising under new contracts between management and workers. He is a former vice-president of the National Academy of Arbitrators and is on the arbitration rosters of the Mediation Service and American Arbitration Association. He was also a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner. McCoy is the author during World War II, he acted thor of a book on arbitration, and as chairman of various dispute panels for the War Labor Board.

Mr. McCoy is well known throughout Alabama, having taught many of the members of the Alabama Bar. In a visit to our office last week, he observed that he had taught Senator Sparkman and more than half of the Alabama members of the House.

I'm sure that I speak for the people of the District when I say that we are very proud that the President has seen fit to appoint a Sixth District resident to this important position. We wish him well in his new assignment.

Legislative Notes—

In an important vote last week, the House extended the excess profits tax for another six months. It is estimated this extension will add approximately $800 million to the Treasury before January 1. The passage of this bill authorizing a six months extension was urged by both President Eisenhower and Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey on the grounds that the temporary extension of this tax was preferable to the increased deficit that would be caused by its immediate expiration.

A bill to authorize construction of power facilities on the Niagara River by five private utility firms passed the House by a large vote. Legislation authorizing federal construction of this project was killed earlier by the House Interior Committee. Also approved by the House last week was a bill to provide aid for drought-stricken farmers and livestock growers.

More Fresn Vegetables

Fresh vegetable output during the first quarter of this year was estimated at seven per cent higher than in 1952.

Extra Money In The Poultry House

Poultry litter in a house of 6000 broilers is worth $240 as fertilizer—four cents per bird. And litter from a 6000-capacity broiler house where four broods are grown each year will fertilize 25 acres of land per year.

Rural Dixie Has Her Face Lifted!

Soil conservation is changing Dixie's face — bringing life to wornout soils, making better crops and pastures.

Part of this changing picture are those rural telephone lines you see along the fields and highways. They're bringing new convenience to farm work and living. Over half a million rural homes now have Southern Bell phones and about 6000 more are being added each month.

That's the kind of progress you can see—all over growing, prosperous Dixie!

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

There couldn't be a happier little girl anywhere than the six-year-old. She has a bicycle. It isn't a new bike, it's a sturdy second-hand, one a friend down the street had outgrown, but in the eyes of the six-year-old it is made of gold and studded with diamonds.

She didn't know how to ride the morning she got her bike (she always refers to it grandly as her "two-wheel bicycle"), but she was determined to teach herself without any help. After the first hour, our supply of disinfectant and bandages was exhausted, and by noon there wasn't an inch of her shanks that wasn't skinned or bruised. But she could ride!

In the mail the other morning came a booklet telling of the many uses for oil cloth. The booklet suggested that this versatile fabric be used for place mats, sink splashers, drawer liners, diaper bags and a score of other purposes.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, glanced through the pages when she stopped by for a visit and said:

"They forgot to include one of the most practical uses for oil cloth. I always put a big square of it under the baby's high chair. Then cleaning up spilled food after meal time is almost no trouble at all."

One of these days when I'm feeling energetic, I'm going to try making oil cloth shades for the children's room. It sounds simple to cut the cloth the width of the roller and tack it on. And fingerprints would be easy to wipe off.

The four-year-old just ran through the kitchen shouting proudly, "I'm the baddest boy in town!"

Now I keep wondering which neighbor told him so and why.

Using Epson salts as a medicine seems to have gone out of style, but the next door neighbor always keeps a big box of the awful stuff in her utility room. When I asked her why, she informed me that she used it in washing clothes.

Seems that a teaspoon of Epson salt dissolved in each gallon of water will keep delicately colored fabrics from running or fading.

This next door neighbor is the only person I know who keeps the inside of her aluminum coffee pot shining like new, as bright as the day it was bought.

It's really no trouble at all, she assured me. She just fills the coffee pot with cold water, slices a lemon into it and lets it boil until the inside surface can be wiped clean with a cloth.

For dessert some day try this peach crumble our good cook neighbor makes: Peel and slice 8 ripe peaches and place in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon lemon juice and ¼ cup cold water. Cut 2 tablespoons butter into 3-4 cup flour, 1 cup brown sugar and pinch of salt until crumbly. Sprinkle crumb mixture over peaches and bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) about half an hour or until bubbly.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ELECTROCARDIOGRAMS

The electrical recording of the heart beat is known medically as electrocardiography, which is the making of a visual record of electric currents which come from the heart.

An x-ray film presents definite information about the size and shape of the heart; but it does not record the rate of the heart beat or the rhythm nor does it offer any detail concerning the heart sounds. This information is revealed by the electrocardiogram.

The speed, rhythm and spread of the electrical impulse of the heart are recorded to give needed information to the physician. The results are indicated in a diagramatic form called waves. To obtain the information, electrodes are attached to various areas of the body. These electrodes pick up the electrical impulses of the heart and convey them to the electrocardiograph which photographs or records them for interpretation by the physician.

Patients who are asked to have an electrocardiogram are inclined to be apprehensive. This feeling is baseless, since no electrical current is transmitted from the electrical apparatus to the patient. The procedure is painless, and there is no danger of receiving even the slightest shock.

Many conditions affect the heart, resulting in a variety of heart diseases, some of which are more serious than others. Thus, to establish an exact diagnosis of a specific disease, the electrocardiogram is an important adjunct to the physical examination together with a complete case history, an x-ray film or roentgenogram, and laboratory tests.

Keep It Clean

Clean up around the barn, and you'll have better luck with fly control this summer. No insecticide can keep flies under control when insects have a good place to breed.

CLEAN LEATHER WITH BEATEN EGG WHITES

Leather chairs and other leather goods can be kept clean and shiny by rubbing them frequently with egg whites which have been beaten to a stiff consistency.

It has been said that there are 2 types of people in every church: those who are willing to do all the work and those who are willing to let them do it.

Unfortunately, there is too much truth in that little remark. It is too easy to say, "Let Joe do it," or "Susie has more talent and time than I have." Actually, however, this is nothing more than human weakness masquerading under the guise of humility. Jesus said, "Let him take up his cross and follow me," not "take up your cross and hang it on some one else's back."

The church will prosper only if each and every one who calls himself a Christian will serve in whatever capacity he is requested to serve. If that should ever be achieved, we would no longer see congregations supported by a few "pillars" while all of the other members are just feeble props.

Get Pullets In Houses Says Poultryman Weeks

Pullets should all be housed by the time five to ten per cent of them are laying, according to John Weeks, API Extension poultryman.

"To wait longer," he explains, "increases chances of breaking their production when they are housed.

Provide pullets with plenty of cross ventilation during hot weather, give each bird three to four square feet of space in the house, adds Weeks.

Move old birds to temporary quarters, and put them under all-night lights. The specialist advises using range shelters or laying sheds to finish out their laying year.

Send Hogs To Market On Time Advises Specialist

Auburn, Ala. — "Farmers can sometimes make as much as $10 more per head by selling hogs in August and September when market prices are usually higher," says G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist.

"Sometimes the price break from early September to early October amounts to from $4.50 to $6.50 on a 225-pound hog," he adds.

The fall pig crop is expected to be five per cent less than it was a year ago, explains Phillips, and the total crop for the year about eight per cent lower. This smaller supply is responsible for strong market prices now. But, he [illegible] lower prices for beef and pork, more late spring farrowed pigs, and seasonal price declines in late fall and winter are reminders that it is time to push and pamper hogs.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Got a post card from Lora Rose and Jimmy Bell this week. They are at Miami Beach, Fla. Also received one from Bob Taber and Polly who were somewhere between the State of Virginia and Syracuse, N. Y. A couple came from Billy Powell and Bobby Tucker, who had just visited Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico and were heading out for San Francisco, Calif. Seems every one of the crowd were having the time of their lives and getting the most out of their vacations. While here we sit around with the weather in the high seventies and the low eighties just as peaceful and comfortable as can be. No worry about motels, hotels, whatthells, or nothen. Staying home ain't bad if you just set your mind to it.

Want to buy some silk slips, hosiery, panties, gloves, terry shorts and stuff like that. We were selling them Thursday morning. Or rather we had them for sale. We journeyed down to talk to Mrs. Carter at the Smart Shop for some ad copy and just about the time we arrived, she received a telephone call from the hospital that her son, Brooks Carter, had been in an automobile accident. Well it turned out that we had a ladies' dress shop all to ourselves for about thirty minutes. Mrs. Carter headed for the hospital and there was nothing for us to do but keep shop for a while whether we wanted to or no. We were pretty lucky though. No ladies came in and asked any embarrassing questions. And the boys in the truck accident were lucky, too. They were not too badly banged up. Hope they'll be up and around right away.

Found a notice on the desk this morning advising that officers had been elected by the Intermediate Class of the Methodist Church School. Someone must have slipped in and left it while we were out. Anyway it says that Janice Young has been elected President of the Class. Paula Nivens has been elected vice-president and Patsy Buckner has been elected secretary-treasurer. Congratulations, young ladies, we hope you build the membership of your class to an even 100.

We haven't had the pleasure of meeting the new Presbyterian minister. Rev. Don Esty is the gentleman's name and we understand he had taken a house in the Lakeview Heights sub-division. He was recently given a linen shower too, one night after prayer meeting we understand. Anyway, we welcome him and hope he likes us.

Too bad about Dr. Joe Hall Johnson's accident out at his farm. He jumped from his tractor when he thought it was going to overturn and broke his hip. He also pulled his shoulder out of socket. His condition as we went to press is reported as very good.

Policeman Henry Anderson had his truck stolen while it was parked in front of the courthouse last Sunday morning. We mean real early Sunday morning, in fact, shortly after midnight. Up until now nothing has been heard from the missing truck, but it does look to us like a fellow who was going to steal a truck would choose someone besides a policeman.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Porch, of Verbena, are real foxhunters. Recently at the East Alabama Night Hunters Club annual fox hunt and trials at Alexander City, Mr. and Mrs. Porch both came away with prizes. Mrs. Porch won first prize in the field and combination trophy and Mr. Porch won fourth prize in the same event. They also won fourth and fifth place in the all age class. Jessie Pierce, who is also of Verbena, won third place in the all age class. Verbena is a good place for foxes to stay away from.

Lomax win was sparked by two home runs against Prattville by Kent Lowery. Joe Frank Cobb got one homer in the same game.

For the season Lomax has played 18 games and won 14; lost 4, which is some record to shoot at.

STATE POPULATION IN 1960 TO REACH AN ALL-TIME HIGH

Alabama's population will be 3,412,000 by 1960, an increase of 10.4 per cent since the 1950 census, according to a study of population trends made by the B. F. Goodrich Company.

In actual numbers, the study estimates that the state's population will increase 322,000 in the next seven years.

Population trends at intervals of every ten years beginning with 1920 have been carefully scrutinized by the rubber company's business research department to determine possible future requirements for tires and other products.

The BFG study indicates that economic conditions should be good—close to full employment—for the next seven years, a factor which will affect the movement as well as growth of the population. However, the study points out that if business activity falls below the full-employment level during the next seven years, population growth will be less. On the other hand, if the economy continues to operate at forced draft then rates of population growth will be greater than estimated.

The problems involved in advance planning of these changes are not the same for each state and region, BFG says. Not only the growth of population but its density and location must be taken into consideration.

In the same study, the rubber company estimated that the population of the United States will reach 175,500,000 by 1960. This is an increase of 23,828,000 over the 1950 census, or an increase of about 15 per cent.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Lester Biegler, Aberdeen, S.D.: I remember when mother and I twisted hay to burn and when father took wheat to the mill to have ground into flour. And although I don't remember the event, I do remember my parents telling me about the night the whole family slept in the sod stable with the live stock to keep from freezing to death. It was the year of the great blizzard in the west.

From Mrs. Henrietta Sprague, Mesa, Arizona: I remember when we lived on a farm in Kansas some 70 years ago. Kansas City was the nearest town where we could buy supplies. My parents would go after them and drive a pair of oxen.

From Mrs. Amanda Lowry, Columbus, Indiana: I remember when I was a child and my big brother was calling upon his first girl. He would dress and then have mother put on his collar which had to be buttoned. Her last words when he left the house was for him to be in by 10 o'clock. He never failed to be in by that time.

Foxhunters Lay Plans For Big Trials

The Chilton County Foxhunters will hold their Field Trial and Bench Show August 17th this year, lasting four days.

ALABAMA FARM BUREAU TRAINING SCHOOL AUGUST 2-5

How farm people can better meet the challenge and opportunities it must face up to if they are to maintain their place in the modern economic scheme will be the theme of serious study on the part of several hundred men and women attending the annual Alabama Farm Bureau Training School at Auburn, August 2-5.

Almost every county Farm Bureau has indicated it will have representatives at the school, which has been growing in popularity since it was instituted three years ago. Leaders of local units have become better equipped to explain and carry out the plans and policies, thus leading to a better informed and more active membership, said Organization Director Bob Griffin.

Griffin announced this week the program and curriculum had been completed, and that the campus committee of Alabama Polytechnic Institute had made arrangements to care for all who may attend in modern dormitories, dining halls, and air-conditioned classrooms.

Representing the American Farm Bureau Federation on the faculty will be Frank Woolley, Legislative Counsel; Joe Betts, Legislative Assistant; Harry Bryson, Director of Field Services; and R. G. Arnold, Southern Field Agent. Classes also will be taught by Griffin and Services Director, Ed Lowder. Presiding at general sessions will be Farm Bureau Vice-Presidents J. D. Hays, Huntsville; H. H. Knowles, Headland; M. C. Stallworth, Jr., Vinegar Bend, and J. D. Doughty, Reform; also Mrs. L. Chatterton, Greensboro, president of the Alabama Home Demonstration Club Council, who will conduct Sunday night's vesper services; and Mrs. J. H. Walthall, Sheffield, presiding at a Monday general session when Farm Bureau women will be in charge. Mrs. Walthall is Farm Bureau objective chairman for the Alabama Council. Speakers at other sessions will include Alabama Farm Bureau Federation's president, Walter L. Randolph and API Extension Director, P. O. Davis.

CONGRESS BACKTRACKS

Just a few months ago everyone on Capitol Hill (it seemed) was talking about cutting the nation's deficit by reducing the amount of money spent on foreign aid programs. Most of the talk came from Republican members of both houses but Southern Democrats also said the same thing.

On almost every interview on the subject or every radio program, Senators and Congressmen would estimate that as much as two billion dollars could be whacked from the five billion plus program of the year before.

From Majority Leader Robert Taft on down there was big talk about big economy in this field. And yet today, President Dwight D. Eisenhower has reduced this sentiment to a minimum.

Ike has managed to win over some of his own party's legislators by working quietly and consistently to build up harmony behind the White House viewpoint on the government's foreign aid program. He has made progress, and with the help of men like Senator Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin Republican, he has been able to assure himself of a good split among Republicans. (At one time it looked as if Ike would get beaten badly in the voting division in his own party on the hill, on this issue.) And on most all issues he has had to depend on the Democrats to pass his legislation and stand behind him to accomplish his program.

DRIVERS AND EYESIGHT

In a recent test involving over eight thousand motorists, in greater New York, checkers were surprised to learn that more than twenty percent of the drivers tested had sight defects. This is a poor commentary n driver qualification laws in that area, but it is probably equally true elsewhere.

The two defects found most among those tested was poor vision and slow reflexes. Those whose vision had dropped below the 20-40 safety minimum often scored no better than 20-60 in tests. Many relied almost completely on one eye (the better one) for visual aid in driving. Official examiners say this distorts depth perception, and could cause serious misjudgements on the part of the driver involved.

Those whose reflexes were found to be especially slow were often unaware of the toll exacted by advancing years in this field. Many were so slow they demonstrated their inability to cope with a sudden highway crisis requiring reasonable quick applications with hands and feet on the controls. Yet they were unaware of the fact that their reaction was dangerously slow.

There is little room for sentiment in this sort of business. Those drivers with physical defects which make them highway hazards must be removed from behind the wheel.

Under The Study Lamp

(By William Crowe)

THE MOUNTAINS — AND GOD

"Thy righteousness is like the great mountains." — Psalm 36:6.

Somehow we are accustomed to think of righteousness as strictly a Bible word, and therefore somewhat removed from our every-day thought and speech. In a sense that is true, and yet a brief examination of its meaning in the Bible setting gives the inquirer a genuine thrill, for it opens a gold mine, as it were, for the enrichment of the believer's mind and heart.

Righteousness bespeaks the boundlessness of God's protecting love, and therefore provides the student a regarding experience. Speaking of God's protecting love, we have this assurance in another Hebrew hym:

"As the mountains are round about Jerusalef,
So the Lord is round about His people
From henceforth, even forever."
—Psalm 125.

Switzerland is the most mountainous country on the globe, and therein lies the secret of its continuance as a free federal republic through all the storms and upheavals on the continent of Europe for more than five hundred years. Diminutive as compared with Germany and France—about one-third the size of the State of Alabama—Switzerland has defied every threatening invader, nestling as it does underneath the protecting wings of the towering Alps. As it goes with the political interests of little Switzerland, so it goes with the spiritual interests of every trustful believer who will echo the Psalmist's song:

"I will life up mine eyes unto the hills
From whence cometh my help."

The righteousness of God provides a health-giving atmosphere for all who seek the bracing experiences that accompany the assurances and promises of sacred companionship with God and His People. Before the present summer is ended hordes of lowlanders will have climbed the slopes of the Great Smokies, or the northern Appalachian Range, or the Rockies, in order to breathe the stimulating air if the heights. But thanks be to Him whose righteousness is like the great mountains, even those who cannot go beyond their own back yards have larger opportunities and higher privileges still, for though cribbed and cabined by untoward circumstances, every believer can sing,

"Unto thee lift I up mine eyes,
O thou that dwellest in the heavens."

What then does the Bible mean by the righteousness of God? It means that the Almighty, out of the resources of infinite power, and unbounded mercy and love, has made provision for the salvation and exaltation of all who will put their trust in Him. They are the people who feel the exciting fascitemplate the verse of an ancient nation of discovery when they conhymn, "Thy righteousness is like the great mountains."

If your sericea is not needed for hay or grazing, it might be a good idea to let it make seed and harvest these seeds this fall. In addition to conserving and building your land, a good seed crop could mean a good cash crop next spring.

DALE CARNEGIE

ELMER L. ANDERSON, 30 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, found what he declares the most effective way to banish worry. He was so worried about thirty years ago that he almost had a nervous breakdown. His father had creeping paralysis and palsy and had been sick for a year. He had been to a specialist and was advised that the medical profession could do nothing to relieve him of his pain and misery. Elmer was then 23 years of age. He sat with his father and mother in the kitchen one evening as his father repeatedly said, "What shall we do? What shall we do?" Elmer promised that he would stay with his parents and help in every way possible. His father in relief shook his hand and thanked him profusely; then placed his other hand on top of Elmer's and his wife's and thanked Elmer again.

CARNEGIE

The next three years of his illness that father was helpless and slept only fifteen to thirty minutes at a time during a twenty-four hour period. Elmer and his mother took care of him day and night until the last year when they had to hire a woman to help them.

They overcame their worry by doing the best that they could each day, putting in approximately nineteen hours of work out of every twenty-four. By doing this, worry seemed to disappear and they agreed that God took care of them, for their income was small. Their money seemed to stretch far enough to provide for necessities and even at his father's death they still had their property clear of any encumbrance and had to ask for no outside financial help.

His bulwark now if worry rears its ugly head is to pitch in and work the best he can and he has learned that if he does his worries always disappea-

ideas from other editors

From The Independent, Fuquay Springs, N. C.: According to a recent AP story, "the United States spends more money forecasting the weather now than it cost to run the whole government during Andy Jackson's administration."

That fact isn't cited as a criticism of the weather service. But it is a striking example of how government has got out of hand, and how vital it is that every nonessential activity be eliminated and every possible nickel cut from the budget.

From The Sullivan Union, Sullivan, Indiana: "The lesson should be constantly enforced that, though the people support the government, the government should not support the people."

Does that sound like something that was said yesterday? Actually, it was said by President Grover Cleveland 76 years ago, in the course of vetoing a long-forgotten bill.

The principle which President Cleveland laid down was important then. It is a thousand times more important now. In the intervening years millions of us, knowingly or otherwise, have been infected with the virus of government paternalism. We have become accustomed to being supported, wholly or partly, by government. And that trend, unless checked and reversed, can end only in dictatorship, tyranny and the destruction of all that is courageous and adventurous in the human spirit.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, N. Y.: A group of American editors was recently allowed to spend a week in Moscow. One of them, Mrs. Jane McIlvaine of the Downington, Pa., Archive, gave a long interview to U. S. News and World Report on her return home.

Much of the interview dealt with her impressions of Russian living standards. She was asked what was in a department store she visited, and answered, "Practically nothing . . . They had just gotten a load of the first spring print dresses. It was something you wouldn't believe, and the cheapest one was $125 . . ."

Another question was, "What about shoes?" To this Mrs. McIlvaine said, "Shoes are the hardest thing to get. They have a kind of cardboard shoe for which they pay $20 . . . A decent pair of shoes, which really isn't decent by ordinary shoe-store comparison, costs $125."

Russian retail stores, like Russian farms and factories, are government ventures. The government decides what the people shall and shall not have, and what they must pay.

The Supervisory Program Of Vocational Education

The purpose of supervision in Vocational Education is to improve instruction. Supervision is provided on an area basis for vocational agriculture, homemaking, industrial education, rehabilitation and crippled children's services. Area supervision is more economical than local or county supervision because of the small number of programs in each county. Vocational Education requires a specialized type of teaching. There is a constant change in program development brought about by changes in farming methods, industrial processes, home life and rehabilitation procedures. Instruction involves the development of manual skill as well as mastery of technical information. Teachers must have help in keeping up with the changes and demands in all fields of vocational education.

Some of the responsibilities of supervisory personnel are

1. Work cooperatively with superintendents and principals in developing effective programs of vocational education as a part of the total school program.
2. Assist vocational personnel in program planning and development.
3. Provide continuous in-service training through planned visits, workshops, and other professional meetings.
4. Provide for preparation and distribution of instructional material.
5. Guide youth organizations—Future Homemakers of America, Future Farmers of America, New Homemakers of America, New Farmers of America, and Diversified Occupations Club—at State and district levels.
6. Guide curriculum study and development for in-service teacher education.
7. Assist school administrators in locating qualified teachers for employment.
8. Work with teacher training institutions in developing programs to prepare teachers for effective instruction.

By LYN CONNELLY

ABC-TV's expansion policy has led to the signing of two sought-after comedians, Ray Bolger and Danny Thomas . . . Long-term deals have been set on shows currently being worked out for them . . . Bolger's NBC-TV appearance in 1952 was a smash success and all the webs have been after him . . . ABC-TV may also land Betty Hutton, volatile bundle of dynamite . . . Who's the best-dressed woman in music? Jo Stafford, according to a vote by the Fashion Academy of New York . . . Thirteen Cole Porter tunes will be heard in MGM's "Kiss Me Kate."

Harpo Marx, playing a benefit for the Palm Springs Police Department, had 40 of his props stolen . . . Either California cops are not on the beam or Harpo's talent had them in a trance . . . Ava Gardner told a London reporter: "I was not trained to be an actress, but I know emotions and I like being a star . . . It pays more . . . I live better and get more time off than when I was a secretary" . . . She has a point there . . . Also takes less gray matter, of which Ava is not overly-abundant . . . Toscanini will return in the fall with another series for NBC.

PLATTER CHATTER

COLUMBIA — Mindy Carson's latest is entitled "Three Red Roses" and Mindy makes the most of it . . . Back side has "I Cry Your Name" . . . Jerry Vale follows his impressive debut with a new one called "For Me" . . . It's backed by "Tired of Dreaming" . . . Teaming with Jimmy Boyd and then with Marlene Dietrich takes some doing and Rosemary Clooney is the gal who can do it.

CAPITOL—Don't want to neglect the small fry, and the big word for them is a new Hopalong Cassidy record, by William Boyd of course . . . It's the exciting tale of "Cassidy and the Mail Train Robbery" . . . Tex Ritter sings "The Animal Fair" backed by "I Was Born a Hundred Years Ago" in fine fettle.

TOASTED open-faced sandwiches satisfy your hunger pangs but don't heat the kitchen since cooking time is short. Toast bread on one side, top with a slice of luncheon meat, spread with chili sauce and top with a slice of cheese. Broil until cheese melts.

Lamb chops take well to barbecue sauce and broil quickly to keep your kitchen cool. Serve with a fruit garnish of pineapple, banana half and grapefruit segments.

Chilled soups are ideal for starting off the meal with proper spirit. You might try jellied consomme or icy cold cream vichyssoise.

Don't discard cold, fried trout. Serve it on a bed of watercress or lettuce and pass with sour cream in which are floating thin slices of cucumber. Serve with a lemon wedge.

Looking for something to go with potato salad? Take thin rounds of salami and spread with a mixture of grated carrots mixed with mayonnaise. Roll as a cornucopia and serve around the salad.

JACKSON CHAPEL

We had a nice crowd out for Sunday School Sunday, also some visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Loss Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Felston Traywick and baby daughter. We welcome them back at any time.

July 19th, is our annual homecoming. Everyone has a hearty welcome to come and bring a well filled basket and enjoy the day with us. We especially invite all preachers, singers and lovers of good gospel music.

The third Sunday of July homecoming is the beginning of our revival, which will continue throughout the week with morning services at 10:00 a.m. and evening services at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Wiley Davis, our pastor, and Rev. Walker of Union Grove will be bringing the messages. We are expecting all of you to come and help make this a great revival. So pray that souls will be saved and revived.

SEVEN WORDS WHICH WILL DEFEAT DICTATORS

Charlemagne, Napoleon, the Kaiser, and Hitler, among others, tried to unite Europe into one state and thus rule the world. They all utterly failed because seven words of divine prophecy blocked their road to world conquest. Now communism is trying again. The seven words still stand in the way of any would-be conquerer.

What is the meaning of these words which are found in one of the greatest prophecies of the Bible. Will there ever be a world-wide government? What does the immediate future hold for our world? These are strange and fearful days to which we have come. What preparation should every one make for tomorrow?

Five years ago Roger Babson made the statement, "The chances are nine out of ten that Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and other coastal and border cities will be totally destroyed in the next twenty years." He then asked, "Have you a refuge?" Bible prophecy not only answers the question, "What is soon to happen in our world."

The public is invited to the Adventist Church Sunday evenings at 7:30 where a series of talking pictures are being shown on the screen dealing with "The Signs of the Times." — Allen Walker, Pastor.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

J. D. Wesson of Clanton Route 5, has one of the best prospects for a corn crop in Chilton County. J. D. states: "I put 300 pounds of guano under the corn and 300 pounds of Bulldog soda as a side dressing." "You know it has been in sericea pasture for four or five years." With one or more good rains soon, J. D. will harvest seventy-five bushels of corn per acre.

Tom Carter of Lomax has a good stand of sericea that has been ruined by "love-vine," or dodder. To control this pest best is to look at the analysis of the seed you are planting and not buy seed that are not pure. If you have an infested field, fertilize heavily and graze or hay closely; or do as J. D. Wesson did—plow it up and cultivate a year or so and replant.

Claude Harper with his combination of sericea lespedeza and bahia grass states: "I have all the summer grazing my cows can use."

N. L. Roberts thinks bahia grass is one of the best summer pasture grasses, and states: "If I can get my grass seed combined, I will plant fifteen or more acres next spring."

Ralph Mims states: "Fields, who has the best corn in Chilton County that is already made?" As the conversation went on, Ralph was of the opinion that his brother, Lloyd, has the best corn and it made in a coastal bermuda field.

HIGHLAND NEWS

Everyone is asked to please meet at the church Saturday afternoon, July 18th, for the purpose of cleaning the cemetery and church grounds. Everyone interested please come and help.

Our revival will begin the fourth Sunday in July with Bro. M. D. Dickey doing the preaching. We are hoping each and every Christian will be much in prayer that it will be a great success.

Everyone be praying for our sick ones, and especially Mr. Tommie Easterling, who was carried to a Birmingham hospital Monday in a very serious condition. Be much in prayer for he and his family.

They Win Again

Native Dancer has done it again to Jamie K by beating him in the Belmont Stakes by a neck. But this time the Dancer had to come from behind. The skeptics are now beginning to call the dancer one of the great horses of all time. The Dancer's next start will be in the $100,000 added Dwyer at Aqueduct, July 4. He will also start in the $100,000 Arlington Classic on July 15 . . . Since Ben Hogan annexed his fourth victory in the United States Open golf tournament the old argument of whether Ben or Bobby Jones is the best golfer America ever produced has been revived. Gene Sarazen unhesitatingly picks Hogan. A true comparison can never be made since Jones retired at the ripe old age of 28. He won his first Open championship when he was 21. Hogan on the other hand didn't win his first Open until he was 35 and now, at 40, is just starting to earn world-wide recognition. He'll play in the British Open at Carnoustie.

POPLAR SPRINGS NEWS

We are proud that our attendance was better for Sunday School and worship service, also more was out for Training Union than usual. And we do hope that many more will be present for each of our services in the future.

Do we want a revival? If we do, may each of us be doing our part of praying and working. The time for our revival to begin is the second week end in August. So let us all be much in prayer. Bro. Wallace of Kemp, Ala., will be doing the preaching for us

CANDY FOR MARY

By Madge O. Adams

THE folks in our town don't care too much for old John Franklin. He's never done much harm, but he's never been known to do much good either. I guess people feel that way about him because of the practical jokes he sometimes pulls. Otherwise he's harmless.

He batches in the little cottage his mother left him when she died and he fills it with fishing rods and coon dogs.

I don't suppose I'd have ever thought much about John either way if Mary Davis hadn't moved into town. We all watched her pretty close, especially the women. It wasn't because she was pretty, she was too hungry looking for that. But, after all she was a female and she was single and she could have been attractive.

Mary was a widow and she had three small children. She moved into the old house on the back of our lot that rented for practically nothing. She soon had the lawn neatly clipped and the windows shining and a back breaking garden planted.

We were soon charmed by Mary's warm smile and completely won over by her honest eyes. It wasn't long before almost everybody in town was thinking about a romance for Mary.

Bill Simpkins was the most logical man. He runs the general store. He was the most eligible young bachelor in town in his day. Mothers had sat up nights tryihg to think of ways to snare him for their daughters. I guess that was why he had never married.

He had a big pleasant house, a kind heart and a nice income. He was the perfect man for Mary Davis. Everybody in town agreed on that point.

There was only one hitch. He didn't know she existed. And if she thought anything about him, she never let on.

But there's always somebody who can figure out those kind of things. And it usually is somebody you'd never suspect. Leastwise, this time it was. Nobody ever knew about what really happened but me. I was in the candy store in Cedar City the day Old John Franklin bought a big box of candy. I was down at the far end of the counter and he didn't see me.

At the time I didn't think so much about it. I should have, I guess. John Franklin isn't the kind to buy a big frilly box of candy for anybody—except as a practical joke.

Well, that happened on Saturday. On Monday morning I was hanging out the clothes pretty early. It surprised me a little to see Mary streaking across her front yard trying to catch Bill Simpkins before he could drive off in his car.

She was all smiles and flushes and she looked as pretty as could be right then. Of course I couldn't hear everything they said over the clothes line. But she explained the rest of it to me that afternoon when she came to borrow my steam iron to press her only good dress.

She said Bill had been so shy he had left the box of candy on her doorstep instead of giving it to her personally. She had run out to thank him that next morning. Now he had asked her to go to a movie this very night!

My guess was that he was too kind to tell her the truth and thought that by taking her out it would soften the blow if she ever discovered that somebody had played a joke on her.

Well, anyway, it wasn't long before he was taking her to the movies regularly. And the first thing we knew he'd bought a ring! Everybody in town was invited to the wedding.

I couldn't be sure about John Franklin until the day of the wedding. I kept wondering to myself, had he sent that big frilly box of candy to Mary as a practical joke or as a gentle nudge to Bill? But I had my answer when I looked into his face as Mary walked down the isle. He was the most satisfied looking man in the church!

My mother used to say: You never know what a man's really like, underneath.

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

One World in Christ.

Lesson for July 19: Ephesians 2: 8-10, 13-22.

Golden Text: Ephesians 2: 19.

Mr. Willkie wrote of one world, but long centuries before his time Paul had envisioned one world in Christ. Men are to be saved, not by their own works, but through their faith in Christ. And in this there is the possibility of men throughout the world to become fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God.

When Jesus died on the cross, a wondrous, strange thing happened. The veil of the temple, which had separated all but the high priest from the Holy of holies, was rent in twain from the top to the bottom, showing that henceforth all men, through faith might venture through the riven veil and approach the mercy seat, there to find God for themselves. It may have been to this riven veil that Paul referred when he wrote of breaking down the middle wall or partition. Certainly through Christ all men have "access in one Spirit unto the Father."

Thus all men are envisioned under the gospel, which can bring those that are near and those that are afar off into one household of faith. Nothing could be more comprehensive than the fine picture that Paul draws of Christians being drawn together in the work of building a fit temple unto God, founded upon the apostles and prophets, with Christ as the corner stone.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"J. P.? . . . Can you come in for a minute? Townsend's about to ask for a raise and it's too funny to miss"

FIRST ANNIVERSARY

By Mary L. Bowles

VERA DANSE centered the tiny Dresden dancing girl in the bowl of violets. Gilbert was already an hour late. She had almost dialed the gift shop several times. She had not done so, because she was afraid that Maureen would answer and call Gilbert to the telephone. Yet Maureen, as Gilbert's assistant, had a right to answer. She and Gilbert often worked late checking merchandise. But not tonight—the celebration of the first anniversary of their wedding.

As she had many times before, Vera thought how different she and Maureen were in temperament and appearance. Vera was fair and small and chose pastel shades in clothes which she accented with fragile jewelry. Maureen was a tall woman who wore rich colors or black with only a gold clip or large gold earrings.

Vera thought of her first meeting with Gilbert over two years ago. She had strayed into a gift shop on Wabash Avenue. A tall, deeply tanned man had come forward to meet her. She hardly realized what she had bought. After that she returned to the shop many times. One bright October day Gilbert asked her to dinner.

One day Vera had been browsing about the shop, when Gilbert pointed to two figurines he had just unpacked. The tiny figures looked like fugitives from the ballet. "Gifts for the ladies," he had said. He handed the girl to Vera and the boy to Maureen.

"They're lovely," Vera remembered saying, "but is it right to part them? I'm sure they're lovers."

"Perhaps they'll get back together," Maureen had said

Several months later Gilbert and Vera had been married. Their home had been set up in Gilbert's apartment on the North Side. Every time she dusted the figurine, she had a shamed desire for its dancing mate.

Now alone on the first anniversary of their wedding, she could stand the room no longer. She decided to drive to the shop.

Ashamed, yet determined, she decided to see if Gilbert was at Maureen's apartment. She hurried to the apartment hotel. The elevator could not carry her fast enough to the sixteenth floor. She knocked at Maureen's door.

"Come in," Maureen called faintly.

"It's Vera," the visitor said.

"I'll be out in a minute," Maureen called from the bathroom.

Vera dropped into the nearest chair. The dressing table was bare. The desk and book shelves were empty. On the bed was an open suitcase, filled with lingerie. In one corner stood a wardrobe trunk, its racks crowded with summer dresses.

Maureen entered. Her scarlet robe seemed to drain all the color from her face. Smiling unsteadily, she stretched out on the bed and adjusted a pillow under her head. With an effort she spoke, "I suppose Gilbert has told you."

"Why . . . no . . . no . . ." stammered Vera.

"It's hard to tell," Maureen continued. "I dread putting it in words . . but I might as well confess. I'm a sick woman. Asthma and sinus infection have joined forces to drive me out of Chicago. I'm leaving for Tucson tonight. Gilbert insisted on picking up my reservation. He said you would understand."

"I'm sorry," Vera murmured. "You just missed Gilbert. He was in such a hurry, I forgot to give him your anniversary present." She picked up the package on the bed and handed it to Vera. Beneath the layers of tissue paper she found the figurine . . the partner of her ballet dancer. Perhaps, it would be symbolic—the lovers would truly be together at last.

By LYN CONNELLY

THE question of why hit tunes have such a short period of popularity plagued even Thomas Edison . . . He believed it had to do with the mechanism of the inner ear . . . Located there, stated Edison, are the so-called "Rods of Corti" . . . approximately 3,000 small stiff rods, massed together like the hairs on a brush . . Each hair is supposed to be tuned to a definite note in the musical scale . . . When the note is sounded, the hair vibrates, transmitting the sound thru the nerves to the brain . . .

The too constant operation of any group of these hairs undoubtedly leads to irritation . . . possibly to an actual swelling at the base of the hairs . . . It is the theory of many scientists that this may be one of the underlying causes for the rapid way we tire of popular hits.

Today's 21-inch set at $199.95 costs only 91 cents a square inch . . . Through last November, there were more than two million less radio sets built than the previous year while in the same period, 330,000 more TV sets were produced than in 1951.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lathrop Tucker Mullins

Little boys, especitly around the age of four, will use all sorts of strategy to postpone the nightly settling down to sleep. Sometimes they employ demands for drinks of water, trips to the bathroom, complaints about the cover or comments on "strange" noises and shadows. Our four-year-old frequently uses the Endless Question routine.

"Who made rabbits?" he asked the other night at bedtime.

I answered, "God did," and he then launched quickly into a series of such questions. "Who made bugs? Who made camels? Who made polar bears? Who made snakes? Who made baby skunks?"

After repeating the same answer a dozen times, I got impatient and said, "God made everything. Now you go to sleep."

"Do you mean," he asked, "that God even found time to make Kleenex?" And he won a delay of bedtime again!

The mother down the street and her big family observe a pleasant bedtime custom: Before they go to bed at night they all gather on the stairs, and each one tells of the nicest thing that happened to him during the day and of the loveliest sight he saw.

You can imagine how happy she was one night when her twelve-year-old son said, "The prettiest thing I saw today was mother in the kitchen making apple pie."

Our next door neighbor has been industriously making jams, jellies, preserves and marmalades ever since the first dewberry ripened last Spring. She and her family couldn't possibly consume all the sweets she has canned, so I keep hoping she intends to share with her neighbors.

Anyhow, she knows a lot of ways to make canning and preserving easier. For instance, she always rubs the inside of her jam kettle with a little olive oil before using it. She says the oil positively prevents the jam from sticking while it is cooking.

She uses a gravey boat (not her best china one, though) to fill her jars and jelly glasses. The gravy boat can be easily dipped into the hot liquid, and its long spout makes it easy to fill containers without spilling a drop.

When she is peeling peaches for canning, she keeps them from turning dark by dropping them into a salt water solution as she peels them, a solution of about a tablespoon of salt to a gallon of water. When she is ready to begin cooking the peaches, she just drains them thoroughly and proceeds as usual with the canning.

No matter how much preserving and canning she does, her hands always remain white and unstained. If I so much as make two small glasses of fruit jelly, my hands are stained all the way up past my wrists, so, of course, I was interested in how she manages to keep hers stainless. It seems that as soon as she finishes handling the fruit, she rubs her hands with corn meal moistened with vinegar.

I'm seriously considering trying the treatment on the four-year-old's feet!

Wash 3 pounds of figs and cut into small pieces. Remove seeds from 4 oranges and put oranges through food chopper. Add to figs together with 2 pounds sugar. Cook over low heat until thick and jelly-like. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Locally-Grown Seed Is Often The Best Buy Says Expert

Many Alabama farmers are producing seed just as high in quality as those from other states, according to Ralph Jones, API seed crops specialist.

He lists these reasons for using reliable locally-grown seed: (1) They are more likely to be of recommended variety. (2) They are not usually subjected to long hauls, long storage, and other adverse handling which may lower germination. (3) They are more likely to be fully acclimatized, which is important with some crops. (4) Local growers usually do not misrepresent seed which are sold close by. (5) Using locally-grown seed reduces danger of bringing in new insects, diseases, and objectionable weeds. (6) There is less chance for these seed to be blended or mixed up with other varieties or strains.

Play Safe When You Are Canning With A Pressure Cooker

Auburn, Ala.—Use your common sense and consult the manufacturer's instruction book when using a pressure canner.

That's the advice of Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist, who offers homemakers these additional safety steps in careful canning.

"Be sure the guage on the pressure canner is accurate," says the home leader, "particularly if it's the dial type. Tighten loose handles so cookers can be handled safely. Check gaskets for broken places, and never let a pressure canner boil dry."

Wait until the pressure has dropped to zero before opening the cooker, continues Miss Curtis. Then open the lid and lift it from the side opposite you. Clean the canner before and after using it.

LIBERTY HILL BAPTIZING

Baptizing services will be conducted at the Liberty Hill Baptist Church at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The services will be conducted by the former pastor of the church, Rev. Fred L. Lowery. The public is invited to attend the services and all candidates for Baptism are urged to be present.

THIS CRISIS YEAR AND GOD'S SOLUTION

Events in our world are rapidly moving on to a crisis. Men of national and international standing and reputation say the crisis of the ages is just before us.

Many discerning minds foresaw the storm as it was brewing during the past decade. We quote:

"Over Europe and Asia now the night of freedom is falling. The lights of two thousands years are going out, and the darkness is loud with rumbling guns, the booming prayers of the guns of the prince of darkness." Basil Fitzgerald, in "America," 1940.

Thousands of years ago the prophets of God wrote down in the Bible a clear statement of this crisis hour of history. Jeremiah wrote thus, two thousand five hundred years ago:

"O my heart, my heart! Oh how it throbs! My soul is moaning! I cannot hold my peace, for I hear the blare of trumpets and the battle cry. Crash upon crash!—the whole country is down, our tents (houses) are laid low in a second, our curtains (walls) torn down in a moment! How long must I see war signals and hear trumpet blasts?" Jeremiah 4:19-21, Moffat's Translation.

How true are these words in modern bombing of cities, and in this atomic age.

What is God's Solution?

What will be the outcome of the present world unheaval? What plan has God made to meet this situation? The Bible prophecies contain these answers.

Do you wish to know what message they carry for this time? Do you wish to know how you can fit into God's great plan of the ages?

Then come to the Adventist church Sunday evening 7:30 to hear and see the talking pictures on the screen dealing with "The Signs of the Times."—Allen Walker, Pastor.

Please Note New Policy Of Red Cross Blood Program

Effective April 1st, 1953, a drastic change was made in our Red Cross blood program policy. This was printed in the county papers March, 1953, as a forewarning to the public to come to the local Blood Center the next time Red Cross collected blood in our County, in order to have protection for their immediate families in the event blood is needed for some member of the immediate family. We are having this new policy published again with the hope that everyone will see the importance of giving a pint of their blood at the Center when the bloodmobile unit again visits our County.

Under the new plan: The Birmingham Regional Blood Center Co-Ordinating Committee has defined "Immediate Family" to include husband, wife, minor children (under 18 years old) and dependent parents. This new policy means that every donor of blood and his or her immediate family is assured that upon request that his or her immediate family will receive blood whenever it is needed. When you give a pint of blood at your local Red Cross Center you are given a donor card which entitles you and your immediate family to receive blood until the expiration date shown on said card; then you must again give blood in order to renew your donor card; and still be entitled for Red Cross blood. No charge is ever made for Red Cross blood, however, the hospitals and doctors do reserve the right to charge a laboratory and/or administration fee; and Red Cross does not receive any part of this fee. Another feature in the new plan is that if a person offers to donate blood but is rejected for physical reasons at the center—he or she will be given a donor card which will entitle those in the immediate family to receive blood in time of need. The person receiving blood must present a donor card to the hospital; unless the case is a "strict emergency." Of course, in such cases where there is no one in the family who can give blood, that is—perhaps what we would term a "Hardship Case." In other words, you must now give to receive, under the new agreement.

The new Red Cross Blood Policy provides that donors and those listed below will be the only people eligible to receive blood:

The Armed Forces and men in Korea.

For all persons over 60 years of age.

For emergencies and disasters.

For those persons reporting as donors who are rejected (will receive same benefits as a donor).

If you have not donated blood in the past it will be to your advantage to donate a pint at our next local Blood Center in the County which will be in Maplesville, Ala., July 31st, 1 noon until 6:00 p.m., at the Stremming Club House. Besides benefitting your immediate family by giving blood, you will probably save a life in Korea or here at home. Please answer the call for blood, as there is a great shortage at the present time. Call your local Red Cross office and make an appointment Mondays, Thursdays or Saturdays of each week.

Causing Peach Losses-

Peach Growers Face Critical Market Basket Shortage Here

Although Chilton County's huge 1953 peach crop is well on it's way to being "cleaned up" and the packing sheds are reporting that their supply has started to drop off somewhat, the remainder of the crop faces a very serious damage from the lack of a sufficient supply of market baskets.

As was reported to the Chilton County News yesterday, both wholesale and retail suppliers of the market baskets produced and shipped the usual amount of the containers, but that the big crop had soon taken up all available baskets.

In some areas in the county peach growers are reported to have stopped picking their fruit until they are able to get something in which to place the product. In many orchards trees are still bending to the ground and the fruit is over-ripe and rotting because of the dire need for containers.

One Chilton County peach grower reported that when a load of the baskets does come into the county now that almost before the truck can be brought to a halt the baskets have been taken off.

While this serious condition continues many of Chilton's peach packers are still reported to be running at full blast. However, in some instances they are reported to be slowing down somewhat. One of the more prominent packing shed operators reported that up to the present time he had estimated they had shipped up to 70 carloads of peaches so far this year. At the same time he estimated that his operation alone would probably ship as much as 90 carloads of peaches by the end of the shipping season. In other instances the shed operators reported much the same story.

Checking further into the present peach situation, M. R. Glasscock, county agent, was asked whether or not his original estimate of the peach crop for this year would be altered in any way. He reported that at the present time his first-of-the-season figures still hold, but that probably in a week or so he might have a more definite statement of facts and figures on this year's peach crop production and in dollars and cents that have been derived from the crop.

Year Round Hog Feeding A Success

Salt and plenty of clean water and green grazing has proved to be very successful in a year-round hog feeding program on the farm of John Lett of Verbena.

According to Assistant County Agent John Sellers, Lett selected Duroc, Poland China and Hampshire crosses for his market hogs. The pigs were born November 16, 1952, and were placed on oats, vetch, and bur clover. After weaning they began receiving a small portion of pig and hog ration, salt and plenty of clean water in combination with green grazing.

Pfeister 61 hybrid corn was planted March 18, 1953, for early hogging-off. This corn was in the mature stage on June 28, when the hogs were turned in on the field. Lett is expecting this corn supply to feed his hogs until they are topped out.

Leader Gives Hints On Making Your Packing Easier

Here are some tips for summer travelers on neater, more convenient packing from Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist.

Put toothpaste and brush, soap, wash cloth, deodorant, and cosmetics in one plastic bag. Wrap caps of bottles containing liquids with cellophane tape, and insert them in another plastic bag.

"Pack in layers," advises the home leader. "Put bulky items on the bottom of your suitcase and lingerie, accessories and blouses, dresses, and nightwear on top. Pin blouses to shirt cardboards so they will keep their shape. Fold in sweater sleeves and roll to prevent ridges. And use tissue paper in shoulders and folds of dresses and suits."

Harvest Trees When They Are Mature Advises Forester

According to I. R. Martin, API Extension Forester, trees are mature or ripe when rate of growth has slowed down to almost nothing. And he lists several signs of maturity by which owners can select those trees ready for harvesting.

"Large size is one indication of maturity," he explains. "But rate of growth should also be accurately checked with an increment borer, a hollow drill that extracts a core of wood by boring into the tree.

"If the tree is growing slowly, annual rings on the core will be close together. Rings will be wide apart if the tree is still growing rapidly. Three inches of diameter growth in 10 years is a good rate for southern pines."

Other indications of ripeness are dead limbs on the top of the tree, sparse and yellowish foliage, and noticeable thinning out of the crown, adds Martin. Abnormally rough bark on hardwoods also is another sign, as are smooth, slick, rectangular bark plates and flat tops on southern pines. Normal life span of the particular species may also be a determining maturity factor.

"Harvesting operations should also include damaged or defective trees," emphasizes the forester. "These trees should be harvested first so they can be removed in time to salvage sound logs above or below the point of damage. Their removal also makes more room for sound, vigorous trees of desirable kinds."

ON CROSS-COUNTRY WALKING

A new record in cross-country hiking was claimed recently by David Power, 61-year-old vegetarian. Mr. Power claimed he had hiked across the United States from Santa Monica, California, to New York in seventy-three days.

The old record is reportedly seventy-seven days, and was set in 1910. To accomplish this feat, Power claims he averaged walking over forty miles a day, six days a week, during his cross-country walkathon. He did not put in any walking time on Sundays.

The new champion, who covered a distance of 3,160 miles in his championship effort, began each walking day at seven in the morning, beginning on April 20th, and walking various distances on various days.

We congratulate Mr. Power on his accomplishment, although we do not necessarily recommend such a venture. However, if one has the inclination, the seventy-three days and the money to buy food and shoes for such a trip, it is a good way to get a down-to-earth look at these United States.

THE VACATION INDUSTRY

The American Auomobile Association has estimated that motorists, vacationing in the forty-eight states this year, will spend more han $9,000,000,000. This figure shows the extent of the new industry which has sprung up in the United States with the coming of the automobile and the national highway system.

It is estimated that about 65,000,000 Americans, men, women and children, will be on the nation's highways this summer alone, while another nine or ten million will travel in other conveyances to some vacation land. The 65,000,000 automobile travellers comprise a market group which was almost non-existent twenty-five or thirty years ago.

They have become a major consumer group and the motivation for an entirely new industry—the vacation industry. One of the symbols of this new industry is the motor court. These courts are being increased by an estimated 2,000 a year, and already there are between forty and fifty thousand in the country.

Not only do the tourists increase sales of vacation equipment and clothing in the major vacation areas of the country, but the money they must spend for lodging and meals often brings boom conditions to choice vacation restaurants and hotels.

Public-minded citizens in this community, should utilize every possibility to make local vacation spots ideal for tourists from both far and near. Few communities in this country can complain that there are no ideal vacation spots in their area. And, since the tourist and vacation industry is sure to grow in the coming years, rather than decline, it will benefit this community to see that our vacation and tourist possibilities are utilized to the fullest extent.

The end result will be more business, more profits and an improved rate of growth for our community.

Bids will be taken July 30 on the new $600,000 five-story Alabama Public Health Building to be erected by the Alabama Building Corporation. State Building Commission Director H. H. Houk said that it would take approximately 10 months to erect the structure, which will be located behind the present State Judicial Building, across the street from the new eight-story State Office Building, now going up. It will thus be easily accessible to the State Health Department Offices, which will be in the new State Building. Two-thirds of the cost of financing the Public Health Building will be furnished from the Hill-Burton fund, the other one-third will come from the State of Alabama. The Alabama Building Corporation includes Gov. Gordon Persons, president; State Industrial Relations Director Joseph Coleman, vice-president; Attorney General Si Garrett, secretary, and State Finance Director D. W. Hodo, treasurer. Houk said the new Public Health Building, which had been badly needed for many years, will be of concrete exterior and will follow the design of the State Highway Department Building and the new State Office Building. The interior will be of tile, with modern fixtures, air conditioning, and with a ventilation system which will dispel all odors. The $600,000 building price includes architects' fees and equipment. It will have a half basement, four other floors and ... penthouse, the latter to be used as a small anima experimental clinic.

Cull All Low Producers Says Dairy Specialist

Auburn, Ala. — Dairymen are advised by J. R. Parrish, API Extension dairyman, to cull all low producers from their herds.

"A cow producing 5000 pounds of milk per year," he explains, "pays the farmer less than 50 cents an hour for labor. On the other hand, a cow producing 7500 pounds will return one dollar for each hour of labor—and at only a slightly higher feed and management cost."

Since dairy cow prices may go down in the next few months, producers should sell their culls right away, continues the specialist.

"However," emphasizes Parrish, "be sure to eliminate only those animals that have low production rates because of inherent characteristics. Others may not be producing well because of poor care or feeding."

Foreign Aid Program—

Last week the House and Senate both approved a compromise foreign aid authorization bill of $5.1 billion and President Eisenhower promptly signed it. This bill, known as the Mutual Security Act of 1953, authorizes $317 million less than President Eisenhower originally requested and $2.4 billion below the amount recommended by former President Truman.

This authorization measure does not actually appropriate any money for foreign aid, but it does set a limit on the funds that may be appropriated for this program for fiscal year 1954. The bill which will actually appropriate funds for foreign aid is known as the Mutual Security Appropriation bill and will probably be considered by the House this week.

In addition to limiting the funds that may be appropriated for foreign aid, the Mutual Security Act of 1953 contains other important provisions. Perhaps the most important is the provision terminating the Mutual Security program on June 30, 1951. However, an additional three years is allowed for the liquidation of the agency and the completion of the delivery of military equipment on order.

A second important provision makes half of the $2.1 billion in proposed military aid for Europe contingent upon ratification of the European Army treaty. This treaty embraces France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg. West Germany is the only country to date that has ratified the European Army treaty. It is hoped that this provision will hasten ratification by the five remaining countries.

A third provision of importance in the Mutual Security Act is that there must be a 10% reduction of United States civilian administrative personnel connected with the Mutual Security Administration. Last year Congress enacted a similar provision for a 10% cut in personnel.

The measure also provides that a minimum of $100 million and a maximum of $250 million can be used for sending U. S. crop surpluses abroad.

When the Mutual Security Appropriation bill reaches the floor of the House, some members will support the maximum authorization of $5.1 billion. Other members feel the overall program must be continued—at least for the time being—but they do not believe it is necessary for Congress to appropriate as much as $5.1 billion. For this reason they voted for the bill authorizing the program with a $5.1 billion limit, but they expect to vote for reductions in the appropriation bill. Still others believe the whole program should be terminated at once. It is my guess that the House will appropriate several millions below the $5.1 billion limit unless President Eisenhower exerts strong pressure for the full amount.

Other Legislation—

The Republican leadership, still aiming at a July 31st adjournment, is speeding up action on legislation in both the House and Senate. Last week the House considered and passed a number of important measures.

In the sharpest cut in the momory of veteran Congressional observers, the House reduced a $1 billion supplemental appropriation bill by 84%. This reduction was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee.

The House passed by a voice vote a bill to reorganize the Farm Credit Administration. This bill will reduce sharply the Secretary of Agriculture's influence on this agency and put more of the agency's policy-making power in the hands of the farmers.

President Eisenhower's reorganization plans number 7 and 8 were approved by the House and will automatically become effective on July 31st unless a full majority of the Senate vetoes them. These reorganization plans create two new agencies to operate the foreign aid and overseas information programs.

By a voice vote the House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to restore the authority of the Food and Drug Adminismtration to inspect, at any "reasonable" time, food, drug and cosmetic factories without the consent of their owners. A court decision had taken away this authority.

The House adopted a resolution introduced by Rep. Brooks Hays of Arkansas authorizing and directing the Capitol architect to make a room available in the Capitol with facilities for prayer and meditation to be used by the members of Congress. Rep. Hays summarized the two objectives of this Resolution : (1) To serve the convenience of Members who, in the midst of legislative duties, wish a place of retreat for prayer and meditation; and (2) to symbolize the nation's faith and our belief in religious freedom.

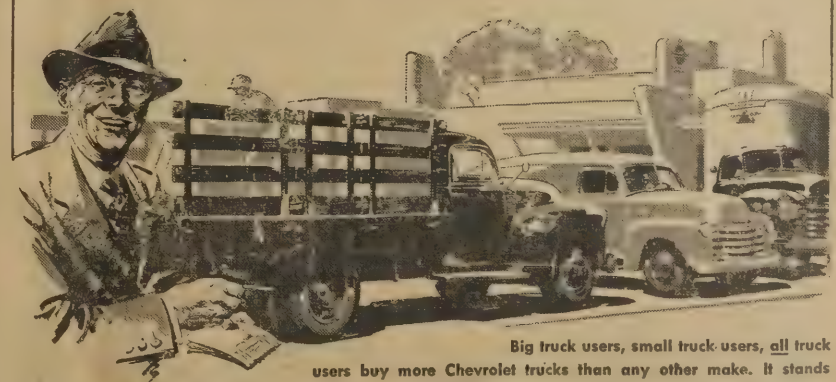
It stands to reason...

Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!



Big truck users, small truck users, all truck users buy more Chevrolet trucks than any other make. It stands to reason Chevrolet trucks must offer more of what you want.

When you stop to think about it, the best proof of outstanding value in any product is continued public preference. That's the way it is with Chevrolet trucks. They're the top selling trucks in America today . . . for the twelfth straight production year.

This is a mighty important fact to consider before you buy your next truck. You'll also want to consider that, while Chevrolet trucks give you more features you want, it's the lowest-priced truck line of all! Come in and talk it over with us.

Farm Accidents

One-fourth of all on-the-job work deaths occur in agriculture, and one-fourth of all home accidental deaths occur in farm homes. Each year 15,000 farm people lose their lives in accidents.

Prevent Soil Waste

A good sod is one of the best weapons against waste of soil and water. Grass anchors soil against erosion, helps soil soak up and hold rainfall, and adds organic matter to increase yields of future crops.

KEEP ORANGE JUICE COLD

Orange juice squeezed and strained the night before using will lose very little vitamin C if it is kept cold and covered.

MAMIE EISENHOWER, who can't read music, has a new Hammond organ . . . Ray Anthony's instrumental "Piccadilly Circus" is a new title but the tune was recorded once before as "Long Island Sound" . . . Vic Damone may get the role turned down by Mario Lanza in "Student Prince" . . . Wonder when Mario is going to step down from the pedestal on which he has placed himself. He's really not as good a singer as he seems to think . . . Maggie Whiting, who tends toward anemia, has been okayed by medicos for a tour of Korea . . . They loved Doris Day in Cincinnati, but they should . . It's her home town.

Dorothy Shay is being groomed for a TV series, "Park Avenue Hillbilly" . Current joke making the rounds: Fellow married a girl singer . . Morning after the wedding he saw her in daylight for the first time . . "Good heavens," he yelled, "SING!" Woody Herman celebrated his 15th year as a band leader recently.

PLATTER CHATTER:

CAPITOL:—Chalk Mary Ford and Les Paul up with another hit in their latest discing, "Vaya Con Dios" . . Beverse has "Johnny" . Frank Sinatra does well with an oldie, "I've Got the World on a String" with "My One and Only Love" on the flip side . . Gisele MacKenzie gets into the hillbilly-type music craze with a good side in "I'd Rather Die Young Than Grow Old Without You" . . "I Didn't Want to Love You" backs it . . Helen O'Connell also joins the charmed circle with "You Two-Timed Me One Time Too Often" and "Rub-a-Dub-Dub" . . Helen also has a good waxing in that new favorite, "No Other Love."

Still on Capitol, Ray Anthony comes up with a super rendition of that traditional, "When the Saints Go Marching in March" . . It's got "That's My Weakness Now" on the flip side . . Gene O'Quin does a creditable job on "Til Stop Loving You" and "I Don't Want Your Kisses."

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

We received a message this week that upset us greatly. We learned that Dr. W. L. Parrish has twins and they are white faced Hereford bulls. Now coming at one time that is a lot of bull you know. In fact, it's twice as much bull as we usually hear about. Chick Fiquette did the same thing last year. Maybe its getting to be an annual event in Chilton County and we can hold a contest. Who will be next to present their county with twin bulls in the bovine family.

Understand the new parsonage out at Concord Church is just about completed and the pastor and his family has moved in. Rev. Homer Carroll is the pastor and we're glad he and his have got settled in their new home.

Watch for a new advertising idea coming out of Upchurch Drug Store within the next few weeks. Ralph Johnston says it is for everybody, but the young boys and girls will get the biggest bang out of it. It's something new in Chilton County and Ralph is really excited about the prospects. He was talking to us about it the other night and we heartily agree with him. The teenagers will love it.

W. D. Hocutt is selling a handy little device that we are thinking of buying. Now, we know this sounds like a column of new advertising ideas, but it just so happens that we run up on these two paragraphs while out soliciting business. Hocutt's little device dresses up your wrapping paper rolls for you. It prints your ad on the wrapping paper as you use it. We wouldn't be plugging this little machine if we could do the same thing, but we can't, so we are telling you about some one who can. That's Hocutt.

L. C. Warr was telling us about a funny thing that happened in a class of Mrs. Warr's a long time ago. He happened to think of it because of the paragraph written last week by Mrs. Kathryn Windham who writes "Around Our House." It seems Mrs. Warr had been telling the little fellows about an egg hatching and she had a diagram showing the different stages. The first showed the egg; the second a tiny pip in the shell; the third a little larger crack, and so on until the little chick was hatched and jumped up and ran away. When the demonstration was finished, Mrs. Warr asked the children if any of them had a question. One little fellow jumped up and asked: "How did he get in the egg?"

ELECTED TO PHI KAPPA PHI

Miss Mary Tom Baker of Thorsby has been elected to Phi Kappa Phi honor society at API, according to a report received today.

REVIVAL THIS WEEK AT PILGRIM'S REST

REVIVAL AT WEST END BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Lewis Marler, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, Selma, Alabama, will be the evangelist for the revival at West End Baptist Church, Clanton, Alabama, beginning Sunday, August 2nd, and continuing through Friday night, at 7 o'clock each evening. The morning services will be broadcast over the local station at 700 a.m. Billy Childress, also from Selma, is to be the song leader.

J. MALLEY GULLEDGE

J. Malley (Jake) Gulledge, age 74, died at a Birmingham hospital Tuesday after an illness for several weeks. Mr. Gulledge was a great fisherman and was for many years manager of the Blue Creek Fishing Lodge near Verbena. He had scores of close friends, fishermen and sportsmen, who respected him very highly.

Funeral services for Mr. Gulledge were held from Martin Chapel Wednesday morning, with burial in Verbena Cemetery.

He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. J. F. Stroud, Sr., Union Springs, Ala., Miss Julia Lee Gulledge and Mrs. Frances Bell McArdie of Birmingham; three nephews, Caldwell Gulledge, Robert Gulledge and Frank McArdie of Birmingham; and two nieces, Mrs. Patterson of Montgomery and Mrs. H. M. Stewart of Cornelia, Ga.

Seventeen members representing seven Chilton County Home Demonstration Clubs recently conducted a dress revue along with the Home Demonstration County Council meeting that was conducted in Clanton's City Hall.

Mrs. W. J. Preston of Jemison, Council President, presided and Mrs. Aubrey Smith of Poplar Springs was acting secretary in the absence of Mrs. S. A. Jones. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Beulah Williams, of Fairview, 1st vice-president; Mrs. R. E. Calfee of Isabella, secretary; Mrs. Lewis McGee of Isabella, parliamentarian; Mrs. Clifton Parrish of Baker, rural youth chairman; Mrs. Raymond Cox of Thomas Jr., defense activities chairman.

The Home Demonstration Club of the Year Contest was discussed. Clubs were asked to write reports of activities done by the Club during the past year. These reports should be in the Home Agent's Office by August 1st. The Club selected from the County will enter the District Club of The Year Contest.

Home Demonstration activities for the County Fair August 25th-29th, were discussed. Each Club is to urge all members to contribute home-made articles for the bazaar. Members were also urged to finish blocks for the friendship quilt and get them in to the Home Agents. Fairview Club is to put the blocks together and quilt the quilt which will be disposed of at the Fair. A schedule is to be made so that each Club will have members responsible for working in the bazaar and concession stand at the Fair.

The Council discussed possible demonstrations that would be available for Clubs during 1954. Members voted on some demonstrations they would like to have during the year. This list will be completed and announced later.

Plans were made for a county-wide Home Demonstration picnic at Log Cabin Beach Thursday, August 13th. Members from all Clubs throughout the County should bring a picnic lunch and meet at Log Cabin Beach at 11:00 a.m. Individual Clubs are also planning picnics to be held in August.

The Council voted to have the next meeting in the form of a dinner meeting at one of the local cafes. This meeting will be October 15th, and the place will be announced.

After the business meeting the Dress Revue was held. Winners were: First place, Mrs. L. D. Gore, Mineral Springs; second place, Mrs. T. L. Williams, Cane Creek; third place, Mrs. Lewis McGee, Isabella. Other ladies making dresses were Mrs. Ruby Penton, Poplar Springs, and Mrs. Gordon Conway, Isabella. Prizes for the Contest were awarded by the following stores of Clanton: Mullins & Scott, Thrifty, Chicago Sales, Elmore's, Yellow Front, and Watson's. Mrs. Gore will represent Chilton County in the State Dress Revue which will be held in Biloxi, Miss., the first week in November.

Chilton County Public Library Opens Saturday

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

For the past several years passed several Chilton County Civic organizations have made numerous attempts to get a public library started and it may be that now this much-needed facility has been born.

The Chilton County Library will open it's doors tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock upstairs in the Chilton County News Building and is sponsored by the Chilton County Chapter of the American Association of University Women.

The new library, which has been organized for the use by the general public of the county, will be open each Saturday afternoon from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m.

The A.A.U.W. started their project some two years ago by conducting a book shower and a good many excellent books were received at that time. From then on there have been many other book contributions until at the present time the new library opens it's doors with a total of about 150 books of nearly every description. According to Mrs. Vernon Payne, President of the A.A.U.W., about three fourths of the books are fiction. Others include excellent reference material and there is a full set of the encyclopedia.

According to Mrs. Payne books may be taken out of the library free of charge for one week at a time. If a book is kept out for a longer period of time a charge of two cents per day will be charged against the person keeping the book over-time. Through the small beginning the A.A.U.W. hopes that the present facility will develop into a much larger and better library program. Excellent help will be on hand to assist all those wishing help in selecting books for their particular needs. The A.A.U.W. extends an invitation to everyone in the county to make use of this new public library.

County 4-H Club Boy Among 10 State Winners

A lamp made by a Chilton County 4-H Club boy that won first prize in the county contest was judged among the first ten winners in the State 4-H Lamp Making Contest during the recent State 4-H Camp in Auburn.

Although Raybon Sandlin, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sandlin of Rt. 2, Clanton, was not attending the recent camp, his prize-winning lamp was entered in the state contest by Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent.

There were two types of lamps entered in the state contest, study lamps and pretty lamps, and Sandlin's lamp was entered in the latter class. The local boy's lamp won first place in the county contest. His lamp is made of a piece of drift wood.

Farm Safety Urged

This week has been proclaimed as National Farm Safety Week by President Eisenhower, in cooperation with the National Safety Council, the United States Department of Agriculture and others interested in promoting safety on the farm including the local Soil Conservation Department, headed by Olin G. Fields.

The observance of National Safety Week began in 1944 with an official proclamation by the President of the United States. This is the tenth consecutive year that the last full week of July has been so designated.

In observance of this special week, Fields and other local conservation officials have urged Chilton County farmers to clean up and prevent accidents around the farm so that farmers can "Live to Farm and Farm to Live" without the pain and expense that go with accidents.

Several Request Conservation Help

Several requests have been received by the local Conservation Service during the past week or ten days for help and advice on selecting the right kinds of grass that would help in the control of erosion and the laying out of water disposal systems.

Olin G. Fields, local Soil Conservation Director, has reported a visit from Charlie Childress of Route 1, Jemison, who is seeking advice on the kind of grass to be used for a job of soil erosion control. Childress also said he wanted the grass that would do as good a job for beef production as lespedeza on the same amount of fertilizer.

Childress told Fields that he believed that to stay in the cattle business, the farmer will have to use deep-rooted perennials, such as sericea, behia, bermuda, kudzu or fescue as the base plants to build a grazing program. Fields reported that the above plants, if properly fertilized and grazed, will furnish a good pasture and soil protection at the same time.

Tey Mullins, of the Enterprise Community, has recently purchased a farm in the Shiloh section and has requested the Conservation Service for assistance in laying out a water disposal system on his new farm. G. L. Grover of Stanton, has made a request for assistance in the laying out of a pond.

COUNTY 4-H'ERS REPORT ON STATE CAMP AT AUBURN

Eight members of 4-H Clubs of Chilton County represented this area at the recent State 4-H Camp in Auburn under the guidance of Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Johnnie Martin, and Assistant County Agent, Dan Mims.

The County 4-H'ers who attended the camp were Patsy Young, Cane Creek; Nina Sue Headley, Mt. Pisgah; Arlene Brown, Mt. Creek; Carolyn Cox, Thomas Jr.; Cora Sandlin, Poplar Springs; Jimmy Kincaid and Zed Williams, Thorsby, and Bill Varden, Jemison.

Each of these 4-H'ers are carrying on very worthwhile projects and are keeping good records of their work. Each one is an outstanding leader in his local Club and community. Patsy Young represented the County in the State Dress Revue and Nina Sue Headley was in the State Baking Contest. Jimmy Kincaid was a candidate for State 4-H President. Voting delegates from the County were Cora Sue Sandlin, Arlene Brown, Zed Williams and Bill Varden.

The agents feel that this camp was very worthwhile and that each of the 4-H'ers enjoyed it and received much fun from it that will be helpful to them as well as to the other boys and girls of the County.

The following reports have been received by Miss Martin from 4-H'ers who attended camp:

"I enjoyed my trip to Auburn very much. We had a full week: everything planned for our entertainment. One of the interesting meetings I attended was the Dairy Foods Elimination, in which we did not have a contestant from this County. Two of the demonstrations were "Cheese To Please" and "Dry Milk Solids." I learned how to make many left-over dishes more tasty by pouring melted cheese over them. Also varying your breakfast with egg on toast with cheese sauce. We hope to have a Dairy Foods Contestant from this County next year. By Carolyn Cox."

"I enjoyed the trip to Auburn very much. We attended meetings in the morning and at night. We saw the talent contest Tuesday and Wednesday nights. We went to Chewacla State Park Thursday afternoon for a picnic and sunset service. The thing I enjoyed most was the folk games which we learned how to play. We learned many things that we can teach other 4-H Club members here in our County.

By Nina Sue Headley."

"We went to Auburn Monday, July 6th. We had a very nice room in one of the girls dormitories to stay in. During the week they kept us very busy but it was lots of fun. The main thing I liked best was the talent show. It was fun to watch and see different kinds of talent. Each County had an entry in the talent contest.

There was swimming Tuesday evening and several other times. Thursday we had a picnic and went swimming. Friday night we had the candle lighting service that was very impressive. All 4-H'ers took part in this service. Each of the girls who had made a dress for the Dress Revue were presented to the group at this time. Their dresses were very attractive.

By Cora Sue Sandlin."

"I want to say "thank you" to the 4-H and Home Demonstration County Council for making it possible for the eight 4-H'ers of the County to attend State 4-H Camp. The Camp was very nice and we all enjoyed it. Our rooms were very comfortable and we were served very good meals at one of the school cafeterias. We enjoyed lots of good singing which was led by Mr. and Mrs. Romaine Smith, young folks editor of Progressive Farmer. We will be able to teach these songs to the other boys and girls of the County.

To all of the 4-H'ers who didn't get to go, I want to say, if you are asked to go next year, please go. The main thing you have to do to get to go to Camp is to work extra hard on your 4-H projects and keep good records. It is worth working for, so work hard 4-H'ers.

By Arlene Brown."

It never rains but what it pours! And when it rains water on Highway 31, just below Verbena, that curve about one and a half miles south of Verbena pours out the automobile accidents.

During the rains this past week five automobiles have been involved in accidents as the result of the slippery pavement on that curve south of Verbena on Highway 31.

According to Highway Patrolmen Craddock and Champion a car operated by a man unknown to the Patrolmen apparently skidded on the curve, left the highway and was stuck in the mud. Along came automobiles operated by Fonzie Green, Rt. 2, Clanton, and L. Z. Nance, Rt. 4, Clanton. These two men parked their cars along the highway while they gave assistance to the car that had left the road.

While this operation was being performed a truck-tractor, operated by James L. Grayden of 3434 17th Street, Birmingham, struck the two cars parked on the highway. The two highway Patrolmen reported no one was seriously injured in the accident.

A short time later another car skidded on the same turn. The fifth car was operated by Charles Weinstein, also of Birmingham, who received an apparent slight injury to his left leg. According to Highway Patrolman Champion the Weinstein car also skidded and turned over before coming to a stop.

REMOVING SCUM

To remove scum on the surface of wash water, try using a whisk broom. The scum sticks to the broom and can easily be washed off.

Farm Accidents

One-fourth of all on-the-job work deaths occur in agriculture, and one-fourth of all home accidental deaths occur in farm homes. Each year 15,000 farm people lose their lives in accidents.

Plans for the coming months were recently formulated at a meeting of the Chilton County 4-H Council which met at Clanton's City Hall under the direction of Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent.

After singing several songs the Council members heard reports from 4-H'ers who had attended State 4-H Camp in Auburn 6th-11th. Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, also gave an interesting report of the Camp.

Plans for the 4-H summer recreational meetings to be held the first week in August were made. These meetings will be at the Alabama Power Company recreational area on the Coosa River. Each 4-H'er in the County should make plans to attend the picnic on the day his Club is scheduled. Each one is to bring his lunch and fifteen cents to take care of drink, transportation, and insurance. 4-H'ers will be written letters to give them more details. The schedule for recreational meetings is: Monday, August 3rd, Concord, Cooper, Thomas, Jr., and Pinedale; Tuesday, August 4th, Jemison, Thorsby, Collins Chapel, Mt. Pleasant and Mineral Springs; Thursday, August 6th, Isabella, Maplesville, Stanton and Vermont; Friday, August 7th, Clanton Elementary, Verbena, Enterprise, Baker and Cane Creek.

The 4-H Dairy Maid Contest was discussed. It was decided that at each recreational meeting Clubs would select a girl to represent their Club in the County Contest which will be held during the County Fair, August 25th-29th. Girls are to be selected on points of leadership, 4-H record, poise, appearance, and personality. It is not necessary for a girl to have a dairy project in order to enter the Contest, but she must have a good project or projects and good records.

Twenty-seven 4-H'ers representing eleven Clubs were present. There were also several visitors. Clubs represented were: Cane Creek, Verbena, Maplesville, Enterprise, Jemison, Thomas Jr., Collins Chapel, Isabella, Pinedale, Thorsby and Mt. Pleasant.

CHILTON COUNTY'S FAIR

Chilton County is planning a County Fair this year. To many it will be the first in their memory to be held in the County. With the co-operation of the fine people of our County, and especially the farmers, it can be second to none. And this is as it should be.

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the Chilton County Fair and present plans are to feature livestock. However, to make a fair worthwhile to everyone a county fair should represent much more than one group. This, we believe the Chamber of Commerce will do, and that is where the co-operation of the farmer, his wife and family, the town resident, the merchant, the banker and all who are interested in our county's welfare comes in. Each should get behind the C of C and HELP make it a big success.

There will be plenty of fun provided at the Fair for young and old. Blue and red ribbons will be given away in many classes and departments. Present plans followed it will be just about the biggest thing to happen in our County for a long time, so get the "Fair Spirit" now. Tell your friends about it and make plans to do your part and be there. Remember the date, August 25th through 29th.

HOW TO STOP TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

A city court judge in Utah has discovered a system which seems to be reducing minor traffic violations to a considerable degree. The Clerk of the Court has checked the record of violators who repeat after given the special treatment, and they are found to be few and far between.

The project has been in operation less than a year but it is apparent that the experience is already a success. The judge, W. Dean Loose, of Provo, Utah, says the new approach makes a profound psychological impression on traffic violators.

What is this new approach? It is given the violator, when brought before the judge, the choice of a fine or a jail sentence, or the writing of a thesis on traffic safety. Many of the violators choose the latter course and submit a thesis to the judge.

Evidently the thesis submitted have been well-written for Judge Loose has flunked only two of his pupils. Both re-wrote their thesis and they were later accepted. But the point of it all, Judge Loose contends, is the profound psychological impression the writing of the thesis treatment, the violators manage to stay out of traffic court in most instances.

After going to the trouble of having to write a thesis on traffic safety, we can understand why a motorist would be embarrassed to be hauled into court for violating the very principle on which he wrote so lavishly. With the violator's name signed to the thesis, it is impossible for him to plead ignorant of the law, nor to escape the possibility of being placed in a hypocritical position before the judge. That seems to be the psychology involved in the Provo experiment.

DALE CARNEGIE

HARRIET DANVERS, 1423 Michigan Blvd., Chicago, Illinois, says her marriage was a complete failure, and as a result she suffered a nervous breakdown. This happened about a year and a half ago.

She remembers clearly how worried she was about her future, how was she to support herself and her baby? Where would she put her child while she worked to support the two of them? Could she trust the person she placed in charge of the care of her child?

CARNEGIE

With all these and many more questions running through her mind, she moved to Houston, Texas, to live with her married sister until she was well enough to take up her profession as a registered nurse.

One day, while on duty, she met another registered nurse who gave her a book to read. This book was on the subject of Worry. The first chapter was a revelation. It advised "Living in Day Tight Compartments," or in other words, when you are troubled to live just one day at a time with no thought of the yesterdays or the tomorrows. She followed that advice and did her work to the best of her ability. She declares now that her worries are over. Her child is well cared for, she has a wonderful position in a doctor's office, and she is free of mental strain.

Just living a day at a time made everything come right for her.

LAST October in a speech at Memphis, Tennessee, President Eisenhower praised T V A. and said it "has helped conserve national resources, control floods and promote national defense."

As a result of that speech he received a large vote in the Chattanooga and Knoxville areas. In fact, he carried those areas which are usually heavily Democratic.

In a more recent speech, however, the President has criticised T V A and used it as an example of "creeping socialism." This criticism is having a bad reaction in Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Virginia and Mississippi, states served by T V A. The reaction is being felt in Washington and may have a direct result on congressional elections in 1954.

A number of influential newspapers, who have supported the President's program thus far, have taken issue with him on the subject of T V A. They are pointing out that:

(1) T. V. A. has repaid the Federal Treasury $181,131,519 since 1944. Every penny will be repaid by 1992.

(2) T. V. A. is more than $9,000,000 ahead of schedule in its payment to the federal government.

(3) After paying taxes, operating costs and allowing for depreciation, T. V. A. is showing a new earning of 4.3 per cent on money which the government borrowed at 2 per cent. In other words, the government is making a profit of 2.3 per cent.

The kindest reaction to the President's latest statement concerning T V A in the seven states mentioned is that he is "mistaken about his facts."

A number of conclusions have been reached by political observers who watched the East Germany riots that indicates there was, after all, sound reasoning behind Russia's recent peace bids.

(1) Russian leaders realized that East Germany's puppet regime and other satellite governments have been built on shaky foundations. It was time to ease the tension in these countries.

(2) There is some measure of discontent in the Soviet Union itself and the average Russian does not want a war with the West.

(3) Russian leaders realized the only way to increase living standards in the Soviet Union and its satellites, and thus make the discontented contented, would be to turn its industrial facilities from war to peace-time production. This cannot be accomplished unless the huge supplies sent Red China are cut back sharply. For that reason peace in Korea was of topmost importance.

(4) The Chinese people have been almost continuously at war with someone for almost 30 years. No country can make much progress under such conditions. The Chinese people are beginning to want some of the better things of life that can be had only during peace times.

These, say the experts, are some of the main reasons behind Russia's peace offensive of the past few months.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THE idea of live lobsters from Maine intrigued me. Ideal for a party, I thought, and proceeded to order.

Meanwhile, the wife made elaborate arrangements for a party—a sort of a backyard clam bake. Perhaps I should say backyard lobster bake, except the lobsters had to be boiled.

The lobsters arrived, well packed in ice and kicking. I took them home.

The outdoor fireplace was roaring and a boiling kettle of water, with the correct amount of pepper, etc., added, was ready.

"Well," says I, "shall we dump them into the pot, dear?"

"Aren't you going to kill and clean them first," says she.

"Certainly not," says I. "They have to be dumped alive into the boiling water and cooked for exactly 15 minutes."

"Alive!"

"Sure, honey."

"Then let's see you do it, Mr. Milktoast," says she. "I'll not boil a creature to death, even anything as repulsive looking as those things."

"Go ahead," I urged, "you are a famous cook. Think how it will add to your reputation."

"No," says she.

"O. K. Out of my way!"

After several false starts I grabbed one of the things and held it above the pot. "One, two, three—go," I counted, but my fingers didn't let go. It had sort of a pleading look in its mean little eyes.

"Ha!" says the wife. That was the most insinuating "ha" I ever heard from a human. "Mr Big, your hungry guests are waiting. I'll go get the hotdogs."

"What about these things," says I.

"Dump them in the fish pond," says she.

To date the things have eaten three of my prize goldfish.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HOW WE BREATHE

The air we breathe contains a high percentage of oxygen, which is so necessary for life because no cell in the body can function without it. Normally the air enters the body through the nostrils. Reaching the throat, it passes through the larynx or voice box into the trachea or windpipe which delivers it to the lungs. The tracheo is divided into subdivisions similar to the branches of a tree, each of which leads to a small pocket of lung tissue.

The entire respiratory or breathing process works in two directions. While the mechanics of inhalation send the oxygen on its way through the body, the waste products are also picked up by the blood stream and delivered to the lungs where they are transferred to the air for disposal through exhalation or expiration. Passing from the lungs by way of the windpipe, voice box, throat and nose, the waste products are conveyed to the outside.

During the process of inspiration or inhalation of air, the chest cage which is a vacuum enlarges as air is taken in. The expansion, interestingly enough, is caused by the contraction of muscles located between the ribs and the diaphragm which separates the chest cage from the abdominal cavity. Normally the diaphragm is curved. As it contracts for inspiration, the muscles straighten into somewhat of a flat line, affording greater space which in turn allows more air to rush into the chest.

The process of expiration is much simpler, since it involves only the recoil of muscles and elastic tissues to their resting position. The entire mechanism is regulated by a special center in the brain called the respiratory center. Normally, the respiratory center sends out about eighteen impulses a minute, each of which initiates one full cycle of inspiration and expiration. During excitement or fever the body needs more oxygen. To meet this demand, the respiratory rate goes up. While sleeping or at rest, the rate goes down.

600,000 4-H'ers Say "Let's Help Correct Safety Hazards"

Chicago—(Special)—The largest volunteer army ever organized for a peaceful mission is now "invading" farms and rural communities throughout the Nation. It consists of more than 600,000 4-H Club boys and girls whose objective is to show rural folk how to prevent accidents and fires which result in 14,000 deaths and 1¼ million injuries among farm people, as well as destruction of millions of dollars' worth of buildings and equipment annually.

Falls account for 36 percent of all fatal accidents in farm homes and 19 percent outside. More than 50 percent of all fatal accidents in working with farm machinery involve tractors, and overturning accounts for more than half of the tractor accident fatalities.

Safety experts give considerable credit to the contributions made by 4-H'ers for the reduction of one-fifth in the number of fatal accidents to farm people in 1951—the last year for which estimates are available—from the estimated annual rate in 1941, the first year of the National Farm Safety Week, which will be observed this year July 19-25.

Illustrative of the 4-H'ers do "approach" to the accident problem, a Tennessee club girl reported that she picked up broken glass, rusty nails protruding from boards, and other sharp articles in the farm lot; helped her father and brother become safety conscious in working with farm machinery; had a ladder with two broken rungs repaired; persuaded her mother to use a stepladder in reaching high places in the house, and to always wipe up grease or water immediately if it is spilled on the floor.

A Texas 4-H boy reports that their farm tractor often was filled with gasoline to overflowing when the engine was warm. He called this unsafe practice to the attention of his father and brother and now the tractor is filled correctly. His small brothers frequently asked to ride on the tractor, but this safety enthusiast taught them to understand how hazardous it was to hitchhike a ride on a tractor.

Similar reports of the 4-H'ers participating in the National 4-H Safety program are legion. Instead of using "don't" admonitions, expressions such as "Let's Correct This Hazard" prevail.

Outstanding 4-H records of achievement in safety are rewarded with awards provided by General Motors for the ninth consecutive year. They include sterling silver medals for the blue award group in each qualifying county, and an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next November for the state winner. Six state winners will be chosen to receive a national award, which is a $300 college scholarship. A handsome plaque, appropriately embossed, will be awarded to the county reporting the most outstanding county-wide 4-H safety program.

STITCH HOLDERS

When it is necessary to remove a knitting needle while working on a garment, pipe-stem cleaners make excellent stitch holders. Both ends can be bent back easily to keep stitches from being slipped off accidentally.

ADD a tablespoon of kerosene to a gallon of soapsuds if you want to cut the greasy film on woodwork and make cleaning easier.

Pour a film of paraffin over the bottom of your garbage container to prevent rust from forming. This makes it much easier to clean out, also.

Paraffin also has another good use: for drawers and windows which stick, rub paraffin on the slides of drawers and ropes on windows. This same lubricant may also be used on tops and bottoms of doors which tend to be sticky.

Red ink may be removed from floors or desks by washing first with soapsuds. Follow this with a rinse of vinegar and water.

Rev. Robert H. Harper

Growing in Christ.
Lesson for July 26: Ephesians 4: 4-6, 11-16.
Golden Text: Ephesians 4: 15.

There is an old story about a pastor who talked with a very sick man about his spiritual condition. The man told him his conversion twenty years before had been so remarkable that he had asked his wife to write a record of it. "Wife," he said, "bring my experience and show it to the pastor." She rummaged down into an old chest and brought out all that was left of his experience. The rats had made a nest of it. So we are not to depend upon an experience of ten or twenty years ago. Christians must grow in grace. Thus Paul besought the Ephesians to "walk worthily of the calling" in Christ Jesus.

"With all diligence and meekness, with long suffering, forbearing one another in love" they were to give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

There is to be unity in diversity among Christians. Some were given to be apostles, some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers, all working for the perfecting of the saints, for the labor of "ministering unto the building up of the body of Christ. And this is to attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of God."

Then, as "fullgrown men," Christians can achieve a unity which is not dependent upon a great ecclesiastical organization, but upon true faith that is manifested by love toward others.

A good sod is one of the best weapons against waste of soil and water. Grass anchors soil against erosion, helps soil soak up and hold rainfall, and adds organic matter to increase yields of future crops.

Please Note New Policy Of Red Cross Blood Program

Effective April 1st, 1953, a drastic change was made in our Red Cross blood program policy. This was printed in the county papers March, 1953, as a forewarning to the public to come to the local Blood Center the next time Red Cross collected blood in our County in order to have protection for their immediate families in the event blood is needed for some member of the immediate family. We are having this new policy published again with the hope that everyone will see the importance of giving a pint of their blood at the Center when the blood-mobile unit again visits our County. Under the new plan: The Birmingham Regional Blood Center Co-Ordinating Committee has defined "Immediate Family" to include husband, wife, minor children (under 18 years old) and dependent parents. This new policy means that every donor of blood and his or her immediate family is assured that upon request that his or her immediate family will receive blood whenever it is needed. When you give a pint of blood at your local Red Cross Center you are given a donor card which entitles you and your immediate family to receive blood until the expiration date shown on said card; then you must again give blood in order to renew your donor card; and still be entitled for Red Cross blood. No charge is ever made for Red Cross blood, however, the hospitals and doctors do reserve the right to charge a laboratory and/or administration fee; and Red Cross does not receive any part of this fee. Another feature in the new plan is that if a person offers to donate blood but is rejected for physical reasons at the center—he or she will be given a donor card which will entitle those in the immediate family to receive blood in time of need. The person receiving blood must present a donor card to the hospital; unless the case is a "strict emergency." Of course, in such cases where there is no one in the family who can give blood, that is — perhaps what we would term a "Hardship Case." In other words, you must now give to receive, under the new agreement.

The new Red Cross Blood Policy provides that donors and those listed below will be the only people eligible to receive blood:

The Armed Forces and men in Korea.

For all persons over 60 years of age.

For emergencies and disasters.

For those persons reporting as donors who are rejected (will receive same benefits as a donor.)

If you have not donated blood in the past it will be to your advantage to donate a pint at our next local Blood Center in the County which will be in Maplesville, Ala., July 31st, 12 noon until 6:00 p.m., at the Stremming Club House. Besides benefitting your immediate family by giving blood, you will probably save a life in Korea or here at home. Please answer the call for blood, as there is a great shortage at the present time. Call your local Red Cross office and make an appointment Mondays, Thursdays and Saturdays of each week.

FREE MAN
By Bess Leeke

AS the gates closed behind him, Chuck thought of the warden's words to him, "Good luck, Saunders. I hope, for your sake, we don't see you here again."

The warden shook his hand then, because he was a good guy, gave Chuck a slip of paper bearing a name and address.

"I've got a friend," he said. "Who was here once. Now he's got a ranch up in the northern part of the state. I'm sure he'll give you a job."

Chuck had stuffed the paper in his pocket, but he knew he'd never get to that ranch. What he had in mind would land him right back here.

It was fifty miles from the state prison to Hanson, his home town. Those miles gave him time to think. He had had ten years to think. That was a big slice out of any man's life. He had been twenty when he went in; now he was thirty. Because he was just a kid at the time, they gave him fifteen years with time off for good behavior.

When the verdict came in, he had wanted to curse them because they were too dumb to see the truth. But they weren't the ones who were really to blame. When you were behind the wheel, stinking of cheap whiskey and out like a light and the guy in the street was dead, you were guilty. Nobody believed there had been two people in the car and that the other guy was driving.

He'd never forget that night he and Tom drove out to the road house and started home again after Tom bought the pint of whiskey.

They hadn't gone three miles when it happened. Tom had raised the bottle for a drink and hadn't seen the man step out into the street. He had yelled at Tom, but not in time.

When he came to, smelling like a brewery, he was slumped over the wheel. Tom had stayed just long enough to pull him over and pour on the whiskey. All during the trial, Tom claimed Chuck had taken the car and left him at the road house, that he wasn't in the car. They believed him.

Well, he'd served his time now. He had counted every minute until he could get back to Hanson and Tom. He knew when he got through with Tom he'd be right back in prison, but this time he'd be paying for something he did, not taking the rap for somebody else.

The town hadn't changed much, a little older was all. He left his bag at the station. It would be handy to pick up when he started back. In a phone booth he thumbed through the directory until he found the name Tomas Denton and the address, 412 Fuller Drive.

He walked from the station and out the dark streets to Fuller Drive with its big houses, clipped hedges and green lawns.

Chuck felt as conspicuous on the porch of this house as a work horse would feel in the Kentucky Derby, but he had the advantage. Tom's borrowed time had run out.

"Yes, sir?" a woman in a maid's uniform asked from the doorway.

"Tom Denton, please," Chuck said.

The woman steped back and the light in the hall fell on her face, showing a look of distress.

"We're friends," Chuck explained, "Tell him Chuck Saunders, he'll know who it is."

The woman looked as if she might cry. "I'm terribly sorry, Mr. Saunders. It was such a shock to us. Mr. Denton died day before yesterday—a heart attack. He was buried this afternoon. I'll tell Mrs. Denton you're here."

Dead. He couldn't believe it. He'd waited ten years for this moment and now ironically, it had been snatched from him. You couldn't kill a man who was dead already.

"Thanks, no," he backed away and hurried down the steps.

Going down the walk with his hands in his pockets he felt the slip of paper with an address on it. Let 'em be shocked, he thought, and he started whistling as he walked down Fuller Drive.

Maple Springs News

We had a very good attendance for Sunday School and church Sunday. One hundred and three reported and others came in after the report was made.

We were proud to have Bro. Robert Carden to bring the message for us Sunday in the absence of our pastor. He was with Bro. Lockhart in a memorial service. Bro. Carden's message was taken from the seventh chapter of Luke. The pastor, Bro. Sidney Sample, brought the message Sunday night from the 34th chapter of Ezekiel.

We will not have our homecoming and singing next Sunday as we have been having for several years. We hope to have it at a later date when the weather gets cooler.

Our Vacation Bible School is in progress this week. We had 90 present Monday night to begin the school. If you haven't been, why not come tonight at 7:30 and enjoy the blessings God has in store for you.

Remember to pray for the sick in our community and for our boys in service.

HOME ACCIDENTS

by Dr. M. L. Ware

The Cause of Most Frequent Temporary Disability

The National Safety Council and the larger insurance companies tell us that home accidents are the cause of most frequent temporary disability. Of home accidents, falls predominate.

A fall that results in disability and loss of work will affect muscular balance, strain the body framework, and perhaps overload the spinal column. When overloaded, the spinal column becomes misaligned and puts abnormal pressure upon the spinal nerves.

One hundred and ten specific conditions can be caused by interference with the nerve force. Accident is by no means the cause of all spinal mis-alignments. There are other causes more numerous and this should explain the reason why Chiropractors are accomplishing such wonderful results.

In the illustration, you can see how a section of the spinal column often looks when a displacement occurs. If that nerve marked with the arrow was one carrying vital energy to the lungs or liver, you can readily understand why those organs would become diseased. Nerve interference destroys normal function.

As people discover, through study and through experience, the truth of Chiropractic, they rely more and more upon it in matters of health.

It is not true to say, "We did everything for him," unless CHIROPRACTIC was included. . .

FHA FARM LOAN MADE BY CENTRAL STATE BANK

"Farm development and industrial development must go hand in hand for each to make solid progress," was the statement made by Mr. Roy Downs, President of the Central State Bank at Calera last week when he delivered the check for an insured farm loan to Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Avery of Route 2, Jemison in his office.

This insured loan was made under the insured farm mortgage program authorized in the Farmers Home Administration Act of 1946. Under this authority private lenders can make loans to farm families who cannot qualify for regular real estate credit at present, but who will no doubt become good customers for all of their credit needs in the future. The loan is insured by the Government through the Farmers Home Administration. The loan to the Avery family is primarily for farm and home development. Mr. and Mrs. Avery planned their use of the money with FHA Supervisor Raymond Robinson and their farm plans include a Grade B dairy operation, hogs, truck crops, and cottonn. The soundness of the farm and home plan was a pertinent factor in certification of the loan by the Central State Bank. Also, the greater portion of this development money will be spent locally by Mr. and Mrs. Avery with lumber and supply dealers and others.

FHA FARM LOAN MADE BY CENTRAL STATE BANK

"Farm development and industrial development must go hand in hand for each to make solid progress," was the statement made by Mr. Roy Downs, President of the Central State Bank at Calera last week when he delivered the check for an insured farm loan to Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Avery of Route 2, Jemison in his office.

This insured loan was made under the insured farm mortgage program authorized in the Farmers Home Administration Act of 1946. Under this authority private lenders can make loans to farm families who cannot qualify for regular real estate credit at present, but who will no doubt become good customers for all of their credit needs in the future. The loan is insured by the Government through the Farmers Home Administration. The loan to the Avery family is primarily for farm and home development. Mr. and Mrs. Avery planned their use of the money with FHA Supervisor Raymond Robinson and their farm plans include a Grade B dairy operation, hogs, truck crops, and cottonn The soundness of the farm and home plan was a pertinent factor in certification of the loan by the Central State Bank. Also, the greater portion of this development money will be spent locally by Mr. and Mrs. Avery with lumber and supply dealers and others.

Mr. Roy Downs, in addition to being a bank president, is chairman of the Industrial Committee for the Calera Chamber of Commerce and has been a leading community builder in this capacity. Through his leadership he has been instrumental in the location in Calera of the Westinghouse Electric and the American Brake Shoe plants. When these industries get into full operation around the first of the year they will employ around 700 persons. Farm products must therefore meet the needs of a resulting population increase. This concrete example of business and agriculture relationship is one of the prime reasons why Mr. Downs and the Central State Bank have interested themselves in farm development in the northern section of Chilton County and surrounding areas through the FHA insured farm mortgage program.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Lathrop Tucker Mortham

Early every Summer morning come the chants of colored women selling baskets of produce from their gardens.

"I got nice tender roast'n ears! Fine okra! Red, ripe tomatoes! Figs, too!"

Up and down the streets they go with their baskets and their sales songs. And trailing along with them as they make their rounds through our neighborhood are the four-year-old and the six-year-old, both of whom long to sell produce of their own.

For reasons known only to himself, the four-year-old refers to all the vendors as "cabbage ladies."

He'll be busy playing in the yard, but never too busy to go chasing off toward the sound of the first peddler he hears.

"I hear a cabbage lady," he'll call, and away he goes to join in her oral advertisement.

It's surprising how much soap is needed to keep just one family relatively clean. These hot, play-outside days the children seem to attract dirt like walking magnets, and it takes hard scrubbing to get it off.

Our neighbor down the street complains that all the dirt she gets off her youngsters immediately sticks to her bathtub in a huge ring. The situation has improved, however, since she began adding a handful of detergent to the bath water.

We've tried adding the detergent to the bath water around our house, too, with satisfactory results. The four-year-old and the six-year-old like the bubbles it makes in the tub, and it hasn't done any harm to their supposedly sensitive skins. The detergent gets them cleaner, and its use eliminates the hateful bathtub ring.

Our next door neighbor, a thrifty soul, buys soap in large quantities and puts it away for several months before using it. She says the aging makes the soap get hard and last longer than soft, freshly-bought soap.

The drawer in our kitchen table used to squeak loudly enough to wake up the baby every time we opened it until the next door neighbor came over and rubbed the edges with soap. Now it slides quickly and silently in and out.

This soapy column is a good place to report that the four-year-old just called through the kitchen window, "Come out and see the sky—it's full of soapsuds"

Is anything better than a bowl of fresh peaches with rich milk or cream poured over them? It's annoying though to have the acid in the fruit make the cream curdle.

Our good cook neighbor says that a tiny pinch of soda added to the cream before serving will keep it from curdling.

The other morning the "cabbage ladies" were selling green apples, and I bought some to make an apple roll like this:

Roll out baking powder biscuit dough into rectangle 8 by 12 inches and spread with soft butter. Spread 3 cups of finely diced apples over dough. Sprinkle with mixture of 1-3 cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. Roll dough up like jelly roll, cut in 1½ inch slices, place on greased baking sheet, dot each roll with butter and bake at 425 degrees 25 minutes. Serve hot with vanilla custard sauce.

Lt. John Hayman In Korea

LT. JOHN HAYMAN

Chilton County Citizens Hail Korean Armistice With Solemn Doubt

Even though the shooting has stopped, at least for the time being, there is still a terrific job to do in Korea, what with the thousands of homeless and nearly every building wrecked from the ravages of three years of a see-saw war.

And one of the jobs that has got to be done is something about Korea's leaders of tomorrow, the boys and girls and the thousands of tiny tots that have been left homeless, motherless, hungry and ill-clothed. And right in the middle of this great mess of suffering is a young man from Chilton County who, along with his buddies, are trying desperately to do something for those Korean leaders of tomorrow.

In the center of this war-torn land, a few miles south of the front, lies the city of Chunchon. Once one of the leading centers in Korea, every permanent building was leveled to the ground as four times the opposing armies swept through with the destructive force of modern war.

Walking through the streets of this town, one feels a great pity for the innocent populace of a land, who are the real sufferers in a war, and the terror of battle is suddenly very close. The burned out shells and battered walls attest to the seemingly hopeless struggle of a people trying to better themselves.

On the southern edge of Chunchon on the road to Seoul, a sign comes into view, "Chunchon Orphanage." Here can be found the greatest tragedy of any war; small children facing life with the comfort and love of it's parents, without the security of a home, and here can be found in the filth and disease of complete poverty the future of a nation. The children here are the Korean leaders of tomorrow.

The men of the United States Forces in the Chunchon area have found it impossible to overlook the plight of these children, and in the humanitarian spirit shown by American fighting men throughout the world, they have undertaken the task of building a completely new orphanage as a lasting monument to the democratic way of life that the people of this nation might remember our people for more than the human misery and destruction of war.

The Orphans Aid Group is acting in a supervisory capacity as work on a new orphanage goes forward, but they can provide only a part of the necessary funds. And so funds must come from other groups. And as this endeavor gets underway Lt. John Hayman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hayman of Jemison, Ala., has made a $100 contribution to the fund on behalf of the 38th Parallel Square and Compass Club.

Lt. Hayman was stationed at Maxwell Air Field before being sent overseas last January. Prior to this he attended Meteorological School and New York University. Before entering the Air Force, Lt. Hayman attended the University of Alabama Law School and is a graduate of Jemison High School. He is now serving as a weatherman for the Air Force.

While the Orphans Aid Group are waiting for the new building to be built, the orphans are now being housed in two buildings located in the city dump. Both of these present buildings are constructed of wood and pasteboard. In one of these buildings are located the classrooms for the children, because even though there is untold hardship, they still attend a school.

Lt. Hayman and his group are asking for help of any others who would like to contribute to this effort. Make contributions to Orphans Aid Group, in care of Col. C. C. McPherson, 6147th Tactical Control Group, APO 970, in care P.M., San Francisco, Calif.

Arnold To Play Marine Football

David T. Arnold, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Arnold of Clanton, will play football this year with the Marine Corps Team of Parris Island where he is now in boot training.

Information of his intention to play football this season was received in Clanton by John M. Higgins. The information was contained in a letter received by Higgins from Col B. J. Andruska, Special Services Officer of the Marine Corps Recruiting Depot, who wrote, "I could use 30 men like him."

AMA Official Blasts Plott's Drive-way Bill

Speaking before the Clanton Lions Club last Friday noon, W. B. Timmons, Secretary-Manager of the Alabama Motorists Association, vigorously attacked Representative Jim Plott's proposed bill to the State Legislature allowing Chilton County to build private driveways.

Attacking the bill as unconstitutional, Timmons said that his organization intends to fight the proposed bill and if it is passed by the Legislature to carry their fight to the courts.

Timmons maintained that if the bill is passed and allowed to become a law the whole road-building program of the state would be impaired to such an extent that every county in the state would revert back to the old system, that of building and maintaining private driveways at county expense. He further charged that the use of county facilities for this work would become a political football, stating that when a candidate was running for office of county commissioner he could very well use this method in collecting votes by promising citizens he would fix their driveways if they would vote for him.

Timmons also pointed out that the money now received by the county from the state is earmarked expressly for the building and improving of farm-to-market roads and cannot under the law be used for any other purpose.

Timmons opened his address to the Lions Club by explaining what his association is doing to help promote better roads in Alabama as well as to try to promote better highways throughout the state. He especially pointed out the work being done on Highway 31 all the way through the state. He then told of the great opportunity that Chilton County has being located on this new roadway.

Timmons stated that just as soon as the new Highway 31 is completed his organization will then go into operation promoting it once again as the Beeline Highway through the state. Besides selling this highway to the tourists as the best way to travel to Florida and the Gulf Coast, he also said that his association will make every effort to try to keep those vacationers in the state.

The motorist official also pointed out the wonderful opportunity Chilton County has of becoming a great vacation spot with Lay Lake and Mitchell Lake so close by. He said that Chilton County should make every effort to promote this as a vacation spot for tourists, pointing out that more money is spent for fishing and boating than for any other sport. Mr. Timmons conducted an open forum following his address.

Seed Production Rising In Popularity In The State

Alabama farmers are now growing almost two-thirds of all the grass and legume seed planted in this state.

According to Ralph Jones, API Extension seed specialist, growers planted 31,564,926 pounds of these seed last year, and they produced 18,531,458 pounds of them.

"This is a big jump from the 3,000,000 pounds produced in 1940," says the specialist. "And it's indicative of the rising trned toward turning out high quality seed of superior varieties. Each year more and more locally-grown seed are being used profitably in Alabama."

Jemison Couple Receive Loan Check

FHA FARM LOAN MADE BY CENTRAL STATE BANK

"Farm development and industrial development must go hand in hand for each to make solid progress," was the statement made by Mr. Roy Dowis, President of the Central State Bank at Calera last week when he delivered the check for an insured farm loan to Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Avery of Route 2, Jemison in his office.

This insured loan was made under the insured farm mortgage program authorized in the Farmers Home Administration Act of 1946. Under this authority private lenders can make loans to farm families who cannot qualify for regular real estate credit at present, but who will no doubt become good customers for all of their credit needs in the future. The loan is insured by the Government through the Farmers Home Administration. The loan to the Avery family is primarily for farm and home development. Mr. and Mrs. Avery planned their use of the money with FHA Supervisor Raymond Robinson and their farm plans include a Grade B dairy operation, hogs, truck crops, and cottonn. The soundness of the farm and home plan was a pertinent factor in certification of the loan by the Central State Bank. Also, the greater portion of this development money will be spent locally by Mr. and Mrs. Avery with lumber and supply dealers and others.

Here's Advice On Care Of Tasty Picnic Foods

"Cool meats thoroughly before packing, and then put them into an insulated bag or thermos container," says the specialist. "Keep fresh fruits cool by wrapping them in newspapers or putting them into an insulated bag. The ideal place for beverages is thermos containers, but newspaper wrappings will help keep them cool for some time if no thermo is available."

Sandwiches made at home should be wrapped individually and then carefully wrapped together to keep both bread and filling fresh, she adds. Pack cookies and cakes closely in a box so they won't break up while being moved.

ALABAMA STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Montgomery, Ala. — The appointment of Russell C. Regentine of Montgomery as Field Representative of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce has been made by President Thomas D. Russell and Executive Vice President John M. Ward.

Regentine took up his duties with the State Chamber July 23. Work will be that previously carried on by Wm. H. Ivey and will consist of field work and contact work with the local Chambers of Commerce and with the membership of the Chamber throughout the State.

Regentine is a native of Indiana and is a graduate of the School of Business Administration, Indiana University, having specialized in Public Relations. In World War II he served four years in the Army Air Force at Gunter Field and other bases in personnel and public relations work. During that time he married Margaret Ramage Johnston of Brundidge. He left the Air Force in 1946 with the rank of Captain and for some time engaged in personnel-management work with the Veterans Administration and then in farming operations at Brundidge producing certified seed and raising cattle. He was recalled to active duty in the Air Force in 1951 and served for two years on the staff of General R. C. Wilson in the Air War College, Maxwell Air Force Base, doing public relations work. He has recently done some public relations work for the Alabama Truckers Association. He has a home in Montgomery.

RUSSELL C. REGENTINE

Speaking of Regentine's appointment Executive Vice President John M. Ward said he felt Regentine's education and entire experience fitted him adequately for this work and he was confident that he would render the State Chamber valuable service in the field of membership relations.

Chilton County citizens greeted the signing of the Korean Armistice with solemn misgivings yesterday after they had had time to digest the happenings of the night before as they sat before their radios and television sets and to read their Monday morning newspapers for complete details.

The man-on-the-street throughout the county yesterday was of course overjoyed that the Armistice had been signed, but he also had some misgivings that the country and the Allies are not yet out of the woods. Almost to the man Chilton County citizens felt that we had merely obtained one step on the road to peace and that the next three months would tell the story. Either the Allies would be right back into another war in that time or we would be well on our way to a solid and lasting peace.

Shortly after the radio networks had announced the signing of the truce Sunday night, the President of the United States was introduced in a nation-wide television hookup to tell the American people that "We have won an armistice on a single battlefront—not peace in the world." The President said further, "We may not relax our guard nor cease our quest."

Following immediately was Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, who practically repeated the president, also sounding a word of caution as a result of the Armistice.

Twelve hours after the signing at 7 o'clock Clanton time Monday morning, the shooting stopped in Korea, thus bringing an end to over three years of blood and suffering and destruction. A few seconds later, there was a terrific yell went up from the G.I.'s on the front line, while others heaved sighs of relief.

And as all this was taking place members of the General Assembly of the United Nations began to make their plans to convene to tackle the enormous job of working out the plans for a permanent peace—plans that if they work out will bring peace to the world, but plans that might very well meet a snag and place the whole world back into another and perhaps even more devasting world conflict.

Soon after the armistice was signed South Korean President Syngman Rhee stated that his country would not disturb the truce for a limited time, while a political conference attempts to work out plans for the withdrawal of Chinese Communists forces from the North.

At the same time plans also got underway immediately for the prompt exchange of prisoners of war. According to Communist sources the exchange would get underway within a week. The Reds have informed the Allies that they will return 3,313 U. S. Prisoners of War within the next 60 days, or a total of 12,730 United Nations prisoners.

The U. N. Command has informed the Reds that they will also begin releasing POW's on schedule with the total reaching 69,000 North Koreans and 5,000 Chinese prisoners.

And as the Prisoners of War make ready for the exchange and the soldiers in the front lines look forward to being pulled out so they can get cleaned up and eat something besides "C" rations, the Allied Truce Negotiators, after over two exasperating years of dealing with the Communist Command, make way for the Joint Military Armistice Commission to take over. And as this Commission takes over the troops on both sides are scheduled to be pulled back one and a quarter miles on each side of the front line. This will give the commission a two and a half mile wide buffer zone in which to operate, a zone where those prisoners who do not want to go home will be housed while Communists agents confer with them.

And while all of these plans are being made and the political conferences make ready for their meetings folks from every walk of life all over America will be carrying on with their fingers crossed, hoping against hope that those men who are sitting around those political conference tables, will be able to prevent another Korean conflict, a conflict that started at the 38th Parallel and several thousand casualities and 37 months later.

HARRY TRUMAN, CITIZEN

Whatever faults former President Harry S. Truman might have, one of them is not being unhuman. Perhaps as much as any other President, the Missourian likes to play the role as an average American, enjoying the everyday pleasures of life like most other Americans.

High office, the thrill of making history and the drama of international crises and affairs, all of which Mr. Truman experienced, have not dimmed his enthusiasm for the ordinary experiences of daily life. This is a good demonstration of a man little affected by the high office he has so recently held.

While there was much in Mr. Truman's philosophy and programs with which we did not agree, we have always admitted that he is, first of all, a human being and a patriotic American. And there is little doubt that he has a genuine affection for the little man, featuring himself as the little man's friend. While there is some controversy on this, from a political viewpoint, it is obvious that Mr. Truman enjoys life as Harry Truman, citizen, and that he expects little in the way of special treatment now that he has moved away from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Perhaps the former President will gain more friends and a more general popularity in the years to come than he did while in the White House. That, of course, depends on how much he says about the new Administration, and how he says it.

But, as of right now, Mr. Truman seems to be enjoying life and full of enthusiasm as an ordinary taxpayer. He has set an example for high dignataries retiring from public life, which is something of an accomplishment

BIRTHS CONTINUE TO RISE

The United States Public Health Service reported recently that there were 971,000 registered and unregistered births in the United States in the first three months of this year. That is 29,000 more births than for the first three months of 1952, and represents a rise of about three per cent in the birth rate.

In January, February and March, the number of births topped corresponding monthly figures for 1952, a trend which has continued, with temporary interruptions, since World War II. Last year's total births set a record of 3,889,000. It was the second straight year in which a new record had been set.

The major interruption of the trend, since World War II, came in the years between 1947 and 1950, and was reversed by a record birth rate in 1951 — the first full year of the Korean War. If the present rate of increase continues throughout the year, there is a possibility that 1953 births in the United States will reach the four million mark for the first time.

EARTHQUAKE TREMORS

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

SAFE SWIMMING

Swimming is one of the most relaxing and pleasant of all sports. Swimming, on the other hand, can be dangerous. Not all deaths and accidents attributed to this sport are in non-swimmers. Excellent swimmers have developed leg cramp which incapacitate them, frequently resulting in death by drowning. Proficient swimmers too have lost their lives when a practical joker has thrust them, still clothed, into the water.

Everyone should learn to swim. The knowledge is also a safety device and a life-saving measure if a person is involved in a water accident of some kind, such as an upturned canoe or row boat. The ability to keep afloat until a rescue has been achieved has saved numerous lives.

Children should be taught to swim early in life. They should not be permitted to play in the water or swim alone but should be under constant supervision by an adult who knows how to swim. Neither should children be allowed to stray off to lakes, beaches or pools by themselves. Accidental falls into even shallow water have taken lives of tiny tots.

Swimming can be fun, but there are some conditions that can develop if proper precautions are not taken. For example, children and older people who are subject to ear difficulties should swim only with their physician's permission. No one with a discharging ear or a perforated eardrum should attempt to swim. Violent nose blowing to remove water should be avoided. These precautions may prevent a permanent hearing loss.

Swim in safe places. Be sure the water is free of contamination and pollution. Don't leave yourself open to infection. From a standpoint of health, water in which one bathes should be just as free from disease germs as the water one drinks.

Don't dive into unknown waters. Hidden stumps and rocks have resulted in broken necks. Don't overdo. Don't try for the shore across the lake the first time out. Take it easy. As in everything else, use moderation and good sense. Avoid swimming when chilled, overheated or exhausted.

MORE FERTILIZER

American farmers, gardeners, and lawn-keepers used an all-time record of 22,432,418 tons of fertilizer in the 1951-52 crop year—1,441,024 more tons than they did the previous year.

From the Lake County News, Hammond, Indiana. Americans ought to recognize that the sentiment for some kind of high-level explorative effort to find common ground with the masters of Soviet Russia is deep and widespread in Britain and western Europe. It is simply a fact of which any realistic planning must take account.

Yet when diplomacy gets down to terms and cases, the essence of the matter is that Britain, America and their North Atlantic allies seek the same objectives and are not far apart on their methods. It is better the differences of view be voiced and discussed—in good temper—than be bottled up. But remembering that Stalin pinned his expectations of Communist success on divisions among the free nations

Gardeners Warned To Rid Tomatoes Of Late Blight

John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, warns growers to watch their plants closely for dark green, watersoaked spots, usually present along the edges of leaves.

"At the first sign of these spots," says the garden expert, "start dusting with six per cent zineb. An application should be made every seven to 10 days. If the dust is washed off by rain, repeat the treatment."

It is best to use a dust which will also control tomato fruit worms, adds Bagby. On the market today are ready-prepared dusts containing zineb and rothane or methoxychlor which will give very good control results. For small plantings the Auburn-approved garden dust is satisfactory.

THE Western powers are waiting, as they have since 1946, for the next Soviet move in the struggle of Communism vs freedom. This time, however, the Russians appear to be on the defensive since all is not well behind the Iron Curtain.

This watchfulness and waiting is due to the fact that virtually all top military and civilian aides of the former Soviet control commission of East Germany and the ambassadors to the Western powers were summoned to the Kremlin for a conference on the heels of the East European revolts.

The West would like to know what they talked about and what was planned behind the walls of the Kremlin.

Presumably, they were recalled to explain what happened when 2,000,000 un-armed East Germans suddenly arose and nearly overthrew their Communist rulers. Also to explain why there is so much unrest in other areas of the worker's paradise that is supposed to exist behind the iron curtain.

No doubt new policies will emerge from Moscow shortly. Perhaps they will ease East-West tension. But it would be folly to expect good from evil or kindness from brutality.

● It appears, after the Treasury Department's announcement of the largest deficit in the nation's peacetime history that those within the Republican administration who have been screaming for tax reductions have been howling in the wilderness. The deficit amounted to $2,389,000,000, a billion dollars more than was anticipated.

At the same time, the Treasury reported it would borrow $5,500,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 for eight months. Later another $3 to $6 billion will be borrowed.

With such a deficit and the need to borrow to meet government expenses, it is a sure bet that the administration will fight to the limit any effort to reduce taxes before January 1. And, in the opinion of many government observers, it is doubtful if any appreciable reduction will come even then.

● The following statement from the American Book Publishers Council and the American Library Association is drawing the applause of serious, thinking Americans:

"The freedom to read is essential to our democracy. It is under attack. Private groups and public authorities in various parts of the country are working to remove books from sale, to censor textbooks, to label controversial books, to distribute lists of objectionable books or authors and to purge libraries.

"The actions apparently rise from a view that our national tradition of free expression is no longer valid; that censorship and suppression are needed to avoid the subversion of politics and the corruption of morals

"We trust Americans to recognize propaganda and to reject obscenity. We do not believe they need the help of censors to assist them in this task

"It is contrary to the public interest for publishers or librarians to determine the acceptability of a book solely on the basis of the personal history or political affiliations of the author. A book should be judged as a book. No art or literature can flourish if it is to be measured by the political views or private lives of its creators. No society of free men can flourish which draws up lists of writers to whom it will not listen, whatever they may have to say."

There is a dangerous trend developing in the United States toward telling the general public what books they can read and which are not acceptable. The question arises: would this trend develop, if not stopped now, into telling the average American what weekly newspaper he can read and which are not acceptable.

My PET PEEVE

WOMEN—bless them!—who insist on going fishing with their husbands should be locked up.

"Very well," says I to the wife, 'if you insist. But you have to help us catch the bait."

"Certainly, dear," says she.

So—at 10 o'clock in the evening we take off for the creek to catch soft crayfish, better known to local fishing circles as 'mushpots.'

I explain to her, once we're on the creek, how the crayfish shed their hard shells and how they are almost helpless while in that state. Also, how the bass will bite on them when nothing else will lure them.

As we wade the creek, I shine the bright light among the rocks. She sees a crayfish.

"There's one," she says.

"It might be at that," says I. "Go ahead and grab it."

She grabs. It's a hard one and the big pinchers close on her thumb.

"Mur-d-e-r-r!" she screams and jumps completely out of the water. When she came down she grabs me around the neck and hangs on. Down we both go.

As we sit in the stream she unleashes her violent temper. "Beast!" she screams at me. "You knew that one was not a mushpot."

"Why don't you give up, dear, and just go home."

"I will not," says she. "And in the morning you'll take me along. And every time my book needs baiting you'll bait it. You're going to help me over fences, carry my equipment, light my cigarettes, rub on mosquito lotion, untangle my line, string my fish, and love every minute of it."

"Yes, dear," says I. "I'll do it, but you can't make me love it."

A TIMBER TIP

If a farmer sells 1000 board feet of 12-inch logs, 12 feet long, measured by the Doyle log rule, and disregards the overrun which they will yield, he actually gives away 500 or more additional board feet. However, if the 1000 board feet were in 24-inch logs, the overrun would be practically nothing.

Careless Handling Of Animals Lowers Price, Quality

Auburn, Ala. — Alabama farmers lose tholusands of dollars annually because of improper handling of livestock during loading for market and in transit.

Slaughtering establishments report that trimmings made necessary by bruises alone represent many of the dollars lost each year, according to W. H. Gregory, AI Extension beef cattle specialist. "Many more profits are wasted through shrinkage and illnesses that result from undue exposure or lack of feed, water and rest," adds the specialist.

In urging farmers to adopt better methods of handling to increase market value of their livestock, Gregory offers these suggestions for reducing transit injuries:

1. When driving and loading animals, don't hurry them, particularly when they are passing through gates or narrow passages. Squeezing against posts and walls causes severe and deep bruising.
2. A canvas slapper or electric prod should be used to encourage stubborn animals. Sharp sticks, whips, and clubs cause injuries that reduce carcass value.
3. Vehicles used for transportation should be reasonably clean and dry, with inside walls free from rough projections that might cause injury. Protection from drafts should be provided in cold weather.
4. Animals should be provided with wholesome feed and clean water and be given a chance to rest at regular intervals in transit.

KEEP THEM COOL AND GAINING

Chickens from which you expect to get eggs late this summer and early in the fall should be kept in cool, well-ventilated houses and provided with plenty of fresh water and fresh feed.

Mildew Stains Removed With But Little Work

Auburn, Ala. — Mildew, so prevalent in summer, can be removed easily if spots are discovered before they have a chance to rot the material.

"Fresh mildew stains on cottons or linens can usually be removed by washing at once with soap and water, rinsing well, and drying in the sun," says Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist.

If any stain remains, she adds, moisten the spot with lemon juice and salt, spread in the sun to bleach, and then rinse thoroughly and dry. She reminds homemakers to check a hidden part of the garment for color-fastness before using the lemon treatment.

"Old stains on cotton, linen, or rayon may be bleached out with Javelle water," concludes Miss Thompson.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

We "goofed off" on the address to the H & J Grocery ad this week. In haste one of the printers set "Clanton, Alabama" instead of "Thorsby, Alabama." But it don't matter which way you take it. Harold Strickland still has some mighty good bargains up that way and will appreciate you stopping by to see him.

W. H. L. Smith thinks that it would be a good idea for Clanton to send a group of fishermen to the Alabama Fishing Rodeo on the Gulf Coast each year. The second year of the Rodeo Loren caught a big fish that gave him the championship in its class for about sixteen years before it was beaten. The late Dr. E. E. Upchurch still holds the championship for the largest shark caught at one of the Rodeos many years ago. The shark weighed some 250 pounds and is still a record in its class.

And while talking to the druggist we got an idea for a Chilton County Rodeo each year. With thousands of Alabama fishermen using our fishing waters for their fresh water fishing, why not hold a Chilton County Fresh Water Rodeo. We don't know of anyone better than Jeff Miller and Dick Scott to promote such an occasion and it would bring hundreds of fishermen who already use these waters around here for their fishing. Too, it would bring quite a bit of the old moola into our sporting goods merchants pockets as well as our cafes, our service stations, our grocery stores —and the biggest thing—a feeling of good fellowship and friendship towards Clanton and Chilton County by all who come to enjoy our hospitality.

Burke Allison brought us a watermelon the other afternoon that we just dropped into our pocket and took home. It was a New Hampshire Midget or an ice box melon. Looks, or we should say, it looked, like a little melon that had been pulled too soon, but it wasn't. It was as red ripe as any melon we have ever seen and just as good. The best part about these little melons that Burke raises is that you don't have to go out and hunt someone to help you eat it. It's sort of a one-man melon, or one-woman melon. Mr. "A" says they are catching on fast and soon everyone will be raising them. They should too. You can get a dozen in your ice box at one time and have ice cold melon when you want it. They are about the size of an average canteloupe.

Someone told us about Lige Smith's little girl. She is about five or six years old and the other day she was sick and her mother called a doctor. When the doctor arrived the little girl had locked herself in the bathroom and refused to open the door. After much promising, threatening, coaxing, etc., the young lady finally opened the door and came out to be administered to—and we hope by the doctor.

Two big sales going on now. Watson's is having their "August Circus Sale" which is drawing large crowds and Gabby Tiffin is announcing in this issue a big furniture sale. So whether its in the furniture line or the dry goods line if you want it at a bargain visit these two fine merchants—they guarantee their merchandise, but it isn't true that Gabby stands behind every bed he sells.

The Chilton County Chapter of the A.A.U.W. opened a public library upstairs over the Chilton County News last week and invites the general public to avail itself of the service. Shelves and book displays have not been completed, but the library is open each Saturday. A member of the local chapter will be on hand to serve you.

WAYNE LITTLE IN NO-HITTER BALL GAME

Wayne Little pitched a no-hitter baseball game Wednesday afternoon as Clanton's Little League team defeated the Wetumpka nine by a score of 7 to 0.

The game was highlighted by two big innings for the local club and a big double play that ended the ball game. It was the third game of the season for the Clanton nine, having gone down to defeat in their opener against Childersburg Peach Festival Day and then again against the Montevallo Club.

In the fourth inning of Wednesday's game the score stood at 0 to 0. In the fifth frame Harry Culpepper got on base through an error and Jim Tiffin walked. Buddy Vines walked to load the bases. Billy Vines popped and an error scored Culpepper. Clay Carroll pumped a long single to score Tiffin and Vines. Billy Miller grounded to the pitcher to score Estes.

In the sixth inning Cathy singled then went to third on errors. Culpepper singled to score Cathy and then Tiffin beat out an infield hit. Culpepper and Tiffin scored on Vines double.

Maplesville Pledges Blood Bank Support

On Friday of this week Chilton County's quota of 130 pints of blood will be reached for the first time! That is the pledge of the Blood Recruitment workers of Maplesville and surrunding communities!

In a meeting last Thursday at the Stremming Club House, Mrs. Ray Stremming and her co-workers demonstrated the most enthusiasm that Chilton County has seen in a long time. They realize that human blood is of vital importance in many undertakings. Its derivative, gamma globulin, is used to prevent paralysis in polio victims; its plasma is used to treat the wounded overseas; it is needed in civilian hospitals to treat accident victims. Wherever people turn, they find a use for blood.

When the Blood Mobile comes to Maplesville this Friday, every man and woman between the ages of 21 and 59 is asked to make an effort to give blood. Those who are in doubt of their physical fitness are asked to come to the center at the Stremming Club House, nevertheless. Doctors and nurses will make a physical examination before any blood is taken. If their is any question about the donor's ability to give, not one drop of blood will be drawn.

Since 1951, when the Blood Mobile first began its visits to Chilton County, the quota of 130 pints has never been met. With the thousands of people who live in Chilton County and who would benefit from the blood if an emergency arose, it seems incredible that 130 people cannot be found who would be willing to donate a pint of blood. The workers on the blood program urge you to prove that your blood is RED instead of YELLOW! Make your appearance at the Stremming Club House Friday between the hours of 12:00 and 6:00 P.M. The Maplesville workers who will meet you there are Mrs. Ray Stremming, Mrs. Virgil L. Smith, Ollie Edwards, Mrs. Higginbotham, Martha Alice Smith, Rev. Rasberry, Louise Evans, Shirley Chambers, Mrs. Cecil Williams, Ernestine Talley, Mrs. John D. Durham, Mrs. Florence Watson, Mr. Ed Clapp, Mrs. Edna Hicks, Mrs. Frances Reynolds, and Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rogers.

MAKE YOUR PLANS NOW TO GIVE BLOOD ON FRIDAY.

CITY PLANS NEW PAVING PROJECT SOON

Mayor C. Fenn Jones has announced that the City of Clanton has worked out a plan whereby property owners within the city limits can have their streets paved at a cost of 25½ cents per lineal foot to the property owner.

According to his plan as submitted and approved by the City Council, the city will prepare the base, or roadbed without cost to the property owner, and the city to pay one-third of the asphalt paving cost and the property owners pay two-thirds.

Mayor Jones also stated that the city has worked out a plan with a contractor, who is now working near the city, to do this work at a very low price, provided that this work is done before he moves his equipment from the vicinity of the city.

At the same time the Clanton Executive stated that this plan will be put into effect on the Kincheon Road from Second Avenue to the city limit, connecting with the new county road which is now under construction and is to be paved; that more than $700.00 has been paid by some of the owners of property to be used as their portion of the cost. I also mentioned the demand for, and much needed extension of paving on Eighth Street to the city limit, and conect with the paving near Alabama Mills.

"During the discussion I requested the Council to depart greatly from the age-old method of financing the paving of streets and sidewalks; saying I never considered it just for the property owners to make such expensive improvements for the public to enjoy and wear out, and the public not pay any portion of the cost, and suggested that the city prepare the base, or road bed without cost to the property owner, and the city to pay one-third of the asphalt paving cost and the property owners pay two-thirds. It was not surprising to me that the entire Council promptly approved of the policy and directed me to proceed with the project as soon as possible, but with the understanding the property owners pay cash for their portion to avoid the expense and loss of time in assessing their property.

"There is a contractor near Clanton now doing paving for the county who has agreed to do our paving at a very low price, PROVIDED we give him the work BEFORE he leaves the community with his equipment. He will be here only a short time, therefore, it is quite necessary for us to work fast, and each property owner on these two streets go immediately and pay their portion of the cost to the city clerk so we may assure him of the work.

"The City assuming so much of the cost, and the contractor being here NOW, we are prepared to offer the most liberal and fair proposition of its kind in the history of Clanton by the very low price of 25½ cents per lineal foot to the owner of property. The City Council and myself sincerely hope each owner of property on these two streets will pay promptly.

"However, should there be objectors, even though the paving is almost free to them, they will not be permitted to defeat the project by refusing to co-operate. Their property will be assessed and all cost of making the assessment will be charged against their property, and interest will accrue from the day assessment is made.

"Asphalt paving cannot be successfully done in cold weather, and since summer is almost gone, we may not have time to do our regular work, and prepare the base of other streets and finish the asphalt this summer. But, if the people will show appreciation and co-operate, we hope to begin early next spring and do several miles of paving under the same plan."

JIM PLOTT PROTECTS HIS ROAD BILL

Speaking out in defense of his Drive Way Bill, which this week passed the State House of Representatives, and last week was blasted by an official of the Alabama Motorists Association, Representative Jim Plott told the Chilton County News yesterday that his only thought in presenting the bill was to be of aid to the farmers of Chilton County.

Rep. Plott said that his main purpose was not only to help the farmer directly, but at the same time to make it more convenient for the man who must deliver many tons of fertilizer to the farmer each year, or the service man who must call on the farmer to deliver heavy machinery parts.

A Chilton County official has reported to the News that if the bill is passed it would cost the county about $30,000 the first year. Asked about this Rep. Plott reported that he felt that the cost would be well worth it to the farmer.

The bill, which will be presened to the Senate today, was vigorously attacked at last week's meeting of the Clanton Lions Club by W. B. Timmons, Secretary-General Manager of the Alabama Motorists Association, who said that the bill was unconstitutional and that if passed into law his organization would fight it in the courts.

Former Resident Killed In Head-On Auto Crash

A former resident of Clanton was killed Tuesday night in a head-on automobile collision in Anniston when the car in which he was riding collided with another on the Anniston-Gadsden Highway.

James P. Swafford, 31, 2934-19th Street, S., Homewood, a former manager of the Goodyear Service Store in Clanton, who had been an employee of a Birmingham hardware company for the past three years, was killed after he and two other salesmen attended a dinner meeting in an Anniston hotel. The other two men was injured. According to investigators, the car in which the salesmen were riding collided with one operated by Curtis Childs, 27, Lineville

Swafford was a native of Pikeville, Tenn., and had served in World War II in the Merchant Maine. He had also worked for the Goodyear Company in Brewton, Ala., before coming to Clanton.

Swafford is survived by his wife, Mrs. Millie Watson Swafford; a son, Dale, 4; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Swafford, Pikeville, Tenn.; three brothers, Wade, Quinton and Glenn Swafford, and a sister, Miss Frances Swafford, of Akron, Ohio.

The body will be removed from an Anniston funeral home to Rideout's Valley Chapel in Birmingham for funeral services.

Chilton Farmers Make Grazing Plans For Coming Year

Chilton County farmers are making plans now for their fall and winter grazing, according to Olin G. Fields, of the Conservation Department.

Fields reports that out in the Enterprise Community Mr. W. K. Johnson is making plans for developing a hog unit and a cattle unit and to do away with most of his row crops. Johnson reported to Fields: "I want to set ten acres of kudzu for my hogs for summer grazing, and sericea, grass and clover for my cattle."

J. A. Billingsley has inquired of the Conservation Department where he could obtain seed for fall planting on his sericea. He reports that there is some money in cattle, and there is plenty of rough, rolling land in the county that needs sodding to be used for hay and grazing.

F. E. Mastin has just completed laying off a one and a half acre fish pond over in the Cedar Grove Community.

A. Reedie Taylor is in the process of harvesting Pensacola Behia grass on the Bolen Robinson farm. Taylor reports that he will use all his seed on his farms.

Charlie Patterson is getting set to start applying necessary fertilizer. Also he reports to the Conservation Department, his coastal bermuda field of hay is ready for harvesting.

STEVENSON COMING HOME

Adlai E Stevenson, former Governor of Illinois, and unsuccessful Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1952, will soon return to the United States. In recent months, while the Eisenhower Administration was getting off on its own feet, Stevenson has been touring the various countries of the world.

That seems to be the vogue for defeated Presidential candidates and Stevenson followed a lead set by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, when he embarked on his world tour. Dewey did not have the time Stevenson now has, since he was still active in politics, but Stevenson has no official job to restrict his travels.

In a sense, it has proved timely for Stevenson to be on his tour, since any criticism or comment he could have made on the new Administration's effort would have been based on very meager information and tentative results. Actually, Stevenson has been highly praiseworthy of the new Administration and new President in most of his comments.

But, now that he is nearing the end of his journey, and after he arrives in the United States, he will be increasingly pressed for comments on the domestic and international scene. The question is whether Mr. Stevenson will become an ardent critic of the Administration or maintain his comparative silence for a while longer, preferring to stay out of the limelight for the time being. Mr. Stevenson's conduct in the next year or so will determine very largely whether he will be the nominee of the Democratic Party again in 1956. The American voter has only a short time to wait to observe what course the former Illinois Governor will follow, for he will return to the United States in the very near future.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Bridge Is Needed

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor Chilton County News:

Why under Heaven or the other place can we not have a safe bridge over the Coosa River just below Mitchell Dam? It would look like our citizens of Chilton County and Coosa County would gang up with me and write those in authority at Montgomery to build this much needed bridge and get rid of the trite old rickity ferry boat, which ferry boat has to be tied to a stump or tree whenever the river is at flood stage. When this happens residents, business men and tourists have to turn around and go back by way of Wetumpka or Sylacauga to get from Chilton County to Coosa County.

It is a disgrace to Alabama and authorities for travellers to leave Highway 31 north of Verbena and drive over a million or two paved roads to Coosa County and run into an old ferry, where many accidents have happened. Today when the world is on wheels and persons are trying to carry on the work of the world, it is a shame that we cannot have a bridge over the river below Mitchell Dam. Just because Chilton County and Coosa County did not vote for the twenty-five million dollar bond issue, is no reason why thousands of residents and tourists should be punished with this old rickity, tricky ferry boat.

Why should Chilton and Coosa Counties be made the Caboose of the State?

The building of this bridge was let to a contractor some time ago and we hear that a Mr. Timmons of the Alabama Automobile Association slung a double-barreled monkey wrench in this deal by claiming the bids on the bridge were not properly advertised. We hope he gets much pleasure by stopping this project, and causing people so much trouble with this old ferry.

Shall we progress in Chilton County or go down hill? Citizens of Chilton and Coosa Counties, let's stirrup this bridge.

CAPT. S. L. GIBSON-X-55.

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The House last week killed a bill which, if passed, would have brought about a sharp change in our foreign trade program.

Known as the second Simpson Bill, H.R. 5894, this proposal would have limited United States import of crude petroleum; placed special tariffs on lead and zinc; and increased duties on watches and certain other imports. The bill was actually a straight tariff increase measure and its enactment would have been a reversal of United States trade policies as we have known them since the inception of the reciprocal trade agreements program in 1934.

Besides being defeated by the House, the Simpson Bill was opposed by President Eisenhower and a number of governmental departments and agencies.

Curtailing our imports, as was provided under this bill, would have had an immediate and drastic effect on our exports. We cannot sell where we do not buy, and in many instances, our exports could mean the difference between depression and prosperity. For example, during the past several years we have exported the production of from 50 to 60 million acres of farm land. Last year we exported 40 percent of our cotton, wheat and rice, and approximately one-fourth of our lard and tobacco.

To place higher tariff barriers on imports would certainly incite retaliations on the part of other nations. It was pointed out during debate on the House floor that Canada had already warned the United States against adopting a plan as the Simpson Bill and indicated that the Canadian government would immediately retaliate if the plan went into effect.

It is true that there are phases of our reciprocal trade program might be improved. For this reason, the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Extension Act, already passed by the House and Senate, contains a provision establishing a Commission on Foreign Economic Policy. This group will make a thorough study of our foreign trade program and offer special recommendations to Congress.

I believe the majority of House members exercised good judgment in allowing the Commission time to act instead of passing legislation as drastic as the second Simpson Bill.

New VA Official—

Harvey V. Higley, new Administrator of the VA, was introduced at a recent meeting of our Veterans Affairs Committee.

Higley, who succeeds Carl Gray as top official in the Veterans Administration, has served as state commander of the American Legion in Wisconsin and was formerly a member of the Legion's National Executive Council.

He told the Committee that he has "no pre-conceived notions, no great plans spelled out as yet" for the VA but that he desired the guidance and advice of the Committee. Higley said he knows the Administrator's job has "tough parts" but that he feels everybody agrees as to the end to be accomplished—"that is, to do a good job for the veterans under the laws which have been spelled out by Congress."

Post Office Bill—

The House approved a bill last Friday that should be of real interest to a number of communities in the Sixth District. If this measure is enacted into law, it will allow the federal government to enter into term lease agreements with private individuals or firms for construction of post offices and other federal buildings.

Under terms of the bill, the government will be able to apply funds appropriated for rent toward the ultimate purchase of facilities which would be constructed by private groups or individuals. This will make it possible for many towns to have their dilapidated post offices or other federal buildings remodeled or replaced.

In the past, the government has obtained the space it needs either through construction or by renting of privately owned property. As a result, many of the buildings have been rented as long as 50 years without the government ever acquiring ownership. This bill, as passed by the House, remedies the situation by permitting the government to enter into purchase contract and term-lease agreements, and it gives the Post Office Department broader power to negotiate term-lease agreements than the present law allows.

POPLAR SPRINGS

We had a few more out for Sunday School and worship service Sunday. We heard a wonderful message from our pastor. If you missed it you missed a blessing. Everyone remember to come to Training Union next Sunday night. We need everyone in reach of our church. We are also expecting everyone to be at prayer service next Wednesday night.

Our revival services will begin the second week end in August and everyone has a special invitation to come. Bro. W. V. Wallace of Kent, Alabama, who helped in our revival last summer will be there to help us again.

Remember all the sick of our community in prayer. Mr. R. I. Popwell remains very sick. Mrs. B. B. Mizzell's mother is improving some.

The members of our church and community extend their sympathy to Mr. C. E. Bowden, who was called to Eufaula Friday afternoon on account of the sudden death of his brother, Mr. Bennie Frank Bowden. May God bless and comfort he and each of his family.

We trust our pastor and family had a safe trip down Florida way. They left soon after service Sunday to join Bro. George Smith in a revival at his church. We hope they have a great revival and a safe trip home next Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Downs and daughters, Carolyn and Marilyn of Hawkins, Texas, visited relatives here recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Warmock and children visited relatives here over the week end.

Our G.A. girls and their counselor recently visited Mrs. Evie Devaugnn and Ora. They also had their G.A. program there.

We are glad to know Bobby Ray Cook of our church attended R.A. Camp last week at Shocco Springs and reports a great time.

We were so happy to have Mrs. Louise Messer at church Sunday. We have been missing her while she was sick. Our W.M.U. Circle meeting will be in her home Wednesday afternoon. — Reporter.

From the Clinton County Republican-News, St. Johns, Michigan: Anyone who has seen hard, dry wheat strewn on a Michigan field, sprout into golden grain, and then transformed into life-giving bread must believe in God. Such a miracle could not happen without the aid of a force much more powerful than man has been able to devise.

It was probably with such a thought in mind that some members of the Texas Restaurant Association have decided to place on their tables cards which bear the thanksgiving before meals prayers of the Catholic, Jews and Protestant faiths.

In a great many homes, especially where there are small children, the matter of "saying Grace" is a family rite. But few people say Grace when they go to restaurants.

The restaurant operators are asking in effect: Why should this be? To paraphrase a childhood poem, is not God in the restaurant, just the same as in the home?

So the restaurant operators are putting on their tables printed cards which bear the lovely words of thanks of the three major faiths. They are:

Catholic: "Bless us, O Lord, and these Thy gifts, which we are about to receive from Thy bounty. Through Christ our Lord. Amen."

Jewish: "Lift up your hands toward the sanctuary and bless the Lord. Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who bringeth forth bread from the earth. Amen."

Protestant: "Bless, O Lord, this food to our use, and us to Thy service, and make us ever mindful of the needs of others, in Jesus Name. Amen."

It is a simple thing, but in this materialistic age it is a wonderful thing. After all, there is no shame attached to being seen thanking God for the food we eat. A great many of us seem to have forgotten this.

From The Cedar Rapids Tribune, Cedar Rapids, Iowa: A very interesting statistic popped up last week in an otherwise lackluster release. The figure is 75 per cent and it represents the percentage of workers who voted last year in National Labor Relations Board elections to have unions represent them.

The idea that unions are somehow and in some sinister fashion foisted on reluctant workers dies slowly. But this ample majority, this 75 per cent figure, helps the old misconception toward the grave. Unions, after all, represent the most democratic, the most effective, and the most peaceful intermediary in helping to determine the fair distribution of the national product. And most workers know it.

WHEN you're baking, remember these tips and you'll get better results by putting this information to actual use.

Generally speaking, if you're supposed to bake a product for 30 minutes or less, it's best to preheat the oven. Roasts, oven meals, etc. which take longer to cook can be placed in a cold oven.

Leave at least an inch of space between pans and the inside wall of the oven as well as an inch in between pans themselves. This allows for even heat distribution and gives uniform browning.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Pineapple Punch
(Serves 25)

3 tablespoons green tea
2 cups orange juice
3 cups lemon juice
1 quart pineapple juice
4 cups sugar
3 cups water
1 quart pale dry ginger ale
1 quart lime ice

Pour 3 cups freshly boiled water over tea. Brew 3 minutes. Strain and cool. Blend together juices and tea infusion. Boil together sugar and water for 10 minutes to make a thin syrup. Chill and add to fruit juices and tea. Add enough ice and water to make 2 gallons. Add ginger ale just before serving with a tablespoon of the lime ice to top each serving.

Discard warped and discolored pans unless you want uneven browning results in your baking.

Cookies and biscuits rise higher and bake more evenly if you bake them on cookie sheets without any sides, than in pans with high sides.

Pans with warped or dented sides will heat more slowly than those with perfectly level bottoms and sides.

Scorched food which has stuck to the inside of the oven can be loosened by simple means. Dampen a cloth with ammonia and place in the oven after it has been turned off, but is still warm, for a few hours.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THE oldest son is playing Little League baseball. In four games he had but one hit. So, I took him home and we had a practice session in the backyard.

At the next game, with two men on, he comes up to bat. A hit would drive in the winning run. There I sit, nervous as an old hen and keeping my fingers crossed, when this fellow in front of me says, "Too bad. That kid hasn't had a hit yet. He should still be playing with dolls."

With difficulty I kept a check on my temper. "Why you stupid ape," says I, "it isn't going to help the kid by making remarks like that when he can hear you."

"Who's stupid, stupid," says he.

"You are, you ape," says I.

With that he hit me in the eye. I banged him on the nose. We then sat down before the cop who was crossing the field could reach us.

He broke the sullen silence that followed by snarling, "Five bucks will get you ten he doesn't get a hit."

"Done," says I. "Put up your money."

The oldest son just then let a strike split the plate without taking the bat off his shoulders. "Dolls", sneered the guy in front of me.

The next pitch was shoulder high and a little outside, but the oldest son swung. He put his body weight behind that swing. There was a sharp crack and the ball went over the centerfielder's head. It was a home run in any Little League park.

"Pay up," says I to the guy in front of me.

He turned and held out the ten spot. "Not bad at all," he said. "Who is that kid?"

"That," says I, "is my boy."

MRS. J. H. WELLS

The revival is in progress at Mulberry this week with Rev. L. E. Daniel bringing some wonderful messages.

We were happy Sunday when Mr. R. R. Webster united with our church. He was baptized Sunday afternoon by his father-in-law, Rev. R. W. Stuckey, in the creek near Mr. C. C. Moore's home. We wish him much happiness in Mulberry Church.

There were 17 from Mulberry who attended the young people's rally at Highland Church last Friday night. Those that missed the meeting by our summer missionary Berkley Webb, missed a treat.

Last Wednesday night was a special night for the people of Mulberry. Mr. Forrest Sawyer, State Secretary of the Brotherhood, was the guest speaker. His talk on Evangelism was fine. It is a pity that there were not more at the church to hear him.

Next Wednesday night will be regular family night at Mulberry. Be sure to keep this date in mind and be present.

We are glad to have Mrs. R. W. Stuckey with us in our services part of this week at Mulberry.

We hope you are enjoying reading the library books. We have some good books, check them out and read them.

Bro. Jones, our pastor, filled the pulpit at Thorsby Sunday night, while Bro. Daniel filled his pulpit here at Mulberry.

Each morning at 10:30 o'clock we have prayer services with preaching following, and we also have prayer services each evening at 7:30 o'clock with preaching following at 8 o'clock.

We have had visitors from about every church in Chilton County. Some of our visitors have been from Concord, Mt. Creek, Mulberry, West End Baptist, Liberty Hill and several others. We are also very thankful for Rev. Amos Hughes, Rev. Ed Wilkins and Rev. Hyman Atcheson who have been visiting with us. We are sure each of you who haven't been attending our revival really have been missing a blessing. We are all really enjoying the messages which are being brought by Rev. R. W. Stuckey. We all have already learned to love Rev. R. W. Stuckey and his sweet wife. We sincerely hope each of you who haven't been out to hear Rev. Stuckey will come before our revival closes.

We are all very much in prayer for the unsaved in our community, we are hoping that before our revival closes many souls will be won to Christ. We also wish to thank the ladies who are furnishing the flowers this week.

MORE POLIO CASES IN LARGER COUNTIES

Three counties contributed more than three-fifths of all the poliomyelitis deaths reported last year from the entire state, the State Department of Health announced today.

The state total, it said, was 24, reported from 11 counties. Jefferson reported six, Montgomery five and Mobile four.

These figures, based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics, may differ slightly from those shown in the final reports not yet available.

DALE CARNEGIE

HAROLD MOSS, 4054 Michael Avenue, Venice, California, had become a perfectionist when he started on a new job. He was very intent on making a success, and the work was not too difficult. But because he was so afraid that he would "butch" something up, he was worrying about the job twenty-four hours a day. The production and efficiency of his department was in good shape but only as the result of tireless effort and strain. He was tired so he became grouchy and cranky. He could hardly sleep.

One afternoon he went home and found his wife still doing the housework. He commented sarcastically on the way she was doing her work. Evidently she had had a rough day with the kids and his remarks were inappropriate. That was all she needed to hear. She pointed at him and said with emphasis, "Listen, Buster!" (He says he never could quite figure out why she called him Buster) "you're not running a production line here, watch out who you're talking to."

CARNEGIE

That did it. He was stunned for about fifteen seconds, and then the entire situation dawned on him. He wasn't running a production line at work either. He had six leadmen to do the job for him and yet he was still trying to do it alone. For the remainder of the evening he analyzed his problems. What he discovered was that he was worrying about the problems that belonged to his lead people.

During the next week he removed the majority of the load from his shoulders. He distributed the work where it rightfully belonged. Since then he has ceased worrying and started living, and oddly enough the production and efficiency of his department has improved considerably.

For peace and quiet on the home front, he also learned never to tell his wife how to do the housework.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From M. S. Brenser, Middletown, Pa.: I remember when you wore button shoes and how difficult it was to put them on if the buttonhook became lost. We had to borrow a hairpin to get them through the holes.

From Mrs. S. B. Pittman, Jacksonville, Texas: I remember 77 years ago when my sister became of school age. There was no other children near us for her to go with. So my father told the school authorities he would send her if they would let me go with her. They consented.

We had to walk 2½ miles through deep woods. There wasn't even a road. Dad blazed a trail for us. In those days we wore long woolen stockings and high shoes, with skirts long enough to keep our legs warm.

From S. I. McGinnis, Culloden, W. Va.: I can remember helping my mother weave rag rugs during the long winter nights when I was a boy. We made our dye to color the rugs from bark. And I remember sleeping under the eves of the house and the snow sifting under the eves on to our beds. It seems the winters in those days were much worse than they are now

TWO SILVER DOLLARS

By F. L. Rowley

"MA, there's a fat lady on the porch!"

This startling information first uttered in a shrill voice by my brother Benjamin was relayed by my sister Kate, my brother Peter and myself. Being anchor man I sustained a hefty clout on the side of the head.

The fat lady turned out to be Mrs. Fulcrum, wife of the mayor.

"Well, how nice," said my mother when she saw who it was at the door. "Just a minute Mrs. Fulcrum and I'll chase the dog upstairs."

Benjamin looked at me, I looked at Kate, Kate grasped Peter by the hand and we all scurried from the parlor barking like dogs. We'd heard that whopper before.

My sister and two brothers seemed entirely unconcerned in the face of this cruel banishment. But it hurt me. I was ten years old at the time and obsessed with the notion that my mission in life was to make things interesting for other people.

King of all the amazing creatures that had taken up temporary abode in rows of jars and boxes was my alligator. This was not in truth a genuine alligator but a lethargic snub-tailed chameleon.

Now for some reason known only to small minds, I assumed that Mrs. Fulcrum would be speechless with glee at the sight of my alligator. I decided to dispense with the penny handling fee usually exacted from my 'sub-teen' peers.

When my mother spied me bearing down on the parlor with a half dozen minature animal cages under each arm she let out a scream that caused Mrs. Fulcrum to drop her pince-nez.

"Get out of here, you idiot!" my mother shrieked.

For a moment I stood in the doorway, pouting. Mrs. Fulcrum had replaced her glasses and was giving me the 'once over'. Apparently she found nothing obnoxious in my appearance.

"Oh let the dear boy stay. Patience," said Mrs. Fulcrum.

The 'dear boy' stayed. My mother moved to a position near the door. Mrs. Fulcrum bent forward o get a good look at my "toys". My first offering was an idolent old toad. This evoked no comment. I believe she thought it was a ceramic paperweight.

I had better luck with some of the other specimens. These elicited an occasional "Ugh!" or "Oh my!" from Mrs. Fulcrum. Funny thing but this was the first time I had noticed what big eyes she had; and her face was all white, as if she had used too much powder.

"Now I'll go get my alligator," I said proudly. "And I'll let you hold him!"

"Al - al - alligator?" whispered Mrs. Fulcrum hoarsely. "Oh my goodness! Patience dear, I don't feel at all well. I must be going."

And with that she made a beeline for the door.

My mother began to cry. She didn't mind my frightening Mrs Fulcrum off, but it seemed my father was about to sign a contract with Mayor Fulcrum.

Supper that night was a solemn affair.

Suddenly a loud knock on the front door brought me back to reality. Father went to answer the door.

"It's Mayor Fulcrum!" said my sister Kate.

"Mayor Fulcrum would like to speak to you in the parlor," he said looking straight at me.

Mayor Fulcrum was a short rotound gentleman.

"My boy," he said in a loud voice, "I have come here this evening to make a deal with you. You have in your possession a talisman —a charm of which I am sorely in need. It protects its owner against prattling tongues. I would like to buy your alligator."

That's how it was. My father got his contract; Mayor Fulcrum got his alligator; I got two silver dollars—and my mother, well, she didn't get anything, but I noticed that she laughed a lot more after that — especially when she dusted the piano.

At one time historians believed that the Indian mounds found in Alabama belonged to a race that had vanished prior to the advent of the more recent Indian. This belief has been practically abandoned by students of today who believe that these earthworks were erected by the ancestors of the present day Indians for village sites or burial mounds. Many of these mounds have been explored by scientists. In the mounds and the land surrounding them have been found not only skeletons, but also very beautiful bowls and other vessels as well as jewelry and other personal ornaments.

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

VOLUME XXXI — CLANTON, ALABAMA — TUESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1953 — NUMBER 61

Around OUR HOUSE

The four-year-old and the six-year-old have joined the ranks of the nation's small, independent business operators. They are the sole owners of a sidewalk lemonade stand.

They made the stand out of two orange crates in only a few minutes. The lemonade took considerably longer to make. They kept adding sugar and tasting and adding lemon and tasting and adding more sugar until they finally decided it was exactly right.

Shortly after they opened for business, the little boy from down the street appeared on the scene.

"I'll pay you handsomely," said the six-year-old, "if you will get us some customers." He went off to scour the neighborhood in search of lemonade-buyers.

Later in the day when the stand had closed and the owners were counting their money (they grossed 53 cents), I inquired about the handsome pay" for the assistant?

"Oh," replied the six-year-old, "after we had sold all we could and drunk all we could, we gave him what was left. He was happy."

With such a system, they should have a bright financial future.

Not long ago I wrote of some of the uses our thrifty next door neighbor found for empty milk cartons. Now our neighbor down the street has added another practical use for them:

She cuts them lengthwise to make disposable refrigerator trays to use when freezing fresh fish.

And to keep her hands from smelling fishy after she has handled the fish, she dips them in cold, cold water before she touches the fish. It sounds almost too simple, but she says it really works.

To remove the odor of fish from her dishes, she adds several tablespoons of vinegar to the dish water, and the strong smell disappears like magic.

Nobody likes to have to wash the frying pan fish has been cooked in, but this neighbor makes the task easier by adding some soap powder to the pan, pouring in warm water and letting it simmer for a few minutes. After this treatment, the greasiest frying pan gets clean in seconds.

A household hint said that the way to prevent plaster from chacking or chipping when driving a nail into it is to heat the nail first. How do you manage to hold a hot nail while you drive it in? A much more practical way seems to be to cover the spot on the plaster with cellophane tape and then drive the nail.

Our neighbor around the corner got tired of having hot grease pop on her hands while she was frying fish, and now she wears a pair of heavy canvass gloves as protection.

Butter a glass pie pan and arrange asparagus on the bottom. Season and flour the fish fillets and brown them in butter or margarine, about two minutes on each side. Place over asparagus. Add 1-3 cup milk to a can of condensed mushroom soup and pour over fish. Sprinkle 1-3 cup grated cheese over top. Brown under low broiler about five minutes or until bubbly and brown.

Louie Smith To Attend Bank Study Conference

W. Louie Smith, cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton, will attend the seventh annual bank study conference of the Alabama Bankers Association to be conducted at the University of Alabama, August 9, 10, 11, and 12.

According to Curtis Kendall, vice-president of the American National Bank and Trust Company of Mobile, chairman of the banking education committee, guest speakers and discussion leaders include:

Gaylord A. Freeman, Jr., executive vice-president First National Bank of Chicago, who will speak on the subject, "Does Your Bank Have Adequate Capital?" Alvin J. Butz, head of the department of Agricultural Economics of Purdue University, who will give the principal evening address on, "Economic Climate for Business and Agriculture." Dr. Josiah Crudup, president of Bureau College, Gainesville, Ga., will deliver the key note address.

An unusual number of outstanding Alabama bankers will speak or lead panels giving the courses a practical, down-to-earth atmosphere. These courses include such a wide range of subjects as: "Investments," by J. Warren Andrews, vice-president First National Bank of Montgomery; "Internal Audit Control," panel leader, Vasco Hudson, auditor First National Bank of Montgomery; "Installment Lending Problems," by Marion E. Ward, assistant vice-president American National Bank and Trust Co., Mobile; "Agricultural Credits," panel leader, Charles H. Adams, assistant cashier First National Bank of Dothan; "Taxes and the Small Bank," by Fred A. Bloodworth, executive vice-president American National Bank, Gadsden; "Lending to the Lumber Industry," James T. Overby, senior vice-president First National Bank, Mobile; and "Western Europe—Impressions Summber of 1953," J. B. Haslam, vice-president Birmingham Trust National Bank.

Other Alabama bankers taking part on the program will be Wesley Davis, assistant cashier Bank of York; C. Logan Taylor, president First State Bank of Oxford; R. J. Murphy, vice-president Citizens-Farmers and Merchants Bank, Brewton; Norman D. Pless, assistant vice-president and comptroller The Exchange Bank, Birmingham; E. F. Sanders, executive vice-president Farmers and Merchants Bank, Foley; R. A. Wible, agricultural advisor Peterman State Bank, and Ben T. Lanham, Jr., professor of agricultural economics Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

A feature of the program will be a panel discussion on, "Current Economic Problems," led by Dr. Lee Bidgood, dean of the School of Commerce and Business Administration, assisted by members of the faculty of the University.

The study conferences of the Alabama Bankers Association have experienced an excellent growth over the past seven years, with approximately 150 students representing banks throughout the state in attendance last year. A still larger number is expected to take part in the coming conference.

SONGS AND SERMONS AT ASSEMBLY OF GOD

There will be special services Wednesday night, August 5, at the First Assembly of God Church, 3 blocks East of the Post Office.

The Male Quartet of the South Eastern Bible Institute of Lakeland, Florida, will render special numbers in songs. The District Supt. of the Assemblies of Alabama, T. H. Spence, and Rev. Howard Bush, District Supt. of South Florida, will be there.

Don't miss this great rally. All neighboring Assemblies are expected and the public is cordially invited.—J. H. Aplin, pastor.

TRY THEM ON SOYBEANS

Soybeans provide a good summer grazing crop for poultry, especially turkeys. They are usually grazed clean, and no attempt should be made to graze the same area more than once.

Blood Mobile Visit To Maplesville A Big Success

Maplesville went over the top last Friday when the Red Cross Blood Mobile made its regular appearance in Chilton County. For the first time the quota of 130 pints of blood was not only met—it was passed by 30 additional pints. A total of 302 people of both races went through the Blood Center at the Stremming Club House in Maplesville. Of this number, 160 were accepted as donors—142 were rejected for physical reasons.

Mrs. Ray Stremming and her crew of workers are to be congratulated for their fine work in rounding up donors and seeing that they had transporation to the Blood Mobile. They worked tirelessly in an effort to see that Chilton County people were aware of the importance of human blood.

Mrs. Esco, the Red Cross Home Service Worker for Chilton County, joins with Blood Chairman, Rev. R. E. Wilkins, in thanking every person who took part in the blood program in any way. Those who volunteered their services in the Recruitment Program, the ones who worked all afternoon at the Blood Center, those who supplied transportation, the people who gave blood, and those who volunteered to give but who were rejected—they are all to be commended for the fine spirit of cooperation shown last Friday. At last Chilton County has taken her place as a full-fledged supporter of the Red Cross Blood Program. The blood given in Maplesville will be used to secure Gamma Globulin, to help wounded soldiers back to health, and to supply the emergency needs of civilians.

500 Chilton 4-H'ers Are Attending APC Recreational Meeting

Some 500 4-H'ers from Chilton County are this week attending a summer recreation meeting at the Alabama Power Company picnic grounds at Lake Mitchell on the Coosa River.

Under the direction of Assistant County Agents John Sellers and Dan Mims, along with Home Demonstration Agent Mary Louise Wright and her Assistant, Miss Johnny Martin, the 4-H'ers started their meeting yesterday, and they will continue today, Thursday and Friday.

In connection with the meetings, Sellers explained that if any of the groups missed out on the earlier meetings this week, they will be allowed to go the other two days, Thursday and Friday. Sellers also said that volunteer lifeguards are still needed during the meetings.

SPLIT DOVE SEASON IS ANNOUNCED FOR STATE

An announcement has been received by the State Department of Conservation from Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay that Alabama will have another split dove season in 1953-1954.

The first portion of the season for hunting of doves will open Oct. 17 and close Oct. 31; the latter part will open December 27 and close January 10. The creel limit for doves will be eight per day or in possession at any one time. Shooting will be allowed from 12 noon until sunset during days of the open season.

McKay's announcement stated that waterfowl seasons for flyways in the United States will be announced in late August.

McRae Invites Farmers On Tour

Doyle McRae, owner-operator of the McRae Feed and Supply Store in South Clanton, has issued some 40 invitations to Chilton County farmers to attend a tour Thursday, August 6th.

The tour will leave by bus from the McRae Store at 6 o'clock Thursday morning, journey to Decatur, Ala., where the Chilton County folks will inspect the Alabama Flour Mills and it's operation.

Remove egg stains from silver by rubbing it with fine table salt sprinkled on a wet cloth and then washing it in warm water.

Maplesville Man Is Convicted For Violating UCL

Billie James Rogers, Maplesville, was convicted of violating the Alabama Unemployment Compensation Law Tuesday, July 28, in Judge V. J. Heard's court. He was found guilty of making false statements in order to obtain benefits to which he was not entitled. These statements were made in claims for unemployment benefits filed in the local employment office.

A representative of the State Department of Industrial Relations testified that Rogers drew $29.00 in unemployment benefits while working.

County Solicitor A. B. Foshee introduced evidence which established that Rogers was working for John C. Wallace, Maplesville, during March and April, 1953 and was also claiming benefits at that time. Judge Heard fined the Defendant $25.00 and costs. In addition Rogers was required to repay to the Department of Industrial Relations $29.00, the amount of benefits he had obtained wrongfully.

LOWER FEED COSTS

Feed accounts for about one-half of the total cost of producing milk. Growing more good hay, silage, and pasture and feeding less expensive grains can cut these costs to a minimum.

Hogs produce more manure per 100 pounds of liveweight than any other farm animal, and it also contains more valuable plant food.

Preparations For County Fair Get Kick - Off At Meeting Monday

Members of the Chilton County Agricultural Council along with representatives of the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, yesterday afternoon opened the throttle and shifted into high gear as plans were formulated for the coming County Fair to be conducted at Clanton's Municipal Airport beginning on August 25 and running thru the following Saturday afternoon.

Chairman Shorty Headley, who is also president of the Agricultural Council, received reports from many of the committee chairmen including Dan Mims, Assistant County Agent, who reported that over 50 pure bred Jersey Cattle will be shown as of this date. Mims also reported that nine pure bred heifers will be offered for sale as well as two pure bred bulls.

At the same time M. R. Glasscock, County Agent, reported that there would definitely be a sheep exhibit this year, plus a big hog exhibit, which would include at least 10 hogs with litters

Plans are also going forward for the presentation of two queens at the County Fair. The Dairy Maid will be presented as well as the Maid of Cotton.

It has been estimated by the Fair Committee that at least 50 commercial exhibits will be on display as well as many educational presentations. On top of this the Lee Amusement Company will be on hand for all kinds of rides for both the youngsters and the grownups.

The business part of yesterday's meeting was consumed for the most part by the presentation of a $3,100 budget for this year's four-day exhibit.

BOW AND ARROW HUNTING ALLOWED

Shades of Robin Hood, the archers are rising again!

For the first time in the history of Alabama, fans of bow and arrow hunting have been given the go-ahead to kill commercial or non-game fish in public waters. Also, archers will be allowed a six-day special season for hunting deer with bow and arrow.

The Alabama Conservation Advisory Board approved a regulation recently allowing shooting of "drum, buffalo, carp, channel catfish and all members of the catfish family, spoonbills, spotted suckers and all members of the sucker family and all species of gar."

The new regulation prohibits taking, catching or killing game fish of any kind with bow and arrow.

The special deer hunting season for archers is not new in the state but is the first opening of bow hunting in all areas where shooting is allowed in the regular season.

Previously there has been a special bow and arrow season for the shooting of deer in the national forests. This season was announced about a week ago along with other 1953-54 hunting seasons.

Baseball At Jemison Wednesday Night

Lomax will meet Montevallo at Jemison Wednesday night under the lights at 7:30. This game no doubt will be a good one.

Lomax will play Draper Prison at Thorsby Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Draper Prison has a good team. Lomax will hit the road for Prattville Sunday afternoon.

Lomax lost to Randolph Saturday by a score of 10-8.

To the regret of many fans, Pelham folded up and called the game off for Sunday.

Hope to see you at Jemison Wednesday night and at Thorsby Saturday afternoon.

Go to Prattville Sunday afternoon if you possibly can.

Two Women Injured In Automobile Crash Last Saturday Morn

Two Birmingham women were injured, one seriously, in an automobile crash early Saturday morning on Highway 31 in front of the Chilco Quick Freeze plant.

Riding with Prescott were Mrs. Patricia Ann Jetter of Birmingham, and a Miss Thomas, also of the Magic City. The two women were removed to the Central Alabama Hospital by Martin's Ambulance. Miss Thomas, thought to have been seriously injured, was later removed to a Birmingham hospital. Assisting Clanton city police in the investigation was Highway Patrolmen Champion and Craddock.

Boll Weevil Fight Must Go On Says Specialist

Auburn, Ala. — Boll weevil infestation is running very high all over Alabama, according to W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist.

"And a new crop of weevils has added even more work for cotton growers," he says. "Rain during the last week or 10 days has slowed poisoning programs, but good weather and continued effective poisoning should get the weevil problem under control."

Farmers are doing more poisoning this year than ever before, adds Ruffin. And prospects are bright for high yields, provided further boll weevil damage can be stopped. He emphasizes that farmers must continue their poisoning programs through the next five weeks if a crop is to be made.

"In some sections of the state heavy rains and high fertilization have made unusually high growth, which makes it difficult to poison with a tractor. "But," warns Ruffin, "boll weevils will do more harm to cotton rows than tractors."

Use Sodium Arsenate On Underwater Pond Weeds

Sodium arsenate can be used to kill underwater pond weeds in August and September.

However, says Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, more poison must be used now than in the spring because weeds are tougher and more resistant to control.

SHAME ON YOU

Residents of our fair city should be ashamed of themselves for not using the Chilton County Library sponsored by the A.A.U.W. after this group of ladies worked so hard to equip and maintain it for you.

A lot of man-hours (or we should say woman-hours) have gone into getting these books together and equipment arranged for the use of the general public. To date they have received very little support, if any, in their efforts to give you a public library and we think those who have cried so loud for a library and now do not even come around to lend a hand or avail themselves of its use should hang their head in shame.

FAIR BALL ROLLING

Chilton County's 1953 edition of a County Fair will be held the last of this month and the Fair Committee met yesterday to get the Fair ball rolling.

We hope the butcher, the baker, and the candle stick maker, will get behind this committee to make a big success of this undertaking.

Chilton County needs a means of displaying her fine livestock, vegetables, fruits, produce, etc., and an annual county fair is the means by which her wares can be shown.

A JOB WORTH DOING

It's an old, old saying that "A job worth doing, is worth doing well." We're throwing a boquet this week to Enoch C. Traywick who for the past several years has cleaned the streets of Clanton

Night and sometimes late afternoon finds him with his brush and little pushcart cleaning the streets and gutters of the daily accumulation of dirt and debris. But the commendable thing, and the thing we wish to call to your attention, is that he takes pride in his job and goes about it with the determination of a high salaried employee who was pushing for a promotion.

We want to commend Mr. Traywick for his attitude towards his work. He deserves high praise from his employers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Chilton County News:

Society depends upon farmers for existence. Yet, millions of farmers have to seek other employment, because they receive less compensation for their services to society than any other workers in industry.

Racketeers sell short among themselves to depress prices and then buy long among themselves to increase prices to consumers. Enabling Commercial Pirates to take more profits on farm products than gross amounts farm families receive for whole year's work.

Farm parity only fixes prices of farm products so that farm incomes will equal incomes of workers in other industries. But for every dollar the workers in industry receive, profiteers take from (1) one to (4) four dollars, for no useful service.

Congress can and should provide for payment of at least two hundred fifty (250) dollars to every farm family to operate their farms at full capacity and buy their surplus products, to be distributed at cost to the people.

This can be done at cost of printing "Legal Tender" unredeemable paper money. The money would be only a piece of paper, until its holder wished to pay a debt or buy something. Then it would be as good as if it were printed on silver or gold.

In such emergencies as the drought in the West, cattle could be transferred to where food was plentiful and returned when conditions justified it.

Instead of costing about 65 cents on every dollar to place farm produce on consumers' tables it ought not to cost more than 5 cents.

WILLIAM C. IRBY, SR.,
Jacksonville, Alabama.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

There is nothing we can do about the weather. That is a trite saying but a true one. Nevertheless there are many things that can be done to cope with the weather.

The sensation of feeling warm or cold depends on factors involved in atmospheric conditions. These factors are temperature of the surrounding air, the amount of moisture in the air and the movement of the air itself.

Because summer days, with their heat and varying degrees of humidity, take more people outdoors, other factors enter into the comfort of the body. Over exposure to the sun can produce serious consequences. While a suntan may appear healthy, it should be acquired slowly. In this way the skin gradually becomes rougher and scalier to adjust to the sun's rays. The amount of pigment in the skin is the guage for exposure to sun. That is why red and blonde types are most susceptible to severe burning.

In hot and humid weather, clothes should be worn to assist in the evaporation of perspiration; but they should be of light weight material and loose-fitting.

Attention should be paid to the type of food ingested. Heavy meals should be avoided, as should fried foods. Rather emphasis should be placed on fruits, vegetables and salads. Ordinarily, the salt lost through perspiration is replaced by the normal seasoning of food. Salt tablets, for example, should not supplement the ordinary intake unless recommended by your physician. Particularly is this true of persons with some types of heart affliction.

One's disposition can be affected by the heat, but everyone can aim toward a good mental outlook. A calm, serene attitude should be maintained. Remember that you can't control the weather; but if you adhere to a few simple principles, neither can the weather control you.

Washing Linoleum Floor Too Often Will Ruin It

Auburn, Ala. — Many homemakers wash linoleum floors too often with soap that is too strong, says Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist.

"Constant washing with strong soap or abrasive powders can actually injure floor coverings," she warns. "In time this practice removes the pattern from felt base coverings. The texture is weakened in inlaid linoleum, and it becomes spongy and loses its color.

"When your floor needs washing, use a mild soap and warm water," continues Miss Mitchell. "Be sure water doesn't get underneath the seams of the linoleum. After washing, rinse thoroughly and then dry.

"Put on several coats of a high-gloss, self-polishing wax that's hard enough to protect the floor from marks and water spots. Allow floor to dry between coats. Once you've given your linoleum this treatment, one coat of wax every few weeks is sufficient.

Use an ordinary paint brush to dust furniture, particularly if it has an elaborate curved design; it does a good cleaning job and saves time.

Wash old powder puffs and keep them in your shoe kit to apply wax polish.

Adding a little vinegar to the rinse water will brighten glassware.

Muddy Fish Ponds Can Be Cleared

By EARL FRANKLIN KENNAMER
API Extension Fish and Wildlife Specialist

MUD puddles are of no value to farmers and sportsmen. They are only good for stalling cars and mussing up little girls' dresses when making mud pies.

Still there are about 500 ponds in Alabama that could be classed as king-size mud puddles most of the year.

Such was the case with Clayton Newman's pond in Lee County's Bleeker community. For three years his lake, which he'd hoped would grow fish, remained a dark red color. Even during dry summers, a half dollar could not be seen an inch below the water's surface.

Last spring I advised Clayton to try gypsum (calcium sulphate)for clearing his pond. He, willing and anxious to cooperate, bought the material and helped Assistant County Agents R. W. Teague, Parker Childress, and me apply it. Two weeks later a white piece of metal was visible two feet under the water. As a result of the clearing, Clayton was again enthusiastic over his pond. He stocked it with fish and fertilized it. Within a few days, the water turned as green as sorghum juice. And bream were bedding within one month.

A small diversion ditch was then constructed to turn most of the muddy water away from the pond. Although some mud still washes into the pond, the water doesn't get dingy any more.

Although gypsum is not intended to take the place of sodded pond banks and wooded watershed, it might be the cure for many muddy ponds.

Gypsum is the same material that is used for making plaster and is inexpensive. It can be bought at any store where building supplies are handled.

TAKING THE MUD OUT—Assistant County Agent R. W. Teague spreads gypsum (calcium sulphate) in Clayton Newman's fish pond to settle out the mud. Within two weeks the material cleared the water enough for Newman to stock his three-year old pond for the first time.

To get good results in clearing up muddy water from 15 to 35 pounds of the material must be used for each 1000 cubic feet of water. Results indicate that gypsum will last for at least one year unless it is washed out of the pond. Ponds that were so muddy objects could not be seen below wrist deep in them were treated in Missouri one year ago and are still clear.

To apply gypsum the needed amount of the materials is scattered with a shovel over the water surface from a boat. Faster mixing will be obtained if an outboard motor is used to stir the water.

Experimental results from Missouri indicate that gypsum used in recommended amounts is not harmful to fish or livestock.

If you have an "aquatic desert" on your place, gypsum might make it useful for you.

A Veteran Now

Determined to win the Clay County dress revue, Joyce Patterson kept on working until she mastered the sewing trade. And this year her nimble fingers won her the title of top dressmaker in the county. During her five years of club membership this young lady has made 25 items, including dresses, blouses, aprons, pillowcases, skirts, and curtains. Here Joyce (right) shows Assistant Home Agent Dora Grace Frost one of her recently completed articles. In addition to sewing for herself, Joyce has been very helpful as a 4-H leader. And she has helped other younger girls in the community with their sewing problems. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Patterson of the Bluff Springs community.

Now is the time to take advantage of such temporary grazing crops as johnson grass, sudan grass, sericea, and kudzu. Many cattlemen are using these crops well by allowing their permanent pasture to make some extra growth for fall and early winter grazing. Remember that if your cows are grazing between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. these hot days, your pasture is getting too short.

Winter Legumes Make Cheap Nitrogen

GROW winter legumes such as vetch, Austrian peas, and crimson clover to turn in the spring for soil improvement.

More than 30 years of experience in Alabama show that it is good business to grow as many acres of winter legumes as you can possibly turn. You can drill the seed in cotton and corn middles, or you can broadcast them in cotton and corn middles and cover with a middlebuster, turn plow, or ghee whiz. If you can get your cotton, corn, or other crops harvested by October 15 or 20, cut stalks and broadcast seed and cover with a tractor disk harrow.

2. FIRE ANT HOME, BUT THEY'RE GONE—Early this Spring there were 25 colonies of fire ants per acre on Fred Sheffield's 80 acres of coastal bermuda grass and kudzu pasture. The Monroe County cattleman killed two birds with one stone when he mixed 25 pounds of 50 per cent chlorodane per ton of phosphate and put 400 pounds of the mixture per acre on his pastures. Pointing out one of the lifeless ant mounds, Sheffield (left) tells Assistant County Agent Jeff Martin (center) and A. L. Shell, a neighboring cattleman, that the experimental farm practice was a complete success.

They're Gone Now

Monroe Farmer Turns Heat On Fire Ants

Perhaps as bad as the trouble they cause is the fact that they are almost impossible to control. In fact, fire ants have had everything thrown at them, from water to the most deadly poisons. And when the war is over—ants are still there.

Fred Sheffield of Monroeville, a cattleman who has 25 registered Angus and 115 grade Angus cattle on his 480-acre farm, has had plenty of experience with this insect. He has had as many as 25 ant colonies per acre, enough so the cows could not lie down peacefully in the pasture. And the animals didn't make much gain because they spent less time grazing.

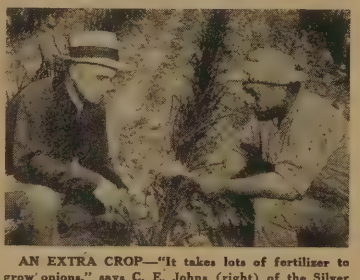
One day the Monroe County cattleman even called on his wife for help. She drove the pick-up truck loaded with chlorodane up and down the 80-acre pasture of knee-high kudzu and coastal bermuda grass. Mr. Sheffield rode on the back with a stick in one hand and a bucket of poison in the other. Every time he spotted an ant hill he jumped off the truck, stuck a hole in the ant home, and sprinkled a generous supply of poison along with a little water over the entire hill. For members of treated colonies Sheffield said it was sure death. But even with this sure-kill method, it still was not satisfactory. The small colonies consisting of not more than a half dozen ants slipped by and within a few days the little, but mighty, pests were on the go again. This fight went on for several days, and at the climax of this experiment ants were still on the Sheffield farm.

It was time to try something else. Then one day out of the clear blue sky, Sheffield had a different idea, a bright one too, on how to kill fire ants. Uneasy about the possible outcome, he discussed the idea with County Agent A. V. Culpepper and his assistant, Jeff Martin. They saw no reason why it wouldn't do the trick. Next the fertilizer folks were contacted, and they put the final okay on the idea.

Immediately the experimental group began to get the ammunition ready for the invasion. One of the local fertilizer dealers mixed 25 pounds of 50 per cent chlorodane with about 32,000 pounds of phosphate. Then with a fertilizer distributor Sheffield strewed 400 pounds of the mixture per acre on the ant-infested area. No disking or any other type of preparation was made before the poison and fertilizer were applied.

Several days later the pleased group found that the experiment had been a success. The annual fertilizer application was down, and there were no ants to be found—not a one. What's more, entomologists believe no ants of any kind will appear on the treated area for at least two more years.

Today the Sheffield farm, which is rapidly changing from grade beef cattle to the production of purebred Angus breeding stock, is again operating smoothly. "When another mishap occurs on my farm," says Sheffield, "I'll solve it with another brainstorm."



AN EXTRA CROP—"It takes lots of fertilizer to grow onions," says C. E. Johns (right) of the Silver Valley community in Clay County. But he explains to County Agent W. H. Cowen that they are easy to grow and have proved a profitable crop for him. He has 11,000 plants that will be harvested and sold as dry onions later this year. This is the third season he has grown onions as a source of supplemental income on his 160-acre farm.

Stands of kudzu and sericea are usually seriously damaged by over-grazing in August.

Along the Way with P. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

INDICATIONS are now that cotton growers will determine in the fall whether or not they'll have marketing quotas (acreage allotments) next year.

If growers vote marketing quotas, as they've done in the past, each cotton farmer will have an allotted acreage in 1954—in most cases smaller than the average planted in 1953.

This raises an important question: What will farmers do with land removed from cotton? It's a question each farmer must answer for himself. However, he will want to use his land in the best way to increase income.

Listed below are suggestions offered by farmers and Extension specialists:

Dave Yarbrough, a successful farmer of Autauga County, feels that most farmers should plant some alfalfa. To him, and to others who've grown it, alfalfa is a wonder crop for grazing, for hay, and for soil building.

Emmett Bachelor of Escambia County is another farmer pleased with alfalfa. In 1952 his crop yielded five tons of hay per acre.

And Dalton R. Harbor of our Extension Service staff at Auburn is reminding farmers that preparation for planting alfalfa seed must begin well before seed go into the soil. Proper preparation is essential to success.

Another important reminder by Mr. Harbor is to get good seed of the right variety. Many failures of the past were due to poor seed. Your county agent has information on the best alfalfa for you and he can also tell you how to plant it.

G. B. Phillips, hog specialist at Auburn, advises farmers who can grow enough grazing and grain at a low cost to make money with hogs. To have a profitable operation, producers should grow their own feed and pigs and follow good management practices, including sanitation.

A brood sow should produce two litters of pigs each year. By feeding them on home-grown pastures and grain a farmer can have two annual paydays from hogs, and he can do it along with cotton.

William Gregory and Robert Farquhar of our Auburn staff keep pointing out the advantages of beef cattle and sheep. They're fully aware of the current low beef prices, but both believe beef cattle offer good opportunities to Alabama farmers who do a good job of making feed and managing their cattle.

The same is true of sheep. It is indeed impressive to me that every sheep farmer with whom I've talked is enthusiastic about them. But sheep, like hogs, require good fences.

John Weeks, Auburn specialist in poultry, makes a splendid case for egg and meat production by chickens and turkeys, including broilers which usually eat bought feed. Weeks points out that home-grown grain works well in feeding hens to make eggs.

In Alabama we're not nearly as big as we should be in the poultry industry. So, don't overlook eggs, broilers, and turkeys.

John Bagby keeps pointing out that truck crops pay well in certain parts of Alabama. Sweetpotatoes are a good example. Where soils are favorable and good production is done, sweetpotatoes usually pay well. In some areas tomatoes and other truck crops should be given consideration.

Land, labor, and markets are prime factors in all farming. Let's consider them separately and then together before making a decision. But be sure to make wise use of all the land you have.

1. A MODERN MILKING PARLOR—When complete, four stanchions in the new McWhorter pipeline milking parlor will be used to milk 29 dairy animals. Paul Jr. (left) tells Cherokee County Agent J. J. Young that milk will be taken directly from the machines to the aerator through a pipeline to prevent opening milkers in the barn.

2. COW'S BATHROOM—Before going into the dairy barn, cows will be given a bath here in the concrete-floored wash stall. Dairy operator Henry Lay, opens the entrance gate that lets cows into the rack where they are washed. The modern dairy is located in the Gaylesville community in Cherokee County.

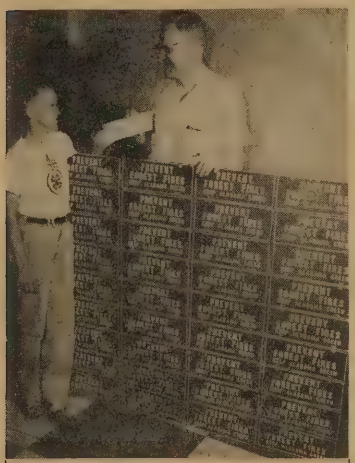
3. THEY'LL MOVE IN SOON—This new milking parlor on the dairy farm of Paul K. McWhorter Jr. and his father will soon be ready for business. They will milk 29 head of cows in the four-stanchion structure which is located in the Gaylesville community. Here Paul Jr. (left) and Cherokee County Agent J. J. Young look over the almost completed building.

For Better Milk

Modern Dairymen Build Milking Parlors

IF you think parlors went out of style with the "gay nineties," visit some of the ultra modern dairymen of 1953. These men of science are putting up milking barns as spic and span as a highly polished mirror.

One of these pipeline milking parlors can be found on the farm of Paul K. McWhorter Jr. and his father in Cherokee County's Cedar Bluff community. The barn, equipped with four milking stanchions that provide pipeline service directly from the milking machine to the aerator, eliminates the possibility of contaminating milk by opening machines in the milking room.



HE'S THE BEST SALESMAN—Leon DeBarbelaben Jr. (left) of Wetumpka Rt. 3 began his 4-H Club career this year with a bang when he sold more Prevent Forest Fire signs than any other 4-H'er in Elmore County. In only two weeks the 10-year-old Hohenberg Memorial Club member had 67 cars, trucks, and other vehicles exhibiting the signs—nearly one-sixth of the total number sold in the county. That's when the county 4-H council went into action. It authorized Assistant County Agent V. L. Keeble (right) to present Leon with an expense-paid trip to the Alabama State Fair next fall.

Although new in the grade A dairy business, the McWhorters have 20 head of good Holsteins which they bought in Wisconsin and another 23 milkers purchased locally. A total of 29 producers are ready for the barn when it opens for business soon.

In order to insure milk production at an economical price, dairy animals will have plenty of home raised feed to feast on. Such crops as white clover, dallis grass, lespedeza, and fescue make up the summer menu while crimson clover, ryegrass, and oats will provide grazing during winter.

Dairying on the Cherokee County farm is being established to make most efficient use of pasture crops grown on the land. It will replace only a portion of other livestock being raised.

In addition to their dairy operation the McWhorters plan to maintain 100 brood cows for raising beef animals and 13 sows to produce a market pig crop. Paul says the number of hogs kept on the farm in the future will depend on the amount of grain raised each year.

And to make sure there aren't too many idle days on the farm, the McWhorters will continue to raise 125 acres of cotton.

A Tasty Treat

Use Muscadine Grapes For Jam, Jelly Or Juice

By HUBERT HARRIS, Associate Horticulturist
API Experiment Station

MUSCADINE grapes can be made into excellent jam, jelly, or juice. However, to obtain maximum qualities, use only the best varieties, harvest when fully ripe, and prepare by correct methods.

Color in the finished product is determined by the skin color of the variety and the amount of heating before extraction of juice or pulp. Very dark varieties, such as the Tarheel, give a dark purple product, whereas bronze varieties, such as Scuppernong or Yuga, result in amber colored products. Lavender or crimson-colored products can be obtained by blending dark and bronze varieties or by using lighter colored purple varieties, such as Hunt or Thomas. Varieties satisfactory from the standpoint of flavor include Hunt, Scuppernong, Creek, Thomas, Dulcet, Yuga, Creswell, and Tarheel.

As muscadine grapes ripen, the sugar content increases and the delicate aromatic flavors develop. This process continues until the fruit is fully ripe. Products made from fully ripe grapes, therefore, are higher in flavor and require less boiling to concentrate the juice in finishing a jam or jelly.

In making jam or jelly, the grapes should be stemmed, washed, crushed, and boiled slowly in an open pan for approximately 5 minutes or until the desired amount of color and astringency has been obtained.

If jam is to be made, the pulp should be prepared by screening out seeds and skins. For making jelly, the juice should be pressed through a cloth and the pomace discarded.

Pectin in some form should be used in finishing the jelly or jam. If "Sure-Jell," "Certo," or some other commercial pectin preparation is to be used, follow the instructions supplied with the product.

If available, powdered citrus or apple pectin may be used. A formula for making approximately 10 pints of jelly or jam consists of 6 pounds or 11½ cups of juice or pulp, 7¾ pounds or 17½ cups of sugar, and 4 teaspoonsful of 150 grade powdered pectin. A 4-gallon or larger pan should be used with a sufficient source of heat for rapid boiling. If a smaller pan is to be used, the above formula should be reduced accordingly.

Mix the powdered pectin with 1 cup of sugar. Bring the juice or pulp to a boil and stir in the pectin-sugar mixture. Continue heating and stirring while the remainder of the sugar is slowly added and until the "jelly-point" is reached as indicated by the "sheet test." Remove from heat, let stand one minute, skim, pour in clean glasses or jars, and seal with sterilized lids or hot paraffin wax.

For highest quality in muscadine grape juice, the fruit should be pressed cold. The juice may then be preserved in the deep-freeze without heating or it may be preserved by canning.

When juice is to be canned, heat the juice as rapidly as possible to a low simmer, pour into jars or can, seal, and process in a boiling water bath for 5 minutes.

The early planted sweetpotato crop will probably make more money if dug in August than if left until later, especially if no storage space is available. Prices at this time of the year are usually very good but drop off when the heavy digging begins. There will be fewer over-sized potatoes.

Results on a one-year test of white clover strains at the API Experiment Station's plant breeding unit near Tallassee may hold the answer to the problem of why many Alabama farmers fail with white clover.

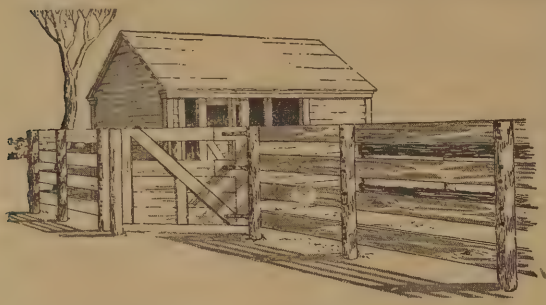
Photo at right shows variation that existed in four of the Louisiana plots. Test results indicate that the best way to avoid getting unadapted seed is to know your seed source. Information on where to get seed adapted to Alabama may be obtained from your county agent.

Watch Him

Dairy Bulls Can't Be Trusted

REGARDLESS of how gentle he may seem, your dairy bull can't be trusted.

The safest thing to do, says Pete Turnham, API Extension assistant dairy specialist, is to handle him with caution at all times. A few simple rules properly followed will prevent accidents.



PLAN

Turnham says when it becomes necessary to handle the bull, always remember to handle him firmly by a ring in his nose, and preferably with a staff. Another important safety measure is to keep him confined in a well constructed bull pen so that a minimum of handling is necessary when cows are being bred.

Turnham explains that the diagram shown here is very satisfactory for handling the bull. Prints may be obtained from the local county agent.

When the bull is kept closely confined, Turnham says he is usually more vicious than he would be if running in the pasture. He also tends to become more dangerous as he gets older; however, Turnham warned it isn't safe to trust a young one either.

The bull should not be penned with the cows, but should be in a separate pen with good shelter and plenty of room for exercise.

The best plan in most cases, says Turnham, is to breed cows through the artificial breeding program. This will eliminate danger from having a bull on the farm as well as reduce disease. More important, it will provide service from top quality bulls at a reasonable cost.

Use well developed, plump, chemically treated oat seed. Plant on time. Many farmers can plant oats because there are so many ways they can be seeded. Oats give good winter grazing, help protect the soil, and can be harvested as grain or hay. See your county agent for best varieties.

Alfalfa, king of legume crops, is one of the very best grazing crops, especially for hogs. Seed only on good cropland on well prepared seedbed. If you have alfalfa and have not fertilized it this year, try to get your fertilizer now so you can apply it in September or October.

Recipe For August

WHEN hot August weather makes you want to get out of the kitchen, try this menu for a tasty meal, served in the backyard or at the favorite picnic spot:

Baked ham or cold fried chicken.
Potato salad.
Garden fresh tomatoes.
Cake, and homemade ice cream.

The ice cream custard can be made during the cool part of the morning and stored in the refrigerator until time to freeze. Let the children freeze the cream in that old-fashioned freezer—they'll enjoy it.

Here are two recipes, one using whole milk and cream, and the second using dry skimmilk.

VANILLA ICE CREAM CUSTARD

1 qt. milk	3 eggs
1 c. sugar	1 c. cream
⅛ t. salt	1 T. vanilla

Scald the milk. Beat the eggs in a bowl. Add sugar, salt, and scalded milk and return to the double boiler. Cook over hot water for 3 minutes, stirring constantly, cool, add cream and flavoring, and pour into freezer can. Freeze.

DRY MILK ICE CREAM

¾ c. sugar	1 egg beaten
1 c. dry milk	½ t. vanilla
⅛ t. salt	1 c. heavy cream
1 c. water

Add sugar, milk powder, and salt to the water and beat until smooth. Cook over low heat or boiling water until thickened, stirring constantly to prevent lumping.

Pour part of the mixture into the beaten egg, stirring constantly. Then pour all back in the pan and cook 2 minutes longer. Chill. Fold in the vanilla and whipped cream. Freeze.

The recipe may be used for peach, pineapple, or vanilla ice cream. To make peach or pineapple ice cream, omit vanilla and add ¾ cup crushed fresh peaches, sweetened with ¼ cup sugar, or canned crushed pineapple.

For banana ice cream, add 1 cup mashed bananas (about 3 medium-size bananas). Fold them in just before freezing.

Did You Know?

U. S. official grade standards of corn are established by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. These standards divide corn into three classes: yellow, white, and mixed. For each class, grades 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and sample grades are established.

Legal weights per bushel of corn in Alabama are: shelled corn, 56 pounds; corn in ear shucked, 70 pounds; corn in ear with shuck, 75 pounds; and corn in ear green with shuck, 100 pounds.

This and other valuable information on farm subjects can be found in the Handbook of Alabama Agriculture (fifth edition). A copy of this book may be obtained from your county agent for 75 cents.

Maximum use of home-grown grains can be made by feeding whole oats, whole corn, or grain sorghum and a high protein supplement to the poultry flock. Feed each material in a separate hopper without grinding. This method of feeding should be started while pullets are on range so they will be used to it before they go into the laying house. No change is necessary in the feeding program after pullets start laying.

CONTINUE to do a good job of spraying the beef herd with some form of DDT and BHC. This will make the cows more comfortable, make them give more milk for their calves, make them go into the winter in better shape, and aid in the control of diseases.

FOUR-H Club members should get their steers on feed this month if they have not already done so. There is no feed that is a substitute for milk, so if surplus milk is available, the steer is one of the best milking machines known by men.

IF birds have not been vaccinated for fowl pox and Newcastle, they should be vaccinated immediately. Vaccinate with both vaccines at the same time only if birds are in good health and at least 10 weeks old. Chicks that were vaccinated with live virus internasal Newcastle vaccine at one day old should be revaccinated at 10 weeks old with wing-web type Newcastle vaccine.

RESCUE grass is attracting lots of attention. An unusually big seed crop has been made. It is a good crop to plant with legumes or to seed alone. In preliminary tests it has given very good results in the permanent pasture mixtures in the Tennessee Valley. Include rescue in your winter grazing program this fall.

AUGUST heat is hard on hogs. They expect neither ice water nor electric fans, but shade and water, plentiful and handy to their feed, will save feed, make faster gains, and make you more high-priced pork.

PUSH your pigs to an early, high market. If the hog market follows its usual pattern, the later in the fall you take them to market, the lower the price you'll receive. Present prices allow you to pet these porkers! Sometimes the break from early September to early October amounts to from $4.50 to $6.50 on a 225-pound hog.

FARMERS should produce saw logs and pulpwood during August. There is a good market for these products, and farmers cutting their own timber will receive good wages while working at home.

Hogging Corn Saves Labor Makes Economical Gain

That's the opinion of Ashley McCreary out on Evergreen Rt. D. And the Conecuh County farmer has good proof that he's right.

Commenting on his money-making hog business, McCreary points out two sound reasons for his success. First, he starts out on the right foot with good pigs. And, second, he produces lots of corn per acre to finish them out to top quality market hogs.

McCreary, who has been growing hogs since 1948, got off to a good start again this year when he planted 18 acres of early corn on March 8. Soil samples from the field were sent to the API soil testing laboratory at Auburn and analyzed to determine the amount and kind of fertilizer needed for making the most economical yield. Results of the test showed the field needed 300 pounds of 4-10-7 at planting time and 200 pounds of ammonium nitrate as a side dressing. McCreary carried out this recommendation and had a fine field of corn ready for hogging in June. A hundred head of hogs did the harvesting.

CORN HARVESTERS—The corn gathering chore is cut to a minimum when good thrifty pigs are on hand to do the job. Here Ashley McCreary of Evergreen Rt. D shows M. H. Huggins, county agent, part of his 100 animals that he'd raised to gather an 18-acre field of McCurdy's corn on his farm. The Conecuh County farmer has been growing top market hogs since 1948.

In addition to corn planted for hogging, another 65 acres will be gathered, stored in the crib, and hand fed to hogs later in the year.

Another home-grown feed that helps keep sows and pigs in a thrifty growing condition is plenty of clover grazing. Hogs feast on crimson clover during winter and white clover during summer. McCreary also feeds his hogs supplement. This ration is fed by hand so pigs can be called to him at intervals and checked on to make sure they're doing all right.

Growing good quality pigs is given special attention. McCreary crosses good Poland China and Duroc sows on a purebred Duroc boar in his breeding to develop three-quarters Duroc sows. After getting this kind of brood stock, he will switch to purebred Poland China boars and breed them to his crossbred sows.

Good management practices are followed, and usually McCreary raises all the pigs he needs. This year by keeping up with sows' breeding dates, he was able to give them special attention at farrowing and thereby saved an average of eight pigs per litter. Sows are bred to farrow in January and July, as this system of producing pigs fits well into his corn production program.

Sometimes it's necessary to buy additional pigs to use up all the corn produced on the farm. When this is done, all bought hogs are isolated from home-raised stock for at least three weeks to prevent bringing diseases onto the farm.

McCreary believes in selling only the best quality market hogs, so he keeps them until they weigh at least 225 pounds. Since he started in the hog business five years ago, the farmer has averaged selling this size hogs when about seven months old.

Grow The Best

Top Quality Hogs Make More Money

THERE was a time when farmers paid little or no attention to the type of hog they grew. All that's changed now though. Today the once lowly pig is an aristocrat of the barnyard. He proved it last year when hogs put more dollars in the pockets of Alabama farmers than any other kind of farm animal.

But farmers have not used this money-maker too well. They haven't given careful thought to his ancestry and reproduction program. So too many pigs have become flabby and yield too much lard and too little red, lean, muscle meat.

G. B. Phillips, API Extension hog specialist, says it's time for all farmers to ask themselves the question: What kind of hogs bring best prices?

In answering this he points out three goals to keep in mind: First, hog growers must raise big litters of big husky pigs. They also want pigs that grow and fatten efficiently on their feed. And they should grow the kind of pork consumers want and are willing to pay for.

Although prices of live hogs are good and the outlook for a sound market hog production program has never been better, there are some problems which hog men can't dodge.

Lard is the number one problem of the hog industry today. Phillips explains that competing vegetable oils have forced down lard prices to approximately one-third that of live hogs. This, of course, means profit-minded hog producers must grow animals that do not yield too much fat.

The specialist continued, "One way to get away from the excess fat problem is to sell hogs with about 1½ inches of fat over the back. A little experience will train hog men to judge this with amazingly accurate results."

An ideal market hog, according to Phillips, has 1½ inches of fat back, is 30 inches long (from first rib to aitch bone) weighs around 225 pounds, has a good spring of rib, and has a good back, loin and ham that are firm and well muscled.

The hog expert goes on to say that intermediate type hogs are found in every breed. He suggests that farmers choose the breed they like best and grow the desirable type of that breed. Crossing intermediate purebred boars on crossbred sows will turn out the quality pigs that consumers want, says Phillips. Excellent results are obtained also when good intermediate purebred boars are crossed on native sows.

Contrary to the opinion of some growers, good intermediate type pigs are produced cheaper than ordinary animals. Some markets pay premiums for good quality hogs; however, when no premium is paid producers still make more money from intermediate hogs than from undesirable animals.

Phillips concludes by saying that hog growers lost the lard market years ago, and he suggests that good breeding be practiced to prevent losing the pork market.

When cows begin to lose their coordination and act as though drunk, chances are they are suffering from ergot poisoning. An immediate inspection of the entire pasture for smutty Dallis grass seedheads should be made. If this is found, remove the cows at once and mow the pasture. When an excessive amount of ergot poison is eaten, it will cause abortion and sometimes death.

At Harvest Season

Expert Tells How To Increase Cotton Profit

THE way your cotton is handled from boll to bale may mean the difference between a profit or loss on your 1953 cotton crop!

According to API Extension Cotton Specialist O. N. Andrews, if the grade is lowered from middling to low middling by careless handling, either picking or ginning, you may lose $20 to $30 a bale on your crop.

Here are a few suggestions from the specialist that may help you produce more high quality bales this year:

1. Your field must be free of grass and weeds during harvest season. This is very important when cotton is harvested mechanically.

2. Control cotton insects late in the season to protect bolls. Boll weevils and aphids often cause stained spots, lowering grade.

3. If cotton is very rank, defoliate with chemicals to reduce boll rot and make cotton open fast. This also reduces insect infestation which may cause lower grades. If cotton is to be harvested with a mechanical picker, defoliation is a "must."

4. Don't start picking until bolls are open wide. Picking green cotton and cracked bolls often lowers the grade. But don't leave cotton in the field too long—this also lowers the grade.

5. Pick clean. It is better to keep trash out of the cotton than to depend on the gin removing it, even though many gins now are equipped to do a good job.

6. Take dry cotton to the gin. If cotton must be picked when it is damp, spread it in the sun at least four hours. If damp cotton is carried to the gin, be sure the gin is equipped with good driers, and tell the ginner so he can dry more thoroughly.

8. Try to have your cotton ginned following clean bales.

9. Keep check on your harvesting and ginning practices by getting the cotton classed. Farmers who are not in a cotton improvement association may get cotton classed by paying a small fee. Members of one-variety cotton improvement associations should ask their ginner or warehouseman to send a sample from every bale to the classing office for free government classification. The classing office will mail the grower a green classing card showing grade, staple length and gin preparation on every sample checked. These cards are helpful in marketing cotton because the grower knows what grade he has for sale. Lending agencies will accept these cards in making government loans.

Andrews concludes by reminding all cotton growers that middling white grade should be their goal on every bale next fall.

New Alfalfa Varieties

By D. G. STURKIE, Agronomist
A.P.I. Experiment Station

NEW varieties of alfalfa that have yielded at or near the top in trials throughout Alabama are Dupuits, Buffalo, Atlantic, Narragansett and Williamsburg. Narragansett is leafier and has a darker green color than any variety tested. It should be especially well suited for producing highest quality feed. Where quality is important for dairy cattle feed or alfalfa leaf meal, this is the best variety tested.

Dupuits, a variety bred in France, is now being produced in the United States. The first year after planting it produced the largest yield of any variety tested. However, yields were no better than other good varieties the second and third years. Why this variety declines in its ability to yield is not known definitely. It is a coarse, stemmy type of plant and may be objectionable from this standpoint.

Old varieties that perform well and are still recommended in Alabama are Kansas and Oklahoma common.

New varieties that are not suited to Alabama are African and Indian. These varieties are not winter hardy, and they are very susceptible to stem rot and leaf spot diseases.

On Many Farms

Defoliated Cotton Pays Big Dividends

IT'S possible for leaves on cotton to cost farmers lots of money. That's the warning from API Extension Cotton Specialist O. N. Andrews.

Even though removing these leaves is not considered a profitable operation on every farm year after year, it will pay off in late maturing, rank cotton.

During the past two years very little defoliation was necessary in Alabama due to small plants caused by extremely dry weather. However, in 1950 about 115,000 acres, 10 per cent of the total crop, were defoliated.

What are advantages of defoliated plants? And when does it pay to remove the leaves? "The answers to these two important questions are the key to a profitable application of a chemical defoliant," says Andrews.

The cotton expert points out that when leaves are removed from the plants, loss from boll rot is reduced and rank, late maturing cotton opens earlier. This reduces danger of damage from excessive rain or freezing weather. He adds that hand pickers prefer to pick defoliated cotton because it picks easier.

In some cases, he explains, defoliating causes boll weevils to leave fields, which in turn reduces damage to late bolls. Aphids are also done away with, and there is no danger of their staining cotton which reduces the grade.

Generally defoliation is considered a "must" if cotton is to be harvested with a mechanical picker. It causes machines to operate more efficiently, and a higher percentage of the cotton is harvested.

"Dry leaf trash and green leaf stain are reduced during harvesting and higher grades of cotton are turned out," says Andrews.

The condition of plants and the weather are the main factors to consider in determining when to apply chemicals for the most economical and efficient defoliation. Heavy loaded, mature plants that are growing rapidly defoliate best and most completely. Lightly loaded, vigorous growing plants or plants with wilted leaves, toughened by drought or starved by lack of fertility, are difficult to defoliate. Best results have been obtained when temperature and humidity were moderately high.

The cotton expert advises applying the defoliant 25 to 30 days after the last top bolls are set. At times it is necessary to sacrifice a few of the small top bolls to save bottom bolls from rot or severe weather damage. Good results have been obtained when about 10 per cent of the lower bolls were open or cracked.

It is best to apply defoliant dust or sprays in late afternoon or early morning. If cyanamide dust, the material most generally available, is used, dew should be on the plants or expected soon, as moisture on the leaves is necessary for satisfactory defoliation.

Leaves usually fall off from 7 to 10 days after material is applied.

Defoliate at one time only the acreage that can be picked within a week or 10 days or before second growth appears. It is practically impossible to remove second growth.

Of the defoliants available in quantities, dust containing calcium cyanamide is the most satisfactory material to use. Use about 30 pounds of this dust per acre.

Andrews continues by saying several new spray materials have given good results. He suggests that they be tried on a demonstration basis. The amount per acre varies with size of cotton and material being used, and directions of the manufacturer must be followed when applying these materials.

Defoliant dust may be applied with same equipment—either ground or airborne—used for applying insecticides. However, ground machines don't work too well in rank cotton. Certain adjustments are required in order to get thorough and even distribution.

Best results have been obtained from spray materials when applied with an airplane.

A GOOD STARTER—This fine purebred Hereford heifer owned by 12-year-old Ray Singleton was bought with money the 4-H'er made from feeding out two beef calves. Ray says his bred heifer is only the beginning of a registered cattle herd which he is planning on in the future. The Cherokee County farm youngster, a member of the Centre 4-H Club, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Singleton.

The cotton specialist concludes by pointing out certain precautions which should be taken when using defoliants:

1. Read carefully and follow directions printed on labels.
2. Contact your county agent before using new or untried chemicals.
3. Be sure label shows exact chemical content.
4. Handle defoliants with the same care as you do insecticides.
5. Guard against drifting into adjacent crops.
6. Thoroughly clean all application equipment before and after using any defoliant.

In Hot Weather

Keep Hens Cool; They'll Lay Better

IN hot weather you will get top production of large, strong shelled eggs and produce broilers that grow fast and make good feed conversion if you open up the poultry houses and keep the temperature as low as possible, says John Weeks, API Extension poultry specialist.

Many houses, particularly those built during cold weather, don't have enough ventilators and louvers to allow hot air to escape from under the roof. Weeks advises that if your poultry houses are not equipped with these ventilators, you'll want to provide them.

Double doors at each end of the building, opened wide and covered with poultry netting, also help keep the house cool. They also make cleaning much easier.

Aluminum roofing on the poultry house reflects sun rays and helps keep the temperature down, says Weeks. Old metal or composition roofs should be painted with aluminum paint. Another cooling step is painting whitewash or aluminum paint on dark colored walls.

To Market to Market—Farm men and women who sell their products at the Anniston Curb Market have learned that it pays to keep their sales methods up to date. And to help them modernize their selling techniques, county Extension agents recently held a school.

Some of the most effective principles of display and other sales promotion ideas were discussed by A. S. Mathews Jr., county agent; Mrs. Yancey B. Walters, home demonstration agent; Dorothy Overbey, API Extension consumer education specialist, and Austin Ezzell, API Extension distributor marketing specialist.

POTASH NEEDS OF CLOVER-GRASS PASTURES. In clover-grass permanent pastures, more potash is often removed from the soil by grass than by clover. Furthermore, studies have shown that grass can deplete the available potassium in the soil to a lower level than clover. This means that late summer or early fall applications of potash will favor the clover in a clover-grass mixture and stimulate early clover growth.

NEED FOR MINOR ELEMENTS, especially boron and zinc, may be increased when a good liming program is followed. However, to produce high crop yields on acid soils, it is necessary to apply an adequate amount of lime; likewise, for such crops as alfalfa and crimson clover and corn grown on limed soils deficient in boron and zinc, it is necessary to correct these deficiencies. Boron deficiency in alfalfa may be corrected by applying 20 to 25 pounds of borax per acre. For crimson clover seed production 10 pounds of borax per acre is adequate. "White bud" or zinc deficiency of corn may be prevented by applying 10 pounds of zinc sulfate per acre mixed in the fertilizer.

SWEETPOTATOES ARE TOO SCARCE AND TOO EXPENSIVE TO WASTE. Jumbos, culls, and even partially decayed potatoes have value. Jumbo, off-grade potatoes, and even potatoes showing small decay may be washed, trimmed, baked or boiled, mashed, placed in small containers, and kept as puree in the deep freeze. This puree may be used later for souffle or pies or for sweetpotato biscuits or cookies.

CORN EARWORM IN GRAIN SORGHUM has been effectively controlled with dusts of 5 per cent DDT or 20 per cent toxaphene. The dust should be applied to the head area of the sorghum at the rate of about 25 pounds per acre. Treatments should be started as soon as small worms appear. Two applications are usually sufficient to protect the grain until it is too hard for the worms to eat.

EVERGREEN LONG WHITE BUNCHING ONIONS FOR A CONTINUOUS SUPPLY. Nineteen years ago seed of the Long White Bunching onion were planted at Auburn. Since then there has been a continuous supply from this planting during all seasons of each year. Hills planted 1 foot apart in rows 3 feet apart produce a bunch containing six to 18 onions annually. A bunch is harvested when needed, and one plant is reset where the bunch was taken. Within a year the single plant makes another bunch ready for harvest.

CHICKEN LICE CAN BE CONTROLLED without handling or moving birds by sprinkling two applications of dusting sulfur on litter at the rate of 2 pounds per 100 square feet of floor space. Applications should be 7 to 10 days apart. For mature birds one application of 4 pounds per 100 square feet is almost as effective as the above rate. Clouds of dust should be avoided. Mites also are controlled by this method. The cost amounts to less than one cent per bird per year.

Mrs. L. C. Warr was telling us about Linda Burdette. Seems Linda has only been to school for one year but she has already become instilled with a thorough dislike of the procedure, which is normal for her age. Linda told her mother that she thought they had it all mixed up. There should be three months of school and nine months of vacation.

And speaking of school it is time once again to remind you that soon many little children, middle-sized children and big children, will be roaming about the streets on their way to, and from, school. We don't want any of them to get hurt so let's all of us be on guard. Be careful. The child's life you save may be ours—and the one we save may be yours.

A heap of credit goes to Mrs. R. W. Stremming for the good work done over at Maplesville the other day during the blood drive. Those ladies over there were out for blood and they got it. That is the first time Chilton County has gone over the quota since the blood program started and Maplesville is due a lot of thanks and appreciation for doing the job. And we think a great big orchid should go to Mrs. R. W. Stremming.

We don't believe this of course but Bill Minor says his hot peppers are so hot that when you take them home you can't put them in the ice box—they'll defrost it.

Mr. Enoch Traywick came in to thank us for the notice about his good work. He said he didn't think anyone noticed whether he did a good job or not. That just goes to show you. He also had a little request to make and we are glad to pass it along. He wants the businessmen to have the walks in front of their place of business swept off at closing time. That will keep the sidewalks and streets clean. He says he hasn't time to clean the sidewalks and the streets but if you sweep it out into the streets he will make sure it is taken from there.

Mrs. George Naish has sent us two "Thoughts For The Day" that we believe you will be interested in so we are passing them along.

Pack Your Day—

A day is like a trunk, you can put twice as much into it if you know how to pack it. The right way to pack a trunk is to pack it tightly in the corners and sides, and not to just dump things in the middle.

There is a right way to pack a day, too. A man can do nearly twice as much if he appreciates what he can do in 5 minutes, if he fills up the corners.

The man who accomplishes the most has no more hours in the day than you or I. He too, must spend time in doing all the little things; he, too, has interruptions—but he accomplishes more because he "packs his day"—. Copied from the National Review.

Laugh And The World Laughs With You—

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine. Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop grumbling. If you cannot see any good in the world keep the bad to yourself. Learn to hide your aches, pains, under a pleasant smile. None cares if you have headaches or rheumatism. Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They have aches and pains, too. Copied from Scottish Rite Bulletin.

ADVENTIST CHURCH NOTES

"Let Us Pray", will be the talking picture on the screen at the Adventist church Sunday evening at 7:30.

Pastor Walker Says: "In these perilous times of the last days, with dark storm clouds of trouble gathering over the horizon of the globe, the best place in all the world that we can be is on our knees humbly before our God. Everywhere folk are feeling insecure; their hearts are filled with fear and foreboding of the future. The only security that is really secure is in a Person and that Person is the Lord Jesus."

William R. Jones Ordained Minister

Rev. William R. Jones, Jr., son-in law of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Johnson and husband of Alene Johnson Jones, was ordained to preach the gospel Saturday, August 1, at Immanuel Baptist Church, Gainsville, Florida.

Rev. Jones will graduate from the University of Florida at the close of the summer session and has been a member of Immanuel Church throughout his college life. In the fall he will go to Ft. Worth, Texas to complete his theological education at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. Rev. Jones has been active in the local church and in the Baptist Student Union, and has preached at several churches in and around Gainesville during the summer. He and his wife request the prayers of all their kinfolk and friends as they try to complete their training for the Lord's work.

JAMES H. KINCAID TO REPRESENT CNFL AT ANNUAL MEETING

G. B. Auburtin, secretary-treasurer of the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association, announced that James H. Kincaid, of Thorsby, will represent the association at the annual Federal Land Bank Stockholders' meeting in Jackson, Miss., on August 13-14.

Delegates from 67 national farm loan associations in Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, and officials of The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans will attend the two-day meeting, Mr. Auburtin said. They will discuss credit problems, consider resolutions which will be submitted by the district advisory committee, and hear addresses by credit leaders.

Officials of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, the Production Credit Corporation, and the New Orleans Bank of Cooperatives will address the meeting. R. L. Thompson, president of the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans and general agent of the Farm Credit Administration, will make his annual report.

Mr. Auburtin reported that the Canebrake National Loan Association closed more than $300,000 in loans during the past year and now has loans with face amounts totaling approximately $1,600,000.

WILL SPEAK AT PLEASANT GROVE

MRS. J. R. HELMS TO SPEAK TO W.S.C.S.

Mrs. J. R. Helms, wife of Rev J. R. Helms, pastor at West Highlands Methodist Church, Selma, Ala., will speak to the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Pleasant Grove Methodist Church at 1:30 P.M. Tuesday, August 11. at the Clanton Circuit of Methodist Church's Parsonage. The parsonage is located on the air-port road.

Mrs. Helms was selected as the local woman, having done the most outstanding work in the Southeastern Jurisdiction, to attend the Conference on Missions at Buck Hill Falls, Penn., this past April. Her subject will be on the high-lights of her trip there.

Through the years Mrs. Helms has been most unselfish and untiring in her efforts to promote the work. She has attended Leadership Schools for years at her own expense, returning to the local church and society to share the information gained. She has taught the approved courses in her own society as well as in societies in her area. She has tought mission courses in the youth division and has backed the youth in their entire program locally as well as in the district.

Mrs. Helms has organized many new societies, visiting often to give encouragement, materials, and other helps. She has visited small, struggling societies, helping them carry on the program of work until they were strong enough to "walk alone." She attended District and Annual Conferences each year, gathering the inspiration and then sharing it in many ways throughout the district.

Mrs. Helms is an inspiration to all who know her, and it is an honor to have her speak here.

The pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Brown, extend a cordial invitation to all ladies who would like to attend.

A search of the files of the County Agent's office has produced some very interesting comparisons which are expected at this year's Chilton County Fair and the events that took place at the First, Second, and Third Annual "Chilton County Fairs" back in 1937, 1938 and 1939.

The Agricultural Shows in 1939 consisted of Mare and Colt Show, Dairy Cattle Show, Beef Show, Hog Show and Poultry Show. A list of premiums available to exhibitors of mares and colts totaling $42.50 was published. Jersey Cattle premiums totaled $20.00, and $20.00 in cash premiums were available to the Guernsey exhibitors of Chilton County. A $10.00 Grand Champion Dairy Cattle Award was offered in 1939.

The beef show classes were as follows:

Beef Type Open To All Grades
Beef Type Heifer
Beef Type Steer Under 12 months
Beef Type Bull
Grand Champion Beef Animal

A total of $20.00 in cash awards was offered to beef producers. No specification of breed or stipulation of registration was indicated in requirements for entry in early Beef Cattle Shows at Chilton County Fairs.

The 1939 County Hog Show was open to 'Hogs.' No breed or registration requirement was indicated for hogs.

A poultry show with classes open to light and heavy breeds of poultry along with competitive classes for turkeys, geese, and ducks was a feature of early Chilton County Fairs.

In the Homemaker's department cash awards were offered to exhibitors of a wide variety of canned and preserved food items and fourteen handicraft items.

Thumbing through the publisited 1939 "County Fair Yearbook" a notation of advertisements of supporting business firms that no longer exist—or have changed proved interesting. These firms were: People's Cash Store, Stapp Insurance Agency, The Parisian Store, The Leader, Thomason Hotel, Bus Station Cafeteria, Fore Motor Co., Chilton County Exchange, Clanton Welding and Machine Co., R. W. Lowe General Store, The Arant Watch Shop, Rockett Dry Goods Store, Alabama Harness and Shoe Shop, Nell's Eat Shoppe, and Teel's Service Station.

Officials of the 1939 Chilton County Fair included: Dr. V. J. Gragg, President; J. Mell Martin, Secretary-Treasurer; Thomas J. Littlejohn, Manager. Directors were L. E. Diefenderfer, J. L. Hollis, J. Hollis Jackson, Dr. W. L. Parrish, an Howard Oden.

An advertisement in the 1939 Chilton County Fair Yearbook indicated total resources of the First National Bank of Clanton, at close of business June 30th, 1939, as $673,257.02. Today that bank reports total resources of $2,350,000.00. The Peoples Savings Bank showed, as of June 30, 1939, resources of $891,000.00. As of June 30th this year this bank showed reseources of $3,165,216.27.

Scanning the News

THE excess profits tax, which the senate and house have extended for a six month period after strong administration pressure, is one of the most controversial and little known of our federal levies. Even the Eisenhower administration, while insisting upon it, called it a "necessary evil".

Here are its basic facts:

Who pays it—Less than 12 per cent of the nation's 424,000 corporations with taxable income.

How much money will be raised by the six-months extension—About 800 million will be added to the government's till in fiscal 1954.

How do corporations compute the tax—They figure earnings during 1946 through 1949 and report average earnings during the three most profitable years of that stretch. Eighty-three per cent of that average is "normal profit" congress decided. Earnings over that amount are liable to the excess profits tax of 30 per cent. This is on top of regular corporate income taxes.

What is the purpose of the EPT—It was designed to limit the profits of businesses involved in defense work.

What percentage of corporation tax receipts comes from the EPT—The Ways and Means Committee estimated $2 billion out of a total take of $23 billion in corporate taxes come from the excess profits levy. That's about 8.7 per cent.

Why was extension urged for what Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey called a "bad tax"—It will help shrink the deficit of $9.4 billion, a record for the government to be in the red. Also the administration has said it didn't want taxes on business cut before taxes on individual income, which are to become lower Jan. 1, 1954.

Why is it a bad tax—President Eisenhower said the EPT is "especially hard on successful small businesses which must depend on retained earnings for growth." Assistant Secretary of Commerce Craig R. Sheaffer said the tax "purposely hits hardest on new and growing enterprises" and encourages "wasteful management."

● The Post Office Department is again asking congress to grant an increase in postal rates in an effort to get the long-time money losing service out of the red. If the move is successful here's what will happen to mail users:

1. A deep pink four cent stamp will be required for out-of-town letters. (The familiar purple three-center still will be good for in-town first class mail.)

2. Airmail rates will go up—from six to seven cents per ounce.

3. Book rates will increase from eight to ten cents for the first pound and four to five cents for each extra pound.

4. Varied boosts will prevail for different types of second and third class mail.

The mail rate increase may eventually become law, but at the moment congressmen, although talking a lot about "economy" and "balancing the budget," show no signs of haste in putting it into effect.

RURAL BACKGROUND AND POLIO

Dr. Edward Davens, chief of the State Bureau of Preventive Medicine in Maryland, said recently that grownups who had been reared on farms were more susceptible to polio than adults reared in larger towns and cities. Dr. Davens said those who had been reared in thickly-settled areas were usually exposed to polio during childhood, though quite often they were not aware they had suffered slight attacks of the disease.

The doctor also revealed that there are about 200 unknown cases for every case which is definitely diagnosed as polio. Some of the unknown cases are taken for the ordinary cold and the patient recovers quite quickly. Patients who suffer such mild attacks and come through them successfully, build up an immunity which helps them ward off the disease in later life.

Children who are reared in sparsely-settled areas are often not exposed to these mild attacks and, therefore, do not build up an immunity. Dr. Davens, admitting that much of this theory on polio is still in the unestablished stage, nevertheless feels that adults who have been raised on farms, or in sparsely-settled areas should be extremely cautious about exposing themselves to polio-infested areas.

HOUSEWIVES TO FEEL PLANT CUTBACKS

It is estimated that the more than 50,000 women working in autmobile factories will be among the first workers to feel the effects of plant cutbacks sure to result because of reduced defense orders. There is a difference of opinion whether these married women will be able to find ready employment in the Detroit area, in civilian production, or return home.

The women are expected to feel the cutbacks more than men because, in most cases, the men have more seniority. The cutbacks are imminent because of a recent $500,000,000 cutback in tank and truck production announced by the Pentagon.

The defense production cuts are not as serious as some people believe since defense work is only about one-fith of the total Detroit automotive output. Therefore, the cuts will affect only the twenty percent segment of Detroit's automotive production. It is also assumed that while the twenty per cent segment of Detroit's output will be reduced, it will nevertheless remain sizeable for a number of years, since defense orders are expected to continue—though reduced—for some time to come.

It has been suggested by industry spokesmen that a pinch in employment can be averted if married women return to their housework when reduced defense work necessitates reductions in employment totals. Whether women now employed will accept this change of plan remains to be seen. More certain is the prospect that twenty or thirty thousand workers in the automobile plants around Detroit face layoffs in the next six or nine months.

Know Your Schools

by W. J. Terry
STATE SUPERINTENDENT

Industrial Education helps people choose a job, prepare for it, get a job and succeed in it. It helps boys and girls prepare for jobs while in high school. Through it they develop skills and knowledge for getting and holding a job. Trade preparatory instruction is given in larger cities through school shops. Diversified Occupations training is given through high schools in towns that can provide training jobs. It uses shops of the community for training instead of using school shops. Job training is through experience on the job on actual production for which students receive pay. They learn the skills from craftsmen who earn a living at the job. They learn the theory or technical information at school.

People not in school and who do not have jobs, or wish to change jobs, can attend a trade school. These schools have their own shops. Experienced workers are employed as instructors. Skills and knowledge of several occupations are taught.

Employed people can improve themselves in their jobs through evening and part-time classes. They are taught by workers from the occupations who are trained as teachers by the high school coordinator. The community is surveyed to find and serve needs of employed workers, such as apprentices, journeymen, foremen, and supervisors.

The state trade schools are at Dothan, Mobile, Gadsden, Tuscaloosa, Wenonah, and Decatur. These combined enroll about 1,800 students. Other trade preparatory shop classes serve about 700 students each year.

There are 73 Diversified Occupations programs and 17 in Distributive Education. These programs serve about 3,000 boys and girls. There are 425 teachers of evening and part-time classes that enroll about 17,000 workers. Boards of education have asked for 40 additional units of Diversified Occupations and 18 shop classes. The need for evening and part-time classes for workers grows as jobs become more complex and technical and as more people are employed in such jobs. Alabama is becoming industrial. In 1952 there were 53 industries brought to the state.

LESS FOREST FIRES IN 1953 REPORTED

Less than one per cent of Alabama's forests burned during the first half of 1953, a June fire report by the State Forestry Division indicated here today.

Only .65 of one per cent of the 18,111,598 acres of forest land, or 117,772 acres, burned from January through June. This compared with 1.19 per cent burned during the first half of 1952.

J. M. Stauffer, State Forester, said the excellent fire record is the best half-year mark set in the State's history. Public opinion and highly favorable weather conditions were contributary factors.

Stauffer warned against overoptimism likely to be brought on by the small occurence of fires. Last year's record through June also good but by the end of July Alabama was in one of the worst drouths in history. Consequently, forest burn during the last half of 1952 jumped to more than three per cent.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Senator Taft—

Last week the Congress and the nation lost one of its great leaders, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. On Friday and Saturday of last week, Senator Taft was praised on the floor of both houses of Congress by Democrats and Republicans alike. As I listened to the tributes paid him, it seemed to me the words most often used in describing this great American were ability, courage, character, and integrity. A tower of strength in the Republican Administration, Senator Taft's guiding hand will be sorely missed in the days and months ahead.

Emergency Immigration Act—

In the closing days of the present session, Congress passed a bill which will greatly impair the McCarran-Walter Act, our basic immigration Law that went into effect only last December.

The McCarran-Walter Act was adopted after almost five years of continuous hearings and study and was passed overwhelmingly by both the House and Senate. Yet, hardly before the ink had dried on this legislation, the House and Senate voted to circumvent and impair this basic immigration law by the passage of an emergency immigration act that will permit 217,000 immigrants to enter this country. This will be in addition to the approximately 200,000 already allowed to enter each year under the McCarran-Walter Act.

It is inevitable that 217,000 additional people in the United States will affect the economic well-being of our own people, particularly those veterans who will return from the Korean conflict to seek employment. No one can deny that jobs and living facilities taken by these immigrants will be at the expense of those who already live in this country.

The screening of immigrants coming into our country, particularly under this emergency legislation, cannot be effetive enough to assure that Communists will not be among those who will enter. This fact was admitted even by the proponents of this bill although they contended that the screening process will be so thorough that 99.4% of the people admitted will be anti-Communists. Assuming this optimistic estimate to be correct, the other .56 of 1% would amount to a total of 1215 subversives who would be released in the United States. Although they might eventually be apprehended, much damage could be done by such a group in the meantime.

Past experiences has shown us, however, that an estimate of 99.44 percent is altogether unrealistic. The Attorney General of the United States recently announced that of the 4,984 leading Communists in the United States, all but 415 were

Yet, again giving the immigrants the benefit of the doubt, let us assume once more that 99.44 percent of these immigrants will be anti-Communists. What, then, is the logic in uprooting these people from Europe and transporting them to this country at the expense of the American taxpayers? Our government has spent billions of dollars in an effort to increase the number of anti-Communists in Europe and Asia. Should we now transport these anti-Communists to the United States and further decrease their number where we need them most? It would seem to me a wiser approach to encourage these people to stay and fight for the cause of freedom in the spots they are urgently needed.

Certainly the United States has been liberal in its immigration policies. Until this country had more than 125 million people, we had no law that restricted immigration. Since that time we have shown our good will toward the other peoples of the world by adopting immigration laws much more generous than those of many other countries. For example, the United States now has 45 people per square mile. Collectively, Brazil, Africa, Canada, and Australia have seven times the area of the United States but less than 1½ times our population. Yet these countries screen their applicants so carefully that relatively few immigrants can enter.

For these reasons I felt that immigrants should continue to enter the United States under the provisions of carefully considered legislation already in effect. I therefore voted against the emergency immigration bill as did the other members of the Alabama delegation.

Turn Broom Sedge Field Into Pasture Is Advice

Auburn, Ala. — A broom sedge field can be turned into good pasture, advises D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist. He suggests these two methods:

"Spread lime on the land and plow under all the old sedge," says the specialist. "Keep the area disked during August and part of September, apply 700 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre, and then plant either oats or wheat and vetch or crimson clover."

Or apply lime now on the sedge area where there is a scattered stand of dallis or bermuda grass, continues Harbor. Then in October clip off the sedge, rake and burn. Top dress with potash and phosphate, basic slag and potash, 0-16-8, or 0-14-14 mixed fertilizer. Then disk the land lightly and sow crimson clover on high land and white clover on low land. Dallis and bermuda grasses will volunteer in the clover, concludes the agronomist, and most of the broom sedge will fade away

In building an igloo, the accepted Eskimo method is to finish the job from the inside before a door is made. The owner of the new home then must chop his way out.

You can put an ELECTRIC WATER HEATER anywhere you wish!

Close to the sink . . .

Save on long pipe runs—put your electric water heater right beneath the kitchen sink. Or, if it's more convenient you can have it next to, or back to back with the sink . . . where the most hot water is used every day. You'll save money now (and later) by eliminating expensive pipe runs . . . water won't be left standing to cool in long pipes.

In a utility room . . .

An electric water heater is so well insulated you won't have any worries if it's in the utility room which doubles as a children's play room. Electric water heaters are as clean as a light bulb.

In a closet . . .

An electric water heater doesn't have to have a supply of air to operate. It works just as well in a closet as in a basement. Wherever it's most convenient . . . you can place your electric water heater.

Electric water heaters are good long term investments . . . you'll save money for years to come, thanks to their extra long life and extra efficiency.

DOES YOUR POLICY INCLUDE CHIROPRACTIC?

by Dr. M. L. Ware

More and more insurance companies are including Chiropractic care in their accident and health policies.

Have you read your policy recently? Does it provide that you may have the services of your family Chiropractor under the terms of the policy? We suggest that you ask your insurance agent whether the company pays claims for Chiropractic services?

The next time you renew your insurance or buy a new policy, check its provisions carefully . . . the premium will be no more than the ordinary policy, and you will have the added assurance that you can have Chiropractic if you want it.

Employee Benefits—

If you are a wage earner, does your employer's health plan and insurance coverage include Chiropractic? If not, discuss the matter with your local union representative.

Mr. and Mrs. John Durham have moved to Crumpton Grove.

Mrs. Mae Cox, Richard and Mike Davis of Fairhope came last Sunday for a two week visit with Miss Estelle Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Oden of Mobile spent last week end with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly and Fred.

Mrs. Joe W. Graham has returned from a Selma hospital and is improving daily. We hope she will soon be up and around again.

Mr. Union Chambers, Mr. Julius Smith, Mr. Perry Thomas, Mr. Garland Foshee and others spent last week fishing on the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Graham entertained their little grandson, Walter Graham, with a weiner roast last Wednesday afternoon in honor of his seventh birthday. Little fellows helping to celebrate were: Ed Clapp, Mary Ann Watson, Lillian Seales, Joy Dell Adams, Carol Owen, Tommy Goff.

Hot dogs, kool-aide, ice cream, and cake were served.

The Blood Mobile got 160 pints of blood last Friday when it visited here. About 100 were turned down. This is the first time the county quota of 130 pints has been reached. Mrs. R. W. Stremming was the worker in this territory. I think she can say "A job well done" with plenty of cooperation.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hampton returned last Wednesday from a 10 day vacation and rest in North Carolina. From Byson City they visited different places of interest. Most of all they enjoyed seeing the great Cherokee Indian Drama, "Unto These Hills." The play is put on every year at an outdoor theatre mostly by the Cherokee Indians of North Carolina. It is a wonderful play.

We extend our sympathy to the family of Mrs. G. A. DeRamus (Elizbeth) who passed away at the home of a daughter in Montgomery last Monday night.

PER CAPITA INCOME IN STATE GROWING

Calera, Ala. July 27—Speaking before Calera's Civitan Club Monday night, Dr. T. H. Napier, Dean Emeritus of Alabama College at Montevallo revealed that Alabama's per capita income is growing faster than the nation's; is increasing more rapidly than any of the 12 Southern states; but that Alabama is training fewer people to further its own economic progress than any state in the nation except one.

"This economic improvement means we need more scientists, engineers, trained business men, teachers, physicians, agriculturalists and others who are college trained, and if we are to keep pace with the rest of the nation," Dr. Napier said, "fifty percent more of our young people should be in college."

Using the recently published brochure LOOK AT OUR COLLEGES as the basis for his talk, the Montevallo educator pointed out that the more schooling the population of a state has, the more goods are sold; or putting it differently "the per capita retail sales of a state corresponds to the level of education attained by its people." "Therefore," he continued, "a state's colleges are investments in its own economic progress and in the cultural development of its citizens."

In answer to the question, "Does Alabama have enough colleges?" Dr. Napier pointed out that Alabama has one college for each 7,731 college age people and the national average is one for each 4,400. Dr. Napier continued by saying, "Alabama has fewer colleges and larger enrollments on the average, than does the nation or the other Southern states."

Dr. Napier, who retired as Dean of Alabama College last year concluded his talk before Calera's Civitans by saying, "We in Alabama are able to do more for our colleges than are a number of other Southern States and we are really doing less in most respects. If we were as liberal with education as we are in purchasing beverages, tobaccos, and cosmetics, no one would ever need to feel that he had been deprived of a college education in Alabama because of any lack of facilities."

Paper doilies or paper napkins placed between fine china plates will help prevent scratching; outing flannel or scraps of cloth can also be used.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

An important man in each early Alabama Indian town was the medicine man. He practiced his profession with medicines made from roots and herbs, and by the use of witchcraft. Drums and gourds filled with stones that made an unusual rattle were among the instruments used in driving away the supposed evil spirits that produced sickness.

The ancient Alabama Indians were nature worshippers, having a great veneration for the sun, moon, and certain stars. They felt that these heavenly objects reacted upon their well being. It was the sun that they looked to for the growth of their crops. All of their religious ceremonies took into consideration the cardinal points of the compass —north, east, south, and west.

Alabama's Indian population at the time of the visit of DeSoto, in 1540, was greater than ever afterwards, but there is no way to ascertain the exact numbers. Many thousands of Indians were living in towns and villages in all sections of the state. They usually built their towns near the edge of lakes, or by navigable waters and streams. There were always fine springs near their villages and inside their walled towns. They travelled upon foot over well established paths and upon the streams in small boats.

When the white settlers began to pour into Alabama at the close of the 18th century and the opening of the 19th, they found Indians, with few exceptions, living as they were when DeSoto visited them in 1540. DeSoto's expedition had left some livestock and the settlers had imported some from the Atlantic Seaboard; however, they used little of this meat for food.

Hunting and fishing were the chief occupation of the Indian men when not engaged in war. These activities furnished not only a livlihood and sport for the male population, but also provided meat for their families. In hunting the Indian often disguised himself beneath the cured skin of wild animals. In fishing he used nets and crude traps.

While the men of the Alabama Indian tribes hunted and fished, women were assigned the task of cultivating the crops. The tilling of the soil was considered degrading by most of the men, hence it was left to the women. Corn was the main crop, but the Indians raised other food crops such as squash, beans, pumpkins an[illegible]

Add More Vegetables To Your Menus, Says Leader

"Many vegetables can be eaten raw to give variety and to preserve more of their food value," suggests the specialist. "Some of these are cabbage, carrots, turnips, turnip greens, cauliflower, and spinach. Try a salad made of raw cabbage, raw turnips, or spinach.

"Cut down on foods low in minerals and vitamins, such as grits, white rice, macaroni, or spaghetti," she concludes. "Use more whole wheat products, enriched flour, oatmeal, and fresh vegetables."

What Is It . . . ?

. . . . that helps make your water supply so dependable?

. . . . that runs elevators and operates X-rays in hospitals?

. . . . that helps you preserve food with health-giving vitamins and minerals retained?

. . . . that contributes so greatly to the comfort of your every-day living?

. . . . that brings you entertainment at the turn of a dial?

. . . . that makes it possible to do your job — at home, in the factory, store or office with so much greater ease?

What Is It . . . ?

. . . . without which modern cities and most farm homes soon would be without adequate water supply?

. . . . without which doctors could not perform their miraculous operations and treatment?

. . . . without which food would quickly spoil?

. . . . without which many would be without means to prepare food?

. . . . without which factories would have to close with resultant unemployment?

THIS Is It!

Electric power . . . not just the mere existence of it but its delivery to the points where needed . . . its BEING THERE at the instant of need . . . at the flick of a switch . . .

BEING THERE means being backed up by men and women many of whom have given a lifetime of devotion to the ideal that because the well-being of so many depends on dependable electric service their work is a kind of consecrated service. That many of them think so is proven by their response to duty in cases of local emergency — when storm or fire or other catastrophe temporarily disrupts electric service . . . when they work beyond their allotted eight hours to restore as quickly as possible that miracle of modern living so vital to the health, safety, comfort or earning capacity of every man, woman and child — in health or in sickness, in town or country, in shop or home.

It has been just slightly less than 40 years ago (April, 1914) when power from the first large hydro-electric power development in Alabama flowed into a transmission line to bring about the industrial and social revolution that's taken place in that short period. Just about 40 years ago (September, 1913), the first large (for that period) steam plant was put into operation to supply power during periods when low water in the river made it impossible to generate enough hydro-power to supply the need.

In the years since, Alabama Power Company has built plants — hydro and steam — always in proper balance to give a dependable year-'round source of supply and always in time to supply the ever-widening field in which electricity has contributed so much to human welfare. And in all of those forty years there have been men of faith — and men and women whose sense of responsibility to their fellowman has caused them to lay aside personal convenience or desire so that today electric power has become a vital every-hour part of satisfactory living — and at a cost to the user that even families of modest income can afford.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Cathryn Tisdale Hamilton

The four-year-old and the six-year-old's movie going has been limited almost exclusively to the Saturday cowboy adventures at the neighboring theatre, but when one of the new Three-Dimension pictures came to town, the whole family had to go see it. It was a Western adventure, too, highly glorified.

The six-year-old was enthusiastic about seeing the new type movie until she learned that she would have to wear special colored glasses. Then she wasn't at all sure she wanted to go.

"They might not be becoming," she explained, "and people will think I look funny."

It was only after she was assured that everybody at the movie would wear the same kind of glasses and that she wouldn't have to put them on until everybody else did that she was willing to go. Even then she comforted herself by saying:

"Well, it will be darkk in the picture now, and I don't guess anybody can see me even if the glasses do look funny."

That movie took me back through the years to one of my childhood delights, to visiting in the home of a neighbor and being allowed to look at pictures through an old stereoscope.

It must have been my mean streak cropping out. Anyhow, the other morning I stopped by to see the next door neighbor and found her busy shining the bottoms of her aluminum pots. It gave me unusual pleasure to remark casually:

"I never polish the bottoms of my aluminum pots and pans, not since I read that a dull surface absorbs more heat than a shiny one. I figure my laziness saves on fuel bills."

She was startled. And she was torn between wanting to be a perfect housekeeper and wanting to save money, but I think she has stopped polishing those pans.

Have you played Scrabble? This new game, a combination of old anagrams and crossword puzzles, has become very popular with the adults in our neighborhood. Our dictionary is being used more than it has been used in years. However, the game takes so much time that I'm going to have to join Scrabble Anonymous!

Our thrifty next door neighbor, who finds a use for almost everything, uses empty salt cartons (the kind with spouts) to hold bread crumbs. She fills them with a funnel and says they are excellent for this purpose.

All active youngsters manage to get a variety of stains on their clothes, and during the summer months they always get clothes stained with grass, especially white clothes.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, recommends pure alcohol for removing the green stains from white clothes. She washes the spots in the alcohol, and they soon vanish.

Even in hot weather children like cookies, and here's one of their favorites, Chocolate Speckles:

Combine and beat well ½ cup shortening, 1 egg, ½ cup peanut butter and ½ cup water. Add ½ cup rolled oats, 1½ cups sifted flour, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, and 1 cup chopped chocolate bits. Form into roll about 2 inches thick and chill. Slice into pieces 1-8 inch thick, place on ungreased cookie sheet and bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes.

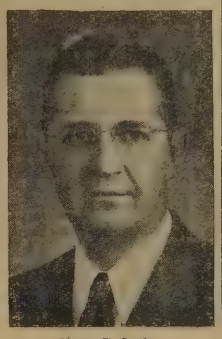
LACKEY HEADS UNITED DEFENCE FUND IN STATE



Harry B. Lackey

Harry B. Lackey, State Manager of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, with headquarters in Birmingham, has been appointed State Chairman of the United Defense Fund, Charles R. Yates, Southeastern Regional Chairman, announced today.

Mr. Lackey will work with the Community Chest leaders throughout the state in the effort to raise the $143,440.00 quota for Alabama. The United Defense Fund raises its funds through inclusion in the Community Chests of the several communities. He will also work with the local U.S.O. Committees throughout Alabama to provide recreational facilities for the servicemen and women.

President Eisenhower recently declared that "if there's an armistice in Korea, don't let anyone tell you the need will be lessened for services USO and the other UDF agencies are providing. The end of fighting in Korea will be followed by a 'trying period' when our troops will have to remain in the area, and it is then that United Defence Fund agencies can be of even greater value." Now that the armistice is an accomplished fact, President Eisenhower's statement becomes a reality.

Active in civic and other public spirited enterprises wherever he has lived, Mr. Lackey is a member of the Birmingham Kiwanis Club, Board of Directors of the Committee of 100 and the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce. He lived in New Orleans for eight years and is a past president of the New Orleans Rotary Club, New Orleans Electrical Association and Louisiana Armed Forces Communications Association.

4-H'ers Attend Power Company Recreation Camp

More than 300 4-H boys and girls from all parts of Chilton County last week attended the annual county recreational week picnics at the Alabama Power Company's Recreation area on the Coosa River.

Each day there were visitors and parents of 4-H'ers also present. Cook Snap Beans Just Until They Are Tender

Cook fresh, tender snap beans only a short time, advises Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist. Too much cooking removes their appeal and nutritional value. "In cooking vegetables," explains the specialist," you should try to retain color, texture, flavor, and nutritive values. This means cooking a short time in a small amount of water. Then season and serve vegetables as soon as they're cooked."

Over-cooked snap beans develop an undesirable flavor, adds Miss Hulsey. And they change color to some extent. So cook them only until they're tender for best appearance, consistency, taste, and food value.

Press your hand lightly around a can containing semi-solid food such as cranberry sauce, salmon, etc., and the contents usually will slip out intact.

Chilton County Plans A Dairy Maid Contest

Chilton County is planning to have a 4-H Dairy Maid Contest in connection with the Dairy Show during the County Fair August 25th-29th. The Dairy Maid Contest is held to promote the 4-H program and present it to the people of the County as well as being an added attraction to the County Dairy Show.

Any 4-H girl in the County is eligible for entering the contest. Four-H'ers ages range from ten to twenty-one, so this is the age range for the girls in the contest. Girls entering the contest must carry a good project or projects, but it is not necessary for her to have a dairy project. Points the girls will be judged on are project record, leadership, appearance, personality and poise. Each of these points counts twenty percent.

Each 4-H Club in the County may have one or more representatives in the County Dairy Maid Contest. Any girls who are interested in entering the contest may do so by sending their name in to Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent. Girls should get their names in as soon as possible so that they may be given some detailed information about the Contest. For each girl entering the Contest a 4-H boy will be selected to be her escort.

Miss Martin announces that the girls and boys will be required to wear the official 4-H uniforms in the Dairy Maid Contest. The girl's uniform is a green and white striped seersucker skirt and jacket with a white dickey. The boy's uniform is light or white trousers, a white shirt and a green tie.

Girls who have three 4-H uniforms are called on other times during the year to wear them, so girls its worth your while to enter the Dairy Maid Contest and have a 4-H uniform because you will be able to wear it at other 4-H activities.

The exact date of the County Dairy Maid Contest will be announced later, but it will be during the County Fair August 25th-29th.

Miss Martin also announces that the Chilton County Dairy Maid and her escort will go to Dadeville and enter the District Dairy Maid Contest September 10th-11th. The winner of the District Contest will then attend the State Fair in Birmingham October 5th-10th where she will be presented with the Dairy Maids from the other Districts of Alabama.

MORE CORN THIS YEAR

The Alabama Crop Reporting Service estimates that this year's average corn yield in the state will be bushels per acre — almost double the low yield in 1952.

Interest High-
Chilton County Fair Scheduled To Be Tremendous Success

Activity is running at a high pitch this week with the Chilton County Fair workers getting into high gear and plans begin to take shape for the biggest Fair yet with it's opening day set for Tuesday, August 25th, and running for four full days and nights at the Clanton Airport.

With close to $1,500 set up for prize money for the exhibitors this year's Fair will feature such things as the Dairy Cattle Show and the presentation of the Dairy Maid, the Beef Cattle Show, the Registered Jersey Cattle sale and the many commercial, industry and educational exhibits that will line the huge airport hangar, to make the show more colorful than ever.

But that's not all. Each day the big show will be featured by rides and games for both young and old alike as presented by a leading amusement company, which will be set up outside the hangar on the green grass of the airport.

At the same time there will be many exhibits by many of the prominent farm machinery concerns from throughout this area.

Hereford, Aberdeen Angus, Red Poll, Polled Hereford and commercial calf producers will present approximately 50 of the best animals that have been produced in Chilton County.

Beef cattle classes for purebred males and females of Hereford and Aberdeen Angus breeds of various ages are to be entered in the competition. Killer-stocker calves and Red Polled animals are to be on exhibit but not in competitive classes. A visual demonstration of the value of good bulls in beef cattle improvement work is to be presented. All animals for five generations showing the dairy type brood cow, her half-breed off-spring, etc., up to 15-16 beef animal is to be one of the more valuable educational portions of the beef cattle show.

Ralph Mims and his Chilton County Cattleman's Association are preparing an exhibit that every lover of better livestock can't afford to miss.

Another major agricultural attraction at this year's Fair will be the Dairy Cattle Exhibit. Cattle will be on display throughout the Fair week, but actual Dairy cattle judging and awarding of prizes is scheduled for Wednesday, August 26th.

Purebred Jersey cattle, bull and females, of all ages from Junior heifer calves to mature animals and various groups of grade dairy females are to be on display.

Jersey, Ayrshire, Holstein-Friesian, Guernsey and Brown Swiss breeds of dairy animals will be presented in the Chilton County Dairy Cattle Show.

A study of dairy cattle breeds, a study in type of dairy cattle, and a visual picture of progress in developing better dairy animals in the county is to be presented.

Ten Registered Jersey heifers and two Registered Jersey bulls are to be offered at public auction Saturday, August 29th.

According to M. R. Glasscock, county agent, all sale animals are being consigned by Chilton County Jersey breeders. The sale animals will also be entered in the Dairy Cattle Show and will be on display throughout the week prior to the actual sale.

Jersey breeders consigning cattle to the auction are: O. H. Lawrence, New Cedron; Ernest P. Edwards, Enterprise; M. R. Oats, Macedonia; Harry Higginbotham, Maplesville; J. G. Heida, Thorsby; and many others.

All of the sale animals are offsprings of productive cows and sired by productive bred bulls.

The Jersey Cattle sale is scheduled for Saturday, August 29th, and is considered an opportunity to buy Registered Jerseys from some of the county's most productive herds at public auction.

Many colorful industrial exhibits to depict Chilton County's business and industry is to be a major portion of this year's event.

The entire available space on the inside of the huge airport hangar is to be devoted to the showing of the many and varied products produced and sold by people of Chilton County.

Early reports indicate that commercial concerns will be offering a variety of attendance prizes to help keep the interest in the final day of the Fair.

Revival Services At Liberty Hill

Revival services will begin Sunday, August 16th, at the Liberty Hill Baptist Church with the Rev. R. E. McKee of Selma as the visiting evangelist.

The services are scheduled to get underway at 10:30 each morning and again at 7:30 each night. The services will run until Friday night, August 21st. The general public has a cordial invitation to attend any and all of these services.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our kindness and appreciation to the Central Alabama Hospital; the doctors and nurses, for what they did during the sickness and death of our dear mother; also many thanks to the church and communities that gave a token of love with flowers and kindnesses.

We want you to know that your kindness at this time is more deeply appreciated than any words of thanks can express.

May God's richest blessings be upon each and every one is our prayer. — The Deavers Family.

Baseball Game At Jemison Tomorrow

Lomax will meet Robinwood at Jemison Wednesday night at 7:30. Robinwood is rated a good high school team out of Birmingham.

Lomax is on the road this week end. They will go to Randolph on Saturday afternoon and to Montevallo on Sunday. On last Wednesday night Montevallo defeated Lomax at Jemison by a score of 10-4.

Draper Prison defeated Lomax last Saturday 11-7. The game was played at Draper Prison. On Sunday Lomax defeated Prattville 8-2.

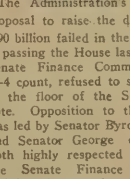
Report from Washington



BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The Administration's last-minute proposal to raise the debt limit to $290 billion failed in the Senate after passing the House last week. The Senate Finance Committee, by a 11-4 count, refused to send the bill to the floor of the Senate for a vote. Opposition to this proposal was led by Senator Byrd of Virginia and Senator George of Georgia, both highly respected members of the Senate Finance Committee. Chief spokesman for the Administration was Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

Mr. Humphrey argued that the Administration could not spend as authorized by Congress without spending over the present debt limit. The fallacy in Mr. Humphrey's argument is that Congress only authorizes the spending. It makes it permissive but not mandatory. There is no law saying every agency must spend every dime allotted it as fast as it can. On the contrary, the Administration has pledged itself to a continuous policy of retrenchment, and this is an excellent opportunity for it to put that policy into effect.

If, after a strenuous effort to keep spending below the present $275 billion limit, it is impossible to do so, then Congress will be called back into session. Some feel it will not be necessary to reconvene Congress. Others are doubtful. It has been agreed, however, that no further attempts will be made to raise the National debt limit until after the September tax collections have been received.

Attends Taft's Funeral—

Last Monday I attended the state funeral of the late Robert A. Taft. It was held in the rotunda of the Capitol and was attended by Senator Taft's family and by almost all of official Washington.

Senator Taft was one of only 13 people in the history of the nation to be memoralized at a state funeral service in the Capitol rotunda. Among the other 12 accorded the highest tribute the United States can pay its dead was Senator Taft's father, President William Howard Taft.

Returns To District—

Because Congress has adjourned and I will return to the District the latter part of this week, this will be my last "Report from Washington" until Congress reconvenes.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all the newspapers in the Sixth District for their splendid cooperation in making it possible for me to report my activities as your Congressman. I also want to thank the many readers from every county in the District who have expressed by letter their approval of my weekly report. I have made every effort to keep it both interesting and informative, and I hope it will be possible for me to resume my report when Congress reconvenes in January.

Except for a period of two weeks when it will be necessary for me to return to Washington for committee work, I expect to be in the District during the Congressional recess. My District office will be located in the Post Office Building in Tuscaloosa, and I will maintain a full-time staff there. In the event anyone wishes to write me, I suggest you mail your letter to my Tuscaloosa office. Although I plan to spend approximately two days each week at my Tuscaloosa office, the rest of my time will be spent visiting the other counties of the District.

I am anxious to see as many of you in the Sixth District during the recess as possible. In the meantime, I hope you will continue to call on me whenever I can be of assistance.

The necessity of working for the upbuilding of the home community should be apparent to everyone. The growth and development of each community adds to the prosperity of all. By helping your neighbor, you help yourself, and nothing contributes more to human happiness than a growing, prosperous and harmonious community where all are willing to do their part.

You are a partner in your community. If it grows and thrives, you profit in hard dollars and cents. If its growth is retarded and it goes backwards, you lose. You and your neighbors have the making or breaking in your hands.

Do your share and there will be no question as to the outcome. It means money for you and for your family; it means the same thing for your neighbors.

Frequently a community will fall into a rut of indifference and the prosperity that might have been theirs is lost for want of a little push and enterprise. Noting these things, many of the citizens realize the need of a little work to bring home the value of home community work to the people and lead on to solid road in the future.

In our columns appear the names of your "partners" who are speaking to you in these articles. Our own business men who have a great confidence in a great future here. They must have, or they would not back their faith in this place with the investments they have made, and pay heavy taxes on those investments besides spending large sums each year to maintain the establishments that stand before you, as monuments of their implicit confidence that the community can and will make good.

Cut Production Expense With Labor-Saving Aids

Since labor is one of the biggest expenses of production, poultrymen who cut corners with labor-saving devices wind up with greater profits at the end of the year.

John Weeks, API Extension poultryman, says that automatic watering systems are one of the biggest labor savers. Other expense cutters are feed carriers, large feeders, bins for a week's feed supply, and mechanical feeders, he adds.

"Litter chutes, double doors at each end of the building, and dropping pits save time and labor in cleaning houses," continues Weeks. "Double-swinging doors allow easy movement between pens when you have both hands full of supplies. And handy egg rooms equipped with egg-grading tables will reduce labor needed to get the product to market."

"Your Health" is presented by your physician in a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ACCIDENTS IN CHILDREN

The leading cause of death in children is accidents. Many of these could be avoided if a little common sense and the rules of safety were applied.

Most accidents occur in the homes and many of these to children can be attributed to the parent. Burns, for example, may be caused by boiling water left in a tub on the floor or by hot liquids pulled off the stove or table. A protuding handle of a pan on the stove intrigues curious youngsters, and the result can be fatal. Fireplaces should be guarded by screens and only safety matches should be used in the home. A child should always be watched carefully when he is in the kitchen or laundry.

Easy accessibility to lye, lysol, insecticides, rat poisons may result in a severe accident to a child, if not a fatal one. Even large doses of some medicines may cause permanent disability and death. Aspirin, especially the flavored variety, if taken by the child in larger than the prescribed dosage can cause severe damage and even death.

When a child swallows some substance it should not have call your physician at once. When caustics are swallowed, or even placed in the mouth routine emergency procedures should be instituted. In this instance, the stomach should never be washed out, but olive oil given to coat the burned area. The best preventive for these types of accidents is to keep the materials completely out of the child,s reach.

Accidents resulting from falls are often preventable, particularly if doors and windows are securely locked, bot only in the home but in the automobile. Protecting dangerous stairways with gates and placing screens or bars in windows may avert an accident.

Carelessnes and ignorance are the chief factors in accidents to children. Give some thought to the safety rules. Play safely—live safely. Accidents are one condition that can be prevented.

DID YOU KNOW?

About one-eighth of all crop production in the United States depends totally or in part upon irrigation.

Suggestions On Corn Use Released By Specialists

Auburn, Ala. — This week API Extension specialists were giving farmers advice on profitable use of what promises to be a bumper corn crop in Alabama.

Experiments show that creep-fed calves weigh 60 more pounds at weaning time than those that are not creep-fed," said W. H. Gregory, beef cattle marketing specialist. "And at present market prices fat is more important than ever as there is almost a four cent per pound spread between commercial and choice calves, the principal difference being degree of fatness of the calf."

Poultryman John Weeks advised: "Broiler producers can profitably use commercially-prepared protein supplements fed with corn according to manufacturer's directions. Egg producers can use a high-protein supplement and corn and other grains fed free choice, or they can mix the supplement with ground corn and then feed additional grain as a scratch feed."

"As the most palatable of all cereal grains fed dairy cows," added Dairyman John Parrish, "corn can be mixed with cottonseed meal, ground oats, and salt to balance the ration of cows on grazing. Feed cows according to the standard grain-feeding table available at the county agent's office."

And G. E. Phillips, animal industry specialist, suggested: "If possible, fatten pigs out on green legume grazing and a full feed of a balanced ration of corn, protein supplement, mineral mixture, salt, and water. A corn-alone ration does not contain the proteins, minerals, and vitamins necessary for pigs to make good growth and gains."

Start Fall Gardens Now Advises Horticulturist

Auburn, Ala. — Now's the time to start fall gardens, according to John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist.

He lists these vegetables to be planted during August for fall production: Pole and bush snap beans, bush lima beans, tomato plants, Irish potatoes, beets, carrots, Swiss chard, collards, leaf lettuce, turnips, and rutabagas.

"Good management is necessary in successful gardening," Bagby reminds growers. "Cultivate rows thoroughly, use plenty of fertilizer, keep grass and weeds out of the garden, and control insect pests.

"Seed saving is another important part of August gardening," he continues. "Save seed from good producing plants of peas, beans, melons, squash, and okra. And be sure the plants are free from disease."

Put Smooth Finishing Touch On All Garments

Auburn, Ala. — Smooth edges on a finished garment indicate good sewing techniques. Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, offers these hints to homemakers on giving their garments that professional touch.

"Trim collars and belts at the points," says the home leader. "Trim seam edges to even width. However, on heavy material it pays to trim one seam edge narrower than the other.

"Overlapping and bulkiness often occur on the outside of round collars," she continues. "Notch the seams to prevent this. On curves, such as round necklines, clip the seams to allow for spreading of the seam edges. Straight stitching and sharp turning of seams on the line of stitching are also very important.'

HEAD AUGUST FOOD LIST

Beef is in the limelight again this month on the plentiful foods list, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Broilers, fryers, fresh and frozen fish, potatoes, milk and other dairy products, locally-grown vegetables, and fruits will also be in abundant supply.

Ideas from other editors

From the Cedar Springs Clipper, Cedar Springs, Michigan: A printer's devil is a term common to newspaper offices, but what about snakes?

Last week a blow snake wiggled its way the 100-foot length of The Clipper print shop, from back door to front, unconcerned and unafraid. But not so The Clipper staff. Agnes Behrendt, linotype operator, and Susie Anderson, office assistant, climbed screaming atop nearest chairs, while Bob Spicer and Oscar Goller, printers, cheered.

The Clipper editor was in Butterworth hospital, the advertising executive in Detroit, or they probably would have been suspended from the ceiling as Mr. Blow Snake took over.

From The Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: The Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution which became effective in 1913 and gave the federal government the power to lay a direct tax on the incomes of the people, was the seed from which the socialistic welfare state idea grew in this country. Actually, not one of us has a constitutional right remaining to one penny of our income.

The unlimited power to tax the incomes of the people reversed the basic concept of government on which our republic is founded. It made government master of the people, rather than their servant.

Most of us, still startled by the tremendous chunks of our income that went to pay federal taxes last year, begin to agree with the idea that the only way to prevent confiscatory taxation is to now limit, by Constitutional amendment, the income taxing power of government. This is the only way we can hope to preserve representative government and a free economy.

Relief will never come from tax collectors but only through changes forced by taxpayers.

From the Somerset American, Somerset, Pa.: John L. Lewis has called upon congress to develop new uses for coal. The head of the United Mine Workers points out that gasoline may be made out of coal and that for the national defense, it should be.

The question arises, should congress be the agency through which coal is converted into gasoline?

That which is done by the government is done uneconomically, often wastefully. That which is done by private corporations is done more efficiently and at less cost.

The Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal company has done a great deal toward the development of new uses for coal and has probably done a better job than the government would have done.

TREAT CORN CRIBS NOW

Grain bins should be thoroughly cleaned and sprayed now with a five per cent DDT solution, giving particular attention to bin linings and areas between partitions where weevils may be hiding.

Alabama produces more than $450,000,000 worth of forest products annually, and trees, most of which are planted by nature, sell for more money than cotton, livestock, or any other crop grown in the state.

Chilton Operates Sixty-one School Busses At Cost Of $65,000 Dollars Per Year

"Ho Hum," said one Chilton County School bus to another, "Here we go again starting on another 2,500 miles, another nine months of hauling all those school kids. For 13 years I've been at this job and I've gone over a hundred thousand miles."

"Yea," said the second 13-year-old bus, "and just look at those big shiny new busses over there. They don't know what they're getting into. I'll bet they won't ever get to start on their second hundred thousand miles."

"Listen to who's talking," said one of the brand new busses parked in the same area, "I'll bet it will be a long time before the machanics ever have to work on me, repair my brakes or put on some new tires."

And so the argument must go on until the last day of this month when once again the 61 Chilton County school busses will start their daily trek over some 2,500 miles of county roads, each with it's precious cargo of our future generation, a generation that could very well produce another President of the United States, another Governor of Alabama or another Judge of Probate of Chilton County.

In an exclusive interview this week with a Chilton County News reporter, W. A. (Bing) LeCroy, transportation supervisor of the county's school bus system, reported that starting with this school year there will be nine new busses on the system that will carry 65 of Chilton County's younger generation.

Mr. LeCroy explained that although the county has a total of 61 school busses in operating condition at all times, the transportation system keeps five busses in readiness at all times as substitute vehicles.

In explaining the bus system the supervisor brought out the fact that each school year it costs the county some $65,000 to operate. And in comparison LeCroy also pointed out that it cost another county in the state last year $79,000 to operate only 43 busses.

During the school year our school busses burn up 62,500 gallons of gasoline. It would take the average passenger car, traveling 10,000 miles per year and averaging 15 miles per gallon a total of 93 years to burn up that much fuel.

By the same token with our busses traveling 2,500 miles per day to total distance they travel each year, would equal better than 17 times around the world.

In pointing out that the primary purpose of school busses is to give all children in the area an equal educational opportunity.

The Chilton County bus system has been pointed out as one of three out of the total of 67 in the state operating it's school bus system cheaper than any other county in the state.

Howard Boockholdt, Superintendent of the County School system pointed out that one of the main reasons there are so many of the original fleet of 40 fourteen school busses still in operation is because it is cheaper to maintain the older vehicles than it is to buy new ones. When the original busses were purchased, according to the superintendent, they cost slightly over $1,200 each. This year the county education system bought nine new ones at a cost of approximately $3,000 each.

One of the main reasons the cost of Chilton County School Busses has been held to a minimum, according to Boockholdt and LeCroy, is because the system maintains it's own complete repair shops. Another is because of the rigid schedule of "preventative maintenance."

This means that when the least little thing goes wrong with one of the vehicles it is repaired just as soon as possible rather than to let it go and develop into a major repair job. Mr. Boockholdt pointed out that the drivers have strict orders not to move a school bus even one foot, other than to remove the vehicle out of the middle of the road, if the brakes on a bus should give the slightest bit of trouble.

The repair shops in the rear of the Chilton County High School are maned by expert mechanics and they are on duty just as long as the busses are moving on the roads each day so that they can be of assistance should their help be needed. Tommy Leslie is the shop foreman, and there is also W. H. Scott and Vaughan McKee. These men, along with Mr. LeCroy, are charged with the responsibility to see to it that the bus system operates efficiently.

LeCroy also pointed out that the shops are so equipped that any kind of a repair can be made to a school bus. The transportation supervisor pointed out that many other counties do not maintain such expansive repair shops and it is therefore more costly to ship busses back to factories to have them repaired.

There are 20 student drivers of the total that operates the school busses and the transportation supervisor had high praise for their work. Mr. LeCroy stated that these student drivers have proved just as efficient as older drivers. LeCroy also pointed out that there will be a school bus training school started shortly after the beginning of this school year.

Although in past years this training has usually been performed prior to the beginning of school it is felt that this year the training should also be given to the student body as well as to the drivers. The two school officials pointed out that it is just as important to teach the students to load and unload busses in a safe manner as it is to have the busses operated in the same way.

At the same time the officials also pointed to the fact that a new safety patrol was put into effect during the last school year that proved very effective and Boockholdt and LeCroy both had high praise for those involved.

The new patrol is called the Red Flag Patrol. And it's purpose is to assist the bus drivers in getting the school children on and off the busses safely as well as assisting the students across the highways.

Each bus is equipped with a student with a red flag. At each stop the red flag is held out in front of the bus in such a manner that traffic operating in both directions can see it. This flag is held in this position until all children at that bus stop have safely crossed the highway on their way to their homes. The two officials pointed out that this practice will be used again this year. At the same time Mr. Boockholdt and Mr. LeCroy urged the cooperation of the students's parents in teaching the students to also obey these rules.

All attendants wore floor length dresses of ceil blue net over taffeta, featuring fitted strapless bodices, elongated with points of shirred net, from which sprung full net skirts. Double stoles veiled the shoulders and tied at back in long floating panels. Ceil blue net mitts and net mask veils trimmed in blue velvet ribbon completed the costumes. They carried cascade bouquets of white Asters and Valley lilies.

The flower girls were dressed alike in floor length dresses with full net ruffled skirts of Ceil blue and tiny blue net capes over taffeta. They wore tiny blue bandesus on their heads. They carried blue baskets of white rose petals.

The Ring Bearer was dressed in a white linen suit and carried the rings on the satin pillow which was used by the bride's mother and aunt.

From the long torso bodice the full tulle skirts over satin were set on in scallops and wide panels of lace were inserted at the front of the skirt. The back panel spread to a cotillion train. The fingertip illusion veil cascaded from a Juliet cap of smocked net caught with tiny pearls.

She carried a prayer book with showered arrangements of bride's roses, lilies of the valley and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

The bride and groom received their guest at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Parks before a mantle bedecked with smilax and white gladiolas.

The lovely triple tiered cake of pale pink embossed with orchids and roses and topped with real lilies of the valley, sweetheart roses and tube roses graced the dining table. Mrs. Roy Couch and Mrs. John F. Wakefield of Russellville cut the cake. Mrs. Milton G. Walker of Uniontown kept the bride's book.

Pink punch was served on the lawn from wrought iron glass top tables, beautifully decorated with pink tulle, violet leaves and sweetheart roses. Hurricane lamps outlined a path to the bride's home where the gifts were displayed.

Magic is in the air—the familiar magic of your favorite network radio programs, brought to your radio station over Bell telephone circuits.

★The transmission of network radio over telephone facilities is just one of many developments that sprang from basic Bell telephone research to enrich the lives of millions. The microwave radio relay, which carries Long Distance calls and network television, and the sending of news photographs over telephone wires also grew out of the constant search for new magic to make your service ever better.★

It takes more than magic, however, to keep telephone service growing with the community. It takes a financially healthy Telephone Company, with earnings high enough to keep service good today—and growing tomorrow.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

John Deramus and Earl O'Neal both reported "first" bales of cotton ginned the same day. John of the Planters Gin & Warehouse Company reported that G. W. Bavar, of Clanton Route 3, brought a bale of cotton to be ginned Wednesday morning. It weighed 530 pounds. Earl O'Neal of the Earl O'Neal Gin & Warehouse Company reported that Millard Reynolds brought a bale of cotton in Wednesday morning. It weighed 525 pounds. What do you say we call it a tie for this year?

We don't know what it is but it seems when the foxhunting disease is contracted, it lasts a lifetime and there is no known cure. Whatever it is, we think we will get us some one-galloused britches, a chaw of Brown Mule and jine-up in the foxhunters festivities next week. Seems they always have so much fun. Of course, we're taking for granted the Porches, Gores, Joneses, or Pierces will loan us a soup-hound or two, and a little moral support. Maybe we'll be able to track down some barbecue for our sportsman-like endeavor, if we don't track down any foxes.

Our correspondent from Jemison, Mrs. George Naish, has sent us some timely thoughts that we are passing along to you. "August, the eighth month of the year, named after the Roman Emperor Augustus, because it had been a lucky month for him. It can be a lucky month for many because it is another month for vacations. Some will travel to far away places by air, boat, train and cars, or some may walk to a nearby spot. All can stop, look, listen, to the wonders of nature and enjoy all the beautiful things around them. Many times during such days we learn to live with ourselves, and others, realizing one cannot live to themselves—that we depend on others. In these days new friendships are formed:

"Friendship is a mighty ship
That weathers many gales,
And leaves a blessing to the world in every place it sails.

"Friendship is a blessed ship
That's full of peace and love,
And carries sunshine everywhere
From God's own blessed above."

—Walter E. Iesenhour.

Farrell Williamson was awakened the other night by wife, Billie. Billie reported in a sleepy but terrified voice that there was a snake in the house. It seems that Billie had had some difficulty in getting the baby asleep and it was about 11 o'clock. Billie was in the kitchen when she suddenly saw a snake and ran for Farrell. When Farrell got to the kitchen the snake had vanished, but a thorough search revealed the reptile under a cabinet in the dining room. Farrell reported that it probably was a rat snake about two feet long. Needless to say Farrell was about the next day scouting nails, hammer and other materials used in plugging holes. Farrell said that he was going to nail up everything in the place including the doors and windows.

Little Leaguers Get Sixth Win

Clanton's Little League baseball team has now stretched their winning streak to six following the drubbing they inflicted on the Little League team of Calera last Wednesday afternoon.

Spearheading the attacked last Wednesday was Tommy and Jimmy Tiffin, Johnny Cathey and Buddy Vines wit htwo hits each which went a long way in defeating the home club by a score of 17 to 3. Culpepper and Carroll each got one hit.

Billy Estes helped the Calera ball club down during the first four innings and was relieved in the fifth by Johnny Cathey. As a result of another win the whole team was treated once again to a watermelon cutting by Bob Windham, owner of the City Grill. Each time the team wins a game they are given a treat by Windham.

So far this season the Clanton Little Leaguers have lost only their two games, one against Childersburg by a score of 4 to 2. This, however, was avenged later when the local club came back to beat Childersburg by a score of 11 to 1 last Monday. The only other defeat was against Montevallo when the locals was again beaten 3 to 1, but the local club will have another chance against the Montevallo ball team.

Mr. Louie Smith, city councilman in charge of the city park, has announced that the City Council last Tuesday voted to furnish the lights for the Little Leaguers for their remaining night games this season.

The Clanton Little Leaguers will play a return game against Calera here in the Clanton baseball park at 7:30 Friday night.

MAYOR ORDERS SAWDUST PILE REMOVAL

In a letter this week to J. E. Robinson of Havana, Ga., owner of the Cooper Lumber Co., in the rear of the Willingham Hotel, Mayor C. Fenn Jones requested that the sawdust pile located on the sight be removed.

Mayor Jones wrote the lumber yard owner that the sawdust pile had been for the past 30 years an annoyance and an expense to the City of Clanton. Last Tuesday alone, said the Mayor, the city fire department had been called out twice to extinguish a blaze in the sawdust pile and that these two calls alone had cost the city over a hundred dollars.

CITY BUYS POLICE CAR

Mayor C. Fenn Jones announced that at last Tuesday night's meeting of the City Council of Clanton, that the council had accepted the bid of Troy Maddox Motors to furnish a new police car for the Clanton Police Department.

Mayor Jones stated that the city had purchased on low bid a new Dodge Coupe to be used as a city police car and that it would be delivered as soon as possible. Troy Maddox Motors will accept the old police car in trade.

County Merchants Show Wonderful Support Of Fair

Library Gains In Popularity

Although it got off to a slow start activity at the Chilton County Library has picked up considerably of late and the prospects are now that the institution will prove a popular place especially after school gets started.

This has been born out by Mrs. Vernon Payne, President of the local chapter of the American Association of University Women, sponsoring organization of the local library.

Many more folks of the county have visited the library and some books have already been lent out to readers. Most of the visitors have come seeking information and many others have come to the library, which is located in the Chilton County News building, on days that the library is not functioning.

Mrs. Payne also pointed out many facts about Alabama Libraries which are little known to the general public. For instance over 67% of Alabama's people live where there is free public library service. Thirty-two percent of Alabama's people live where there is no free public library service.

There are 28 counties in the State giving county-wide library service. However, there are 16 counties that do not have a single free public library within their borders.

Mrs. Payne points out that the free library is one agency in the community to which all of the people, both young and old, can turn for information on all subjects, for pleasure and profit. It is the people's university. Its services should be available to all of the people of Alabama.

The Chilton County Library is open each Saturday afternoon until 5 o'clock and it is manned by experts who will assist anyone in Chilton County in selecting any kind of book, whether it be a story book or a book of reference. Everyone is urged to take advantage of this free service.

FEWER WORK APPLICATIONS IN JULY

Montgomery, Ala. — "New applications for work were off about 1,000 from the June figure," Joe L. Coleman, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, said tday. "This was due primarily to fewer students and other seasonal workers entering the labor market," he added.

Chilton County merchants are to be highly complimented for the fine support they have shown thus far in their boosting of the Chilton County Fair scheduled to get underway Tuesday, August 25th, at the Clanton Airport.

According to Wallace (Shorty) Headley, General Chairman, and M. R. (Red) Glasscock, County Agent, have reported nearly every available space at the Fair has been rented for the big opening of the exposition, which this year will run four days and nights.

Not only will this year's Fair be one of the biggest in the history of the county, but it will run more days than it has in the recent past.

And not only will this year's Fair feature all of the usual events that fairs contain, such as cattle and hog shows and exhibits, sheep and many commercial exhibits, it will also feature a good many features of entertainment such as rides of all kinds for the young and old alike and hundreds of games. At the same time there will be many lucky winners of many different prizes. Many of the commercial exhibitors are making plans for the giving away of merchandise of all kinds either by means of door prizes or in some other manner.

Although there are nearly 50 spaces in the huge airport hangar that will be available to merchants and their displays, it was pointed out yesterday that about one more day of work would just about close out the selling of this space. Glasscock and Headley planned to continue their soliciting yesterday afternon and today.

Foxhunters Will Hold Field Trials Monday, Aug. 17

When the Chilton County Foxhunters field trial gets underway here next Monday, hunters will be awarded several hundred dollars worth of merchandise and cash. That's not figuring all the trophies.

Mr. "Chick" Wade of the Clanton Jewelry Company presented the Association a beautiful Combination Derby Challenge Trophy last year. It will be at stake again this year. Mr. Jimmie Bell of Bell Hardware this year has put up a Combination All-Age Challenge Trophy. There are for bench and field combination score. On top of the above two, the Clanton Chamber of Commerce has awarded a beautiful trophy for best hound-in-the-show. The Foxhunters Association will give ten trophies for field winners, to be kept permanently. There are ten by the Association are for Field winning only. And the good merchants have contributed hundreds of dollars in merchandise and cash as various prizes, ranging from thimbles to free meals and haircuts and dog feed.

Registrations will get underway at the Willingham Hotel at noon Monday, August 17th, lasting 'til midnight.

There will be a barbecue at the Clanton Airport beginning at 5:00 Monday. At 7:30, also at the airport, the annual bench show will be held. President Porch, Verbena, urges all hunters to bring their hounds and show them in order to make them eligible for one of the Combination Trophies. There will be a puppy show too for the little fellows.

Running will commence Tuesday a.m. at the Buddy Ellison Place east of Cooper near Old Dixie Camp. Derby hounds (under 2) will be run two consecutive mornings with the all-age running three. Casts will be made each morning at daybreak. Judges will be on horseback.

President Porch also wishes to state that it's not always the best hound in your pack that wins field trials but sometimes the least expected. So, bring those hounds on out and run them with the very good as well as the very bad.

HELEN PARRISH RECEIVES APPOINTMENT

Lewis W. Headley and Miss Helen Parrish have been appointed by the County Board of Revenue and Control as Civil Defense Directors of Chilton County.

Although Headley was appointed some time ago by the Board, Miss Parrish was appointed only last Monday at the regular meeting of the Board. Headley takes the place of James Carl Martin, who has moved out of the county.

As a result of the appointment of Miss Parrish, Judge Tingle said that she will attend a meeting of Coordinators of Women's Activities of Civil Defense early in September at Montevallo.

Joint Board Meeting ---

Chilton County's Hospital Believed Nearer To Reality

Following a joint meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Probate Office between the Chilton County Hospital Board, the Board of Revenue and Control and the Honorable Armistead I. Selden, Jr., the Judge of Probate's office Thursday noon issued a statement to the effect that it is felt that the Alabama State Hospital Board will make a decision before the end of August whether or not Chilton County will participate in Hill-Burton money for the proposed Chilton County Hospital.

With the expectation that the State Hospital Board will meet within a week or ten days, the meeting was called by Probate Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle and F. Leo Thompson, Chairman of the local hospital board and Rep. Selden was also invited to map any plans necessary in an effort to see to it that Chilton County's proposed hospital was not forgotten when the state board does meet.

As has been pointed out in recent weeks Congress allotted 65 million dollars for Hill-Burton Funds. Of this sum Alabama is slated to have a cut of over two million dollars to assist communities in building up-to-date hospital facilities.

Many months ago plans were made for the proposed new hospital for Chilton County. And as a result last Wednesday's meeting produced the feeling that Chilton County stood as good a chance as any other community in being favored with Hill-Burton monies. This thought was arrived at since Chilton County has all their plans formulated, including money in the bank for the county's share of the cost burden as well as having their hospital sight purchased and selected by officials of the State. It was also pointed out that all necessary facilities have also been made available to the proposed sight. It is felt that all of this advanced planning will hold the county in good stead with the State Board of Health when they do meet to pass on where the money will be allotted.

Many months of careful planning and hard work have already gone into the proposed new hospital by Thompson and his county hospital board. At the same time it was pointed out that Judge Tingle and his staff have worked tireless hours in attempting to bring the proposed project up to an "A" priority.

And now, according to the Probate's Office "the chances for the project being approved are better now than they have ever been." The statement also went on to say that, "this, however, will not alter our course in any way. We shall keep right on working as hard as we can to get this project approved."

At the same meeting, which was presided over by Bob Fullen, acting in the place of Judge Tingle who is out of town on a short vacation, the two boards also passed a resolution in appreciation for all of the hard work and time that has been put into the hospital effort by Rep. Selden. The joint boards thanked Selden for his fine cooperation in the matter.

Following the meeting Rep. Selden was the guest of the Clanton Kiwanis Club at a Ladies' Night meeting conducted on the Coosa River.

Ginning Season Gets Under Way

The cotton ginning season is just about to break out all over Chilton County what with several of the local gins already reporting that they have run through their first bale of cotton.

And now comes another similiar announcement from Hugh Thompson and Raymond P. Mims. They have informed the Chilton County News that they also have ginned their first bale. Who'll be next?

Tingle Receives Letter Of Praise

It's not often that a public official ever gets a word of praise and if he does it usually comes to him second handed.

However, one day last week, Probate Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle received a nice surpise in his mail. It was a letter from Mrs. E. R. Kaiser of Fairfield, Ala., and was addressed to the "Chilton County Road Commissioner." Mrs. Kaiser had some land on Lake Mitchell and she wrote in part; "After getting off the main road last week we were pleasantly surprised to see a road machine had been down the Cove Branch Road and had gone all the way down to the lot next door.

"We really appreciate this service as the road was in very bad condition.

"Trolling this last week end we caught two nice 'stripes.' We're sorta amateurs at this fish catching —but it is really a thrill. Then too I think we have some of the prettiest scenery along the lake that can be found anywhere.

"After awhile the roads will pack down to a hard roadbed and then the rains won't do so much damage. Anyway, thanks so much for the wonderful service we have received. "We're really proud of our little span of ground in Chilton County."

Said Judge Tingle: "Letters like these make you want to do still more for our people. Letters like these make you feel that all the hard work is really being appreciated.

Chilton County's Road Building Program Progresses

During the first nine months of the fiscal year ending August 1, 1953, Chilton County has spent nearly $350,000 on road improvement on it's road system throughout the county.

This announcement was made this week by the Probate's office following last Monday's regular meeting of the County Board of Revenue and Control with the exact figure being $340,821.93. At the same time it was also announced that the county now has over $200,000 in unencumbered money as compared with last at this same period of only $150,000. Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle said that he thought that by the end of the fiscal year, October 1, 1953, the county would probably be another $50,000 better off.

Here is the way the money spent so far is broken down by the Probates office. From the gasoline fund, $191,319.10; road and bridge fund, $45,618.04; and from the paving fund, $103,884.79.

In making these figures public, Judge Tingle said:

"I would like to take this opportunity to report to the people of Chilton County the progress that is being made in the county at the present time.

County Road Paving Projects Under Construction—

1. Clanton-Kincheon Road, approximately 5 miles.
2. Alabama Highway No. 22 to Sardis Church, approximately 5 miles.
3. Thorsby, with spurs North, South and West, over 5 miles.
4. Maplesville to Bibb County Line. Bid awarded to contractor on August 7, 1953.
6. Jemison-Mars Hill Road is now paved.

State Road Paving Projects Under Construction—

1. U. S. Highway No. 31 from Mountain Creek to Cooper, four-lane.
2. Clover-leaf underpass of U. S. Highway No. 82 under Alabama Highway No. 22 near Maplesville.
3. Bridge across Waxahatchee Creek to Columbiana (Bid not awarded as yet.)

"The County Road Department plans to clear, widen and re-gravel 150 miles of dirt roads this year. Over 70 miles of this goal is now completed. Of this 70 miles, over 50 miles are in the Mountain Creek, Billingsley, and west of Jemison near Montevallo areas. While doing all this, the road department is still maintaining the other unsurfaced roads in the county.

"The Chilton County Road Department has recently moved the county creosote plant to the airport and city water and natural gas mains have been extended to the airport. The county plans to creosote bridge timber and piling. By doing this the length of usefulness of bridges will be extended several years.

"The Board of Revenue and Control and County Engineer and myself are cooperating with our schools and churches throughout the county. Several church yards, grounds, drives and cemeterys have been graded and cleaned. We have many such other requests that we are trying to fulfill in the near future. We have been working with our County Superintendent of Education and school principals throughout the county. By moving the creosote plant to the county airport it enabled the Chilton County High School to enlarge its football field and have a place for school buses to be parked during summer months. The county road department did the grading for the large new football field at Isabella High School. I know that the people of that community are proud of this community improvement.

"I have contacted the State Highway Department regarding this much-needed bridge and I have been informed that this bridge will have to be put on the primary road system before the state can secure federal funds to construct the bridge. Since talking to the Highway Director, I have made a number of trips to Montgomery regarding this bridge and it is my honest opinion that a bridge will be constructed over Coosa River in the near future. I have read articles in the newspapers regarding this bridge and I am in full accord with them. The old ferry is a disgrace to the entire State of Alabama.

"Since February I have made a number of trips to Montgomery and have written many letters in regard to the sorely needed Chilton County Hospital. Mr. F. Leo Thompson, Chairman of the Chilton County Hospital Board, has been very active in working to get our hospital. Mr. Clay H. Dean, Director of the State Hospital Planning Board, assured me that if Congress appropriated $60,000,000.00 or more that Chilton County would definitely be in line for a hospital this fall. Congress has made their appropriation of $65,000,000.00 and the State of Alabama's share is approximately $2,350,000.00. The latest report that I have received from Montgomery is that an appropriation for our hospital is being considered. We should get our hospital under construction starting this fall if the State Hospital Planning Board will approve the appropriation for Chilton County.

"The latest information received from Pearson, Tittle & Narrows, Architects, of Montgomery, is that they are working on the detail working plans for the new courthouse and health clinic. We are hoping construction on this new building can commence some time this fall.

"I appreciate the cooperation that everyone has given me. I know that the people placed their confidence in me and I want to do everything in my power for the betterment of Chilton County. To you, the people of Chilton County, I want your continued support and by working together we can get many things accomplished for Chilton County.

Thanking You,
JUDGE DAVE TINGLE.

During DeSoto's march down the Coosa River into Alabama, he and his men camped near the present town of Tallassee, in Elmore County. Later he received an invitation to visit Tuscaloosa, the powerful Indian Chief, whose capital was Mauvilla or Maubila. The exact location of this Indian town has not been determined but some historians claim that it was on the plain between the Warrior and Tombigbee Rivers not far from the present town of Demopolis. Others say that Maubila was located between the Tombigbee and Alabama Rivers.

SOCIALIST PSALM

The Government is my Shepherd,
I need not work.
It alloweth me to lie down on good jobs,
It leadeth me beside the still factories,
It destroyeth my initiative,
It leadeth me in the paths of the parasite for politics' sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of laziness and deficit spending.
I will fear no evil,
For the Government is with me,
Its doles and its vote getters,
They comfort me.
It prepareth an economical Utopia for me by appropriating the earnings of my grandchildren,
It filleth my head with blunders,
My inefficiency runneth over.
Surely the Government shall care for me all the days of my life,
And I shall dwell in a Fool's Paradise forever.

A COLLISION INDICATOR

A device has been patented which would mark the scene of a collision and identify the vehicles involved, even though one or both of the vehicles fled the scene of the accident. The device is a glass container, filled with either paint or dye.

The paint-filled container will remain unshattered under normal impact, but a major collision will shatter the vessel and the paint, or dye, will spill on the highway. This would mark the spot of the accident.

Because the indicators would be broken, the automobiles involved would be more easily identified than heretofore, since they might be identified by the paint or dye, as well as damage. But perhaps the most valuable function this device could perform would be the marking of the exact position of the two cars at the time of impact.

Whereas now there are arguments about tire tracks and various other indications where a collision occurred, the paint or dye splotch would constitute indisputable evidence as to which way each car was going, where they collided and the position of each. Sounds good, anyhow.

Chilton County Farmers Are Eligible For Livestock Loans

Montgomery, Ala. — Emergency livestock loans authorized by recent national legislation are now available to eligible Alabama farmers.

This announcement was made today by Julian Brown of Montgomery, chairman of the state's livestock emergency loan committee. The committee met here last week end to get the loan program underway.

Brown, who is state director of the Farmers Home Administration, said county FHA offices will have loan instructions and application forms late this week. County agents are being sent full information so they can cooperate closely with FHA in the program.

Brown explained that Secretary of Agriculture Benson has designated FHA as the agency to handle applications in the county and to prepare and submit the loan dockets to the state committee.

The loans will be made to established producers and feeders of cattle and sheep and to dairymen. To be eligible, a farmer must have a good record of operations, have a reasonable chance to succeed, and be unable to obtain needed credit from other sources to continue normal operations. Such loans will not be made to carry on commercial feed lot operations, to refinance existing debts except for payment of current incidental bills, or to enable a borrower to start livestock operations.

Brown said the special livestock loans will bear five per cent interest and may be made for periods up to three years. Borrowers will be expected to repay the loans as rapidly as they can. Each loan must be secured in the full amount by the personal obligation and available security of the borrower. The Government will not require present creditors to subordinate their liens, but borrowers will be expected to obtain standby agreements from their present creditors so they will have a chance to work out their difficulties. Also, present creditors must be willing for a portion of the borrower's livestock income to be paid on the Government loan.

Serving with Brown on the livestock emergency loan committee are James H. Jones of Centre, vice-chairman of the committee and chairman of the Alabama State Production and Marketing Administration, and P. O. Davis of Auburn, director of the API Extension Service.

Vocational Rehabilitation is a public service for people who have physical or mental handicaps that keep them from working. Its purpose is to prepare them for the right job and to help them find employment. Specific services are available to handicapped people of working age. Services provided may include all or part of the following: Physical and psychological examinations, counseling, medical and surgical treatment, hospitalization, artificial limbs, training, training supplies, room and board while training, placement equipment, placement on the job and followup.

Services are rendered when it is found that a person has a permament physical or mental disability that prevents him from getting and holding a job. Examinations, counseling, training, placement and followup on the job are provided without cost to the individual. Costs of all other needed services may be paid from Rehabilitation funds if the disabled person is not able to pay for them.

In order to serve handicapped people in all parts of the State, professional staffs are located in eleven district offices in cooperation with local boards of education. Rehabilitation counselors, school superintendents, high school principals and teachers work together in serving upper-age children in public schools. Local workers in Public Health, Public Welfare and Employment Service work with Rehabilitation personnel in serving the handicapped.

The Rehabilitation Program renders service to about 6,500 disabled people each year. Services are completed and suitable jobs are found for about 1,800 of this number. The Service knows about 9,000 disabled people in the State. A greatly expanded program is required to rehabilitate the 3,000 handicapped persons now awaiting services.

SOIL-CEMENT—today's biggest value for light-traffic streets

SOIL-CEMENT makes taxpayers' dollars go farther because about 85 per cent of the required material is usually native soil on the site. It's easy to transform high-maintenance cost streets into strong, durable pavement good for years of all-weather service with soil-cement.

Soil-cement's superior value and durability for light-traffic streets are fully established. Thousands of miles of soil-cement paving are now in service in the U. S.

(By William Crowe)

LET CREATION SPEAK

"He hath made everything beautiful in His time." — Ecclesiastes 3:11.

"Go, stand at midnight under the starry sky, and say if you can that there is no God." So spoke Daniel Webster in one of his unrivaled orations. "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament (earth) showeth his handiwork." "When I survey the heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast ordained, what is man that thou art mindful of him." So sang an ancient Hebrew poet.

When a candidate for the Gospel ministry appears before the church court for ordination, he is usually asked, "What proof of the existence of a personal God can you offer, in addition to the Bible revelation?" The unanswerable reply to that question is, "We can see the hand of God in nature." Maltbie D. Blacock, an eminent Baltimore preacher and pastor, gave to the church an undying hymn, the first verse of which is:

"This is my Father's world;
I rest me in the thought
Of rocks and trees, of skies and seas;
His hand the wonders wrought."

Creation speaks to us of unity in variety. When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy, we can easily imagine that the one penetrating note that ran through the song was the note expressing the harmony of the numberless elements that entered into the composition of the universe, every one of which acts in absolute concord with every other.

God's glory is expressed by unity in diversity. Encircle the earth if you will in a non-stop jet plane flight, and behold a revolving scene of surpassing loveliness. Above you a wide stretching sky while beneath are mountains, and sea, and grassland, and verdant forest, and pebble-strewn beaches. What variety! Upon closer examination it is discovered that the variety is infinitely multiplied. Everything blends into everything else. Nothing is out of place. Every item in creation contributes to finished harmony and beauty.

In his beneficent purpose God has appointed each believer to be a coworker with Him in creating and promoting an added beauty to his completed natural world, the beauty of a new creation — a purified humanity. The only thing in all the universe that is offensive to the Creator is immorality, the fruit of impure hearts. He commissions all loyal Christians to aid Him in cleansing those Augean Stables, from which defiling, lethal, miasmas have issued for so long. If we respond to his expressed desire, we ourselves will gain a deeper appreciation of all that is true and beautiful and good.

One day, soon after the close of the Mexican War, an American soldier was riding through a narrow, filthy, cobble-stoned street of a Mexican village. Everything was repulsive to him until he reached the bottom of the street, where he saw an old, wrinkled, woman placing a broken flower pot containing a single geranium with one blossom, on the front door-step of her adobe hut. As the soldier paused for a moment the poor old soul looked up, and with a smile breaking out on her furrowed face, said, "Senor, isn't this a beautiful world?"

Pointers Given On Defoliating Your Cotton

What is cotton defoliation? What is the purpose of cotton defoliation? In answer to these questions the Chilton County News has called on the County Agent's office of Chilton County.

Mr. M. R. Glasscock, county agent, explains that cotton defoliation is simply a freeing of the leaf from the plant. In nature it is brought about by draught, disease, plant food deficiency or light frost. It can be induced by application of chemicals in dusts or sprays, explains the county agent.

Defoliation is practically a must to successfully operate mechanical pickers. In the case of heavy foliage and heavy moisture, defoliation will decrease boll rot. Defoliated cotton will aid hand picking and cotton can be harvested earlier, stalks destroyed earlier, and weather damage and insect populations are reduced.

Glasscock explains that there are a number of defoliating materials that have proven satisfactory. Generally speaking, the dusts are more practical in this area. Dust defoliants can be applied with insect dust guns.

Cotton growers that have developed large, heavy-foliaged plants, and a large set of bottom bolls should carefully consider defoliating cotton this year.

Before using any defoliant, study instructions carefully. Certain defoliants can damage other crops and farm equipment. Defoliants can also be dangerous to animals and to humans.

Defoliating cotton is a new practice in Chilton County. If a grower elects to try an acreage this harvest season it is suggested that materials be arranged for at an early date. Your dealer may need to order your supplies.

National Cotton Council Tries To Increase Sale Of Cotton

Gains for cotton in apparel and household uses resulting from research and promotion are offsetting recent heavy losses sustained in industrial uses. Research and promotion are now being applied in Europe to rebuild cotton's foreign markets as well.

Lack of adequate research, trade sources say, has caused the losses in the tire cord market. However, despite the fact that cotton has list over half a million bales in tire cord and bags, domestic consumption is now running at an annual rate of 9.4 million bales; 2½ million bales more than the average of any five-year period prior to 1940.

Improved qualities and heavy promotion of cotton products have been important factors accounting for cotton leaving its rival, rayon, far behind in many household and apparel uses. In fact, leading rayon yarn producers have recently set up their own promotional organization—Rayon Information Center—to do the same kind of job for rayon that the National Cotton Council has done for cotton. The Center has an initial budget of $750,000 set up for this purpose.

The National Cotton Council, which is made up of the raw cotton interests, is not letting up in its programs of research, promotion and production efficiency, however. The industry is now in the midst of a drive for expanded farm research as well as research to improve the quality of the finished product. It is also pushing forward with the hardest hitting sales promotion effort in the history of the industry.

To recapture a dwindling foreign market, the cotton industry has sent top flight men to Europe to help initiate promotion and research programs. These programs will be patterned after those that have proved so successful in this country.

The director of the Council's sales promotion division met with textile representatives of the French, English, West German and Belgium to discuss sales promotion plans for increasing consumption of cotton in Europe.

In another series of conferences, the director of the Council's foreign trade division and a team of cotton scientists told how improved qualities of American cotton could best be utilized by European mills and described new techniques being used in America to improve quality.

The National Cotton Council is financed and governed by the six branches of the cotton industry—producer, ginner, crusher, warehousemen, merchant and spinner. Its policies and programs are decided upon by a delegate body selected by the respective farm and cotton organizations in each state. The programs of the Council are all aimed at increasing the consumption of American cotton and cottonseed through research, promotion, production efficiency and by earning the goodwill of the general public.

My PET PEEVE
By W. Scott Boyd

NOW that it is election time. It is almost dangerous to get out upon the street.

I was strolling along the other day when a candidate got me cornered.

"Old buddy," says he, pounding me on the back and shaking my hand until my arm almost dropped off, "I hope you and your family are supporting me in my race."

"Well," says I, "That depends upon how you stand on the playground issue."

"I'm for it," says he. "Yes, sir, we're going to build a fine park, a public golf course, tennis courts, a swimming pool, an auditorium that will seat 5,000 people, a gymnasium, and outdoor fireplaces for picnics."

As the conversation continued we were joined by another candidate. A few more private citizens joined the circle. Thirteen more candidates walked up. My corner was getting extremely small.

"This," says I to myself, "is getting out of hand."

Then, with an innocence that I did not feel, I says, "It all sounds like socialism to me."

The roar that followed shook the street lights to their very foundation. Fifteen candidates and the same number of voters let loose a barrage of arguments. I ducked and retreated to my office. From the window I watched the crowd increase and the arguments become hotter. As I expected a punch was landed, and the riot was on.

The final result: Eight candidates paid fines for disorderly conduct, seven apologized to the court for ill temper and bad judgment, and the voters went home happy and pleased with the entire performance.

Democracy in action is wonderfull.

Bloody June Claims 54 In State

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama highways claimed only 54 victims during June of this year, compared to 80 fatalities during the corresponding month last year.

But the accident rate climbed during the month despite the drop in deaths. In its monthly report, the Highway Patrol lists 735 mishaps investigated this June compared to only 651 in "Bloody June" last year.

aPtrol officials attribute the fewer deaths to lower highway speeds now than a year ago. Accidents are less severe, they explained. The report warned that delayed deaths may boost the June score. An accident death is charged back to the month in which it happened if the victim dies within a year.

FRESHEN shredded coconut by soaking in fresh milk to which a bit of sugar is added before using the coconut.

Excessive salt in your soup? Drop some slices of raw potato into the soup for five or six minutes, then remove.

If you're poaching eggs and want to keep the whites from spreading, add a teaspoonful of vinegar to the water used for poaching. An egg poacher is also a good investment if you like the eggs to be in small cups.

When you are heating sweet milk for a recipe and want to keep it from curdling, add a pinch of soda to the milk while heating.

Brown sugar may be added to gravy which is too salty. It does not sweeten the gravy nor does it spoil the flavor.

Brush molds for gelatin salads and desserts with salad oil before adding the mixture to them. This makes melting or heating the molds after chilling unnecessary and helps remove the mold easily.

Keep pecan meats whole by pouring boiling water over unshelled pecans and let stand for 30 minutes before cracking. Meat can then be removed from the shells, keeping them practically whole.

But under the leadership of the LeMoyne brothers, Iberville and Bienville, friendly relations were established with the Indians of the coast country as well as the interior.

Orphan Children And Old Folks Enjoying Pleasant Summer At Masonic Home

Montgomery, Ala. — Orphan children and elderly persons, guests of the Alabama Masonic Home, on Route 4, Montgomery, are enjoying a pleasant Summer. The spacious buildings and grounds and a 276-acre farm provide an ideal setting for both young and old.

In order to provide permanent maintenance for the Alabama Masonic Home and care for the wards of Masonry, orphans, elder brethren and widows, throughout the years to come, all Master Masons in this State are being called upon by Grand Master Jos. S. Southall and other leaders in the craft to contribute to the Million Dollar Endowment Fund now being raised for support of the Alabama Masonic Home.

Every effort is being made to keep the children healthy, happy and contented at this unusual Masonic haven, as can be seen from two illustrations accompanying this article. The top picture shows the young guests boarding a modern bus for transportation to school. Note how neat they are attired. They walk into their class rooms confident and self assured. Masonic Home officials love these kids and watch over them through High School and in many instances through College

The lower illustration shows the younger guests having a happy time on the merry-go-round located on the spacious grounds near the Administration building. Other guests, from childhood to 94 years have also found happiness, security and unselfish care at the Home which asks all of the 70,000 Master Masons in Alabama to contribute to the Home's Million Dollar Endowment Fund

The number of automobiles in the United States has increased 15 million in the last 15 years.

Mr. H. K. Latham of Marion Junction, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Latham of Lawley, is a dairyman and cattleman, but he figures that the flock of sheep that he is running as a sideline brings him more profit per dollar invested than any of his other farming operations. Kay, as most folks call him, has been making money out of his sheep for the past 16 years. He advises anyone who is planning on adding sheep, "If you don't like to fool with them, don't add a flock and expect to make any money out of it. The biggest portion of the profit that a farmer makes from his sheep depends directly on the management program and if you don't plan to tend them properly you'd better leave them off." Kay's experience dates back to his childhood. He plans to make some improvements in his flock of sheep through a cross breeding experiment with Suffolks and Hampshires. He stated as he looked over a flock of 350 ewes, "Now there is something that will turn over your money quicker than anything else that a farmer can have." Latham has shown the grand champion sheep in the state for two consecutive years at Montgomery. Kay predicts that sheep are on their way into this section in a big way and a farmer who will tend his flock right can make some easy profits with a relatively small investment. Mr. H. K. Latham is also the Treasurer of the Alabama Sheep Growers Association.

A Little Headwork Saves a Lot of Footwork

"I don't ever aim to give up fishing," Pappy Hayes said one day—"but the older I get the less I like hiking over to Pike's Creek. Guess I'll have to bring the fish nearer to me."

So Pappy got his nephew to bulldoze down about three acres of bottom land. Then he dammed up the little stream there.

He wrote the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, in Washington, and got some "blue gills" and bass to stock it—free. Pappy's idea wound up giving him (and us) just about the best fishing pond in the county . . . right in his own back yard.

From where I sit, Pappy may be older than some of us but his mind is active—and open. He's ready to listen to anybody with an idea. That's why he and I can talk on any subject—sometimes about his preference for buttermilk and mine for beer. And though we disagree, we respect each other's opinion. That's neighborliness without a "catch" to it.

CONGRESSIONAL

Q—What region, as represented in Congress, has supported President Eisenhower most strongly?

A—According to a Congressional Quarterly analysis of roll-call votes through June 25, Eastern Senators and Representatives have most consistently stood "with" the President in votes on issues clearly related to his program and leadership. Mr Eisenhower's steadiest opposition on major "test votes" has come from Southerner in Congress.

Q—Has Congress rejected any of President Eisenhower's specific proposals?

A—By the end of the first six months of the year, just one had been rejected. (Others had not yet received final Congressional action.) In his State of the Union message Feb. 2, Mr. Eisenhower requested a Congressional resolution nullifying commitments "in secret understandings of the past with foreign governments which permit enslavement." Consideration of the resolution became ensnared in a dispute over wording—Democrats opposing possible interpretations that Congress would be criticizing foreign policy under the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations—and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee tabled it March 10.

Q—How was the power of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff increased by the Defense Department reorganization, which became effective June 30?

A—The Chairman, under the new plan, is responsible for managing the Joint Staff, a group of officers upon which the JCS depends for preliminary studies and recommendations. Under the old set-up, the four-man JCS was collectively responsible for the Joint Staff.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

There was a regular routine for the Green Corn ceremonies, and this routine never varied. Each day had its regular duties, beginning with making a fire in the yard of the town square, drinking a certain physic, disposing of the old bedding and clothes, and ending with a plunge for a bath in the river or creek on which the town was located.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

We're glad that the good people of Chilton County are going to have a "County Fair" this year. One week from today the young and old will trek to the airport to eat cotton candy, ride the ferris wheel, the merry-go-round, and do and see all the things that go to make a "County Fair" a thing to remember always.

To the very young it will be something new. Something wonderful and something to remember when they are old. To the old it will be all these things too. Because it will bring back memories of "County Fairs" that have gone before. Fairs held here when they were young, when fun and good times were important, and not secondary to our existence.

We're glad Chilton County will get to display her wares at a "County Fair" again this year. She will get a chance to show the world what she is doing in the way of improvement in farm life, home life, agriculture, and many other fields. Come and be with us at Chilton County Fair this year — you'll go away glad you came.

The neighbor's little girl was crying because her new shoes hurt her feet. Her mother told her: "No wonder, you have them on the wrong feet." The little girl said: "But mother, I haven't any other feet."

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Klinner of the O. P. Klinner Furniture Company left Sunday for a week's tour of Florida. They will see most of the interesting sights before they turn homewards.

Speaking of trip-takers reminds us that Frank and Marzelle Scott left last week for Philadelphia. They were to meet their son, John Ed Scott, of the United States Navy there. They made the trip by air, but will return in John Ed's automobile doing a bit of visiting around while they are away.

That Thursday Afternoon Bridge Club is also in Florida this week. They are at Dr. W. C. and Grace Golden's summer cottage at Sunnyside Beach. That same group spent a week each summer at Sunnyside for several years, but this is the first group-vacation they have taken for some time. Hope they are having the time of their young lives.

Horsley White around at the Circuit Clerk's office is going to lose a very capable secretary and also a very sweet little girl when Margaret Jo Williamson weds Donald E. Watson on September 2nd. They will be married here at the First Methodist Church.

A farmer who had spent his life in the country, retired and moved to the city. On the first morning in their new home, his wife said: "Well, Pa, it's about time you started the fire."

"Not me!" he replied, nestling down deeper in bed. "We might as well start right now getting used to all the city conveniences. Call the fire department!"

Old Cleveland Driver got his name in the paper the other day. He also got his picture and a long write-up about his giving blood to the Jefferson County Blood Bank. He is vice-president of the CIO Council and to show his sincerity when the Council asked all of its 40,000 members to give their blood Cleveland was the first to go down to the Red Cross Headquarters at Fifth Avenue and 20th Street and roll up his sleeve. He is a veteran of four years service in World War II and knows what it means to need blood in an emergency.

We have the deepest sympathy for Mrs. Clarence McCullers. Mrs. McCullers is the sister of O. N. Esco and has just received this telegram from the War Department: ". . . it is believed that your son, Charles, died in a prisoner of war camp. . . ." Can you realize what Mrs. McCullers is going through? She isn't sure of the fate of her son. The War Department isn't absolutely sure of his fate. Only God knows what has happened to Charles McCullers who was last heard from in a prisoner-of-war camp in Red China. We can only hope that good news will soon come.

They recently announced that the army has now perfected a guided missile which is ready for use in battle. This probably means that our friends up in Huntsville had better start preparing themselves for a congressional investigation of an alleged guided missile shortage.

Everyone Can Eat At Coming County Fair

The Home Demonstration Clubs, 4-H and FHA Clubs and possibly others are planning to see that no one goes hungry at the County Fair beginning next Tuesday.

Food concessions including hot dogs, cold drinks, and all types of refreshments are in the process of being prepared for County Fair Week. Food concessions are to be erected under the huge hangar in the educational booth area. In addition to these the Lee Amusement Company will be in the peanut, popcorn, cotton candy, candied apple, etc., business along the midway in front of the huge hangar.

Ed Mullins Is Twice Winner Of Free Vacation

Ed Mullins, owner of the Mullins Supply Store has for the second consecutive year won a free trip and vacation from the Mathews Electric Company, Birmingham, for being the outstanding dealer in this section.

The Mullins Supply Store was awarded a free, all-expense paid trip to Nassau and will leave Birmingham on August 31 for Miami where he will board the SS Nuevo Dominicano for the remainder of the voyage. Fifty other G-E dealers were also competing in the same group with the Mullias Supply Store.

Work Applications Below 1952 Level

For the first time this year, active work applications on file at local Employment Service offices as the GMC "Blow Your Horn" campaign, Woodhouse disclosed.

"We're doing everything possible to show them how much we like a winner, and we hope they like it," Woodhouse said. "Everything including their transportation is on the house!"

The program to honor the top GMC dealers started off Sunday evening, August 16th, with a reception and buffet supper at Detroit's Hotel Statler. GMC Truck executives from the factory in Pontiac turned out to greet the winners and congratulate them upon their top performances.

Fewer non-farm job openings were received and fewer non-farm job placements were made than during the preceding month or the same month of last year. Construction suffered the largest placement decrease. This was mainly due to the outdoor work hindrance of rainy weather.

The manufacturing picture revealed sizeable gains in primary metals and apparel placements. These gains, however, were offset by losses in the food, lumber, and transportation equipment industries. Job placements in trade and service establishments showed the usual seasonal downturn, while government placements more than doubled the June figure.

That's the employment story. Let's take a look at facts and figures concerning unemployment in Alabama. According to Coleman, initial claims for unemployment insurance benefits rose 28.6 percent during July. All but five local employment offices reported increases in new claims. The largest increases were in Bessemer, Ensley, Birmingham, Anniston, Decatur, Russellville, and Gadsden. Vacation shutdowns, seasonal layoffs, and bad weather were contributing factors.

During July a total of $809,270 in unemployment insurance benefits was paid to 14,700 persons. This was nearly $667,000 less than was paid out in July, 1952, when the secondary effects of a major work stoppage were felt. The average unemployment insurance check was for $17.73—48 cents less than the June check. The decrease was attributed to exhaustion of benefits by higher paid workers and to the entry into the claims load of persons displaced from lower paid jobs.

Unemployment payments to coal miners dropped 1,400 over the month. The transportation equipment and primary metals industries made up the bulk of losses.

For the fourth consecutive month payments to construction workers decreased.

In the early days of Alabama the principal Indian tribes had different traditions as to their origin. The Choctaws claimed to have originated in the earth and made their exit through an opening in a mound on the road between St. Stephens, Ala., and Jackson, Miss. This mound they called "Naniwaiye," which meant "Home Hill." However, there was a general tradition that they had migrated from Mexico.

Maplesville Man Loses Arm To Passing Truck

Poor visibility caused by thick clouds of dense dust probably is the reason that Jim Latham, 26, Maplesville, is in the Selma Baptist Hospital today minus a portion of his left arm.

According to Highway Patrolmen Stein and Webb, Latham was driving on a dirt road between Maplesville and Randolph Saturday afternoon when his car was sideswiped by a truck operated by Jesse Lucas, 63, also of the Maplesville area.

In reconstructing the accident details, the two highway patrolmen stated that it was their belief that the visibility was so bad from the dust clouds that one or the other or both drivers were unable to see when the accident occurred.

Webb and Stein reported that the truck was following two other cars when it suddenly came in contact with the Latham vehible. The two officers said theyp believed Latham had his arm of the window resting on the door when the accident happened tearing his arm so badly that it was necessary to have it amputated near the elbow.

ARC Makes Plea For Greek Relief

The Chilton County Chapter of the American Red Cross has received a plea from the national chapter for assistance in helping the hundreds of thousands left homeless as a result of the recent Greek disasters.

This was made known yesterday after the local chapter had received an official message signed by the president of the American National Red Cross, E. Roland Harriman. The message was as follows:

"A series of earthquakes, followed by landslides and fires, have resulted in tragic disaster and misery for the Greek people. Because communications have been broken, the full extent of the toll is not known. However, latest confirmed reports received earlier, indicate one thousand killed, thousands injured and more than one hundred thousand left homeless. The Greek Government and the Greek Red Cross are engaged in rescue and relief operations. The Greek Ambassador has requested the American Red Cross to assume responsibility in the United States for collecting relief funds for the Greek Red Cross.

"The Greek Ambassador is requesting the cooperation of all agencies in this appeal and urging active support of appeal by Greek National organizations and societies in the United States.

"We believe the American people desire to express sympathy for the disaster victims and will desire to contribute to this relief fund!"

The local Red Cross is appealing to the people of Chilton County to take immediate steps toward assisting in this urgent need.

Last year 4,295,243 dairy cows were bred artificially throughout the nation—785,670 cows or 22.4 per cent more than in 1951; about 18 per cent of the country's dairy cows are now being bred artificially.

Mt. Creek Residents Show Appreciation For Road Work

Several residents of the Mountain Creek area appeared in the Judge of Probate office at the last meeting of the Chilton County Board of Revenue and Control with a petition of appreciation which included the names of 32 people who live in the area.

The spokesman for the group rose when he was called upon and he read: "To all the Board Members, the Judge, and the County Engineer of Chilton County. All the undersigned are expressing our appreciation for all of the road work and taking out of curves on the road from Elmore County Line to the Muntain Creek area." The petitilon was signed with 32 signatures.

FORMER RESIDENT DIED AT HATTISBURG

Frank A. Davis, brother of Mrs. Mary D. Higgins, and a former resident of Clanton, died at Hattisburg, Miss., last Wednesday, where he had made his home for the past 15 years.

Davis operated the Clanton Lumber Company here during 1935-36 and later was associated with the Forest Lumber & Tie Company. He leaves many friends and relatives in this community to mourn his passing.

Represented Chilton At Tractor School

Junior W. Henson, Rt. 4, Clanton, and Dan Mims, Assistant County Agent, recently represented Chilton County at the 4-H Tractor Maintenance School in Birmingham.

In the maintenance group they were schooled in air filters, cooling systems, battery systems and lubrication of tractors. In the machinery group they received instruction in hay balers, combines and turning plows.

In the near future, according to Mims, Henson, John Sellers and Mims will conduct tractor maintenance clinics in several communities throughout the county.

Farm wage rates around July 1 were about one and one-half per cent higher than at the same time last year, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lions Commend City Fathers On Street Planning

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Clanton Lions Club a motion was passed commending the City Fathers for their actions and attitude in producing a way for the city streets to be paved.

At the same time the Board's resolution expressed the hope that all dirt streets could be paved under the city's new paving plan.

Some time ago Mayor C. Fenn Jones announced that the city council had made arrangements with an outside contractor who is now operating in the county, whereby city property owners could get their streets paved for a cost of 25½ cents per front foot. This plan would leave the city paying two-thirds of the paving cost with one-third being handled by the property owner.

At the same time the Mayor also announced that if a majority of the property owners on a city block or street put up their share of the cost and expressed theiir intentions to have the work done, then the city would go ahead with the project and assess those property owners who did not go along with the other group.

The city has announced two paving projects under this new paving plan up to the present time.

Uncle Ben Brown, Ex-Slave, Dies At 97 Years Of Age

The death Friday morning of one of Chilton County's oldest Negroes brought a recollection of the old slave days to many residents as funeral preparations were being made for Uncle Ben Brown, who will be buried at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

For many years Uncle Ben Brown was a familiar figure about the streets of Clanton and both colored and white alike always had a greeting for Uncle Ben.

No one knows for sure whether or not Uncle Ben's last name is his own or whether it is one given him by his former master. It is also believed that Uncle Ben was freed from slavery somewhere near Selma and migrated to Clanton, but this also is only supposition and is not confirmed.

He is well remembered by some of the staff of the Chilton County News and for many years was a frequent visitor to the News Office when Mark L. Tucker was it's editor and publisher.

Uncle Ben passed away at 5:00 o'clock last Friday morning at the home of his daughter, Florence Price. He is reported to have one son, Ben, living somewhere in Ohio.

Admission for the concert will be 50c and $1.00. Tickets are on sale at the Calloway Drug Store. At the same time tickets will also be on sale at the door, but to avoid the rush it is requested that tickets be purchased in advance.

More Tax Money Being Paid State

Montgomery, Ala. — Revenue Commissioner Joe Edwards says that the State of Alabama took in $117,599,000 from October 31 last year, through July 31, this year.

The figure is $6,482,825 more than was taken in during the same period last year, Edwards said.

Sales and gasoline taxes both are running considerably higher than last year, but the tobacco and income taxes are off this year.

Income tax collections totaled $13,498,050, or down eight per cent. The tobacco tax, which has brought in $6,516,101 during the first 10 months of this year, was down two per cent.

Selecting Dairy Maid Another of Fair's Highlights

The selection of the Chilton County 4-H Dairy Maid will be one of the main events of the Chilton County Fair that gets underway at the Clanton Airport one week from today.

On Wednesday night, August 26, some lucky 4-H girl will be chosen as the main event of that evening's activity, and she in turn will have a chance to compete in the District Contest at Dadeville on September 10th and 11th, according to Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent. Miss Martin also pointed out that the winner of the district contest will then be entered in the finals at the Alabama State Fair in Birmingham in October.

All 4-H girls who are interested in entering the contest are urged to send their names in to Miss Martin by Saturday, August 22nd. Five girls have already entered their names for the County Fair Contest.

Points the girls are to be judged on are: 4-H project record, leadership, personality, poise and appearance. Each one of these points will have equal value of 20 per cent. Records will be judged before the contest, so they should be in the Home Demonstration Agent's Office by Tuesday, August 25th, according to Miss Martin. The record should include work done in 4-H projects during the past year, and a summary of project work done in previous years.

The Dairy Maid contestants will all be dressed alike in the official 4-H uniform of green and white striped seersucker.

According to Miss Martin all 4-H girls in the county are eligible for entering the contest, so girls should have their names in as soon as possible.

Page Resigns School Board After 35 Years

After approximately 35 years of faithful service as custodian of Chilton County School Funds, J. C. Page, insurance executive and former President of the First National Bank of Clanton, has resigned.

In tendering his resignation to the school board, Page gave as his reasons the heavy responsibilities of his own business that forced him to give up his position on the county school board, according to J. Howard Boockholdt, Superintendent of the County School System.

In commenting on the loss of Page, the County Superintendent said: "Mr. Page has been very faithful in his responsibilities to the Board of Education in these many years, having served in this capacity with six Superintendents of Education. Through his hands went the many thousands of dollars each year that are required to operate the schools. Thousands of checks have gone out to school personnel and vendors over his signature, which has become familiar to hundreds of people through his service as school funds superintendent."

Page has remarked that he has earned his pay in this capacity, since the position has never carried a salary.

Page will be succeeded as custodian of the County School Funds by Miss Claudia Williams, School Board Bookkeeper, whose office is located in the County Superintendent's Building.

ADPS Gives U. S. Government Check For $10,028.70

Montgomery, Ala. — State Civil Defense Director Col. James M. Garrett, Jr., said today that his department had turned over a U. S. check for $10,028.70 to the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Garrett said it represented the federal government's 50 per cent of a communication project for the highway patrol which will be available for civil defense use in the event of disasters.

The project includes erection of two 300-foot towers in Mobile and Escambia counties for use by the highway patrol. They are equipped for emergency use with auxiliary power units. Also included are 10 mobile units and emergency antenna. By the improvements, Alabama will be able to monitor the Mississippi and Florida shortwave systems.

Colonel Garrett said that the new communication facilities would eliminate long telephone lines, which are often knocked out in the case of major disasters.

Docks Handle More Shipping

Mobile, Ala. — General Manager Jerry P. Turner says that the Alabama State Docks handled more shipping during June than in any other month since this fiscal year began last October 1st.

Turner said that the increase was due to heavy movements of various type ores. He said that 425,688 tons were handled during June, as compared to 279,234 tons during June, 1952. The month of July will be even better, according to preliminary figures, Turner said.

Shipped during the first nine months of this fiscal year were 3,417,669 tons — almost 700,000 tons more than the 2,756,470 handled in the same period last fiscal year.

The Chickasaws believed that they were children of the sun, but they too, were of western origin, as were the Creeks. The Cherokees had migrated from the Atlanta Coast section, coming southward over the northern region through Virginia and the Carolinas, scattering into what is now Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee.

State Crop As Of August 1st Are Very Good

Crop prospects as of August 1 were generally good over the State. Soil moisture was adequate over the State, except a few areas in the north where upland corn was beginning to need rain. Rains were excessive in some parts of the south during July and drought conditions in the northwest, north central and west central areas were relieved when rains fell in those areas the 16th through the 23rd.

CORN: August 1 conditions indicated a crop of 50,531,000 bushels. If realized this would be almost double the 19552 crop and 9 percent above the 10-year (1942-51) average. The yield per harvested acre is expected to be 23 bushels, a record high for Alabama.

COTTON: A cotton crop of 1 million bales is forecast; 110,000 bales, or 12 percent more than last year's crop and about 10 percent above the 10-year (1942-51) average. Yield per acre for the State at 304 pounds is 29 pounds above last year's yield and 19 pounds greater than the 10-year average.

PEANUTS: Production of peanuts is estimated at 212 million pounds, one percent above last year. The yield at 1,000 pounds per acre is the same as last year.

PECANS: A pecan crop of 21,000,000 pounds is forecast this year. This would be the second largest crop of record, exceeded only by the 1951 crop of 26,000,000 pounds.

HAY CROPS: Indicated hay production is 618,000 tons, 13 percent above last year, but 9 percent below the 10-year average. August 1 condition of pastures was reported at 84 percent of normal, more than double last year. The ten-year average is 80 percent.

Farmers own half of the timberland in Alabama that furnishes raw materials for the state's $450,000,000 annual income from forest products.

No piece of farm machinery is complete until all exposed revolving parts are adequately shielded for safety's sake.

THE SOUTH'S SHARE OF THE NATIONAL DEBT

The federal debt is not a state debt, but it is owed by the people and the people live in the states so it would be entirely correct to say that the people of each state owe a pro rata share of the debt.

After all, if the people don't owe it, who does; and if the peope don't pay it, who will?

It would not be correct, however, to prorate the debt on the basis of population percentages because the wealth and ability to pay is not in the same proportion. But there is an equitable way of prorating the debt—and that is on the basis of internal revenue collected from each of the states Itsis in this manner the money must be obtained with which to eventually pay the debt and such an allocation would be the most accurate one possible.

The national debt now stands at better than $272 billion and serious consideration is being given to raising the statutory debt limit of $275 billion, the thought being that this amount must necessarily be exceeded before the end of this calendar year. At the very least, therefore, we must count on a national debt of not less than $275 billion by December 31, 1953.

Prorating such a debt among the states in the same proportion as the states paid internal revenue in to the federal government last year, we find that the states of the South will owe a prorata share of the debt at the end of the year as follows:

Alabama	$ 1,650,000,000
Arkansas	660,000,000
Florida	2,475,000,000
Georgia	2,626,000,000
Kentucky	4,950,000,000
Louisiana	2,080,000,000
Maryland	7,425,000,000
Mississippi	550,000,000
Missouri	8,525,000,000
North Carolina	6,600,000,000
Oklahoma	2,750,000,000
South Carolina	1,100,000,000
Tennessee	2,080,000,000
Texas	9,075,000,000
Virginia	4,300,000,000
West Virginia	1,375,000,000
	$58,221,000,000

These sixteen Southern states contain one-third of the nation's people, but it will be noted they owe only 21% of the national debt. This, of course, is in the same proportion as these states pay internal revenue to the federal government.

Just how much is this share of the national debt that the South owes? Some comparisons might be enlightening:

The total debt of the state governments of these same states at the end of the fiscal year 1952 was $1,797,292,000—so their share of the national debt is 32 times the total of their state debt.

The Southern state with the largest debt is North Carolina — $274,514,000. North Carolina no doubt feels it is rather heavily in debt. Yet North Carolina's share of the national debt is $6,600,000,000 — 24 times its state debt!

The Southern state with the lowest state debt is Kentucky — $10,006,000. Kentuckians perhaps feel they are getting out from under public debt. Yet Kentucky's share of the national debt is $4,950,000,000 — 480 times its state debt!

The South's share of the national debt is four and one-half times as large as the total value of all industrial plants and equipment located in the South.

The South's share of the national debt is 48% greater than the total assets of all banks in the South.

The South's share of the national debt is 92% of the face value of all the life insurance in force in the South.

The national debt is one of the most serious problems — if not the most serious — that the people of this nation have facing them.

THE SUPREMACY OF HEART OVER BRAIN

"Philip findeth Nathaniel, and saith unto him, We have found him of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph." John 1:43.

With the purpose of discrediting the zeal of a Christian man of mediocre ability, an able jurist in Virginia once remarked, "There is no substitute for brains." The judge was mistaken. God can use even a little child to guide his elders into the way of the Lord, so the Bible says.

Phillip was evidently a man of small calibre, mentally speaking. Dr. James I. Vance spoke of him as Phillip the dullard. But the fine thing about Phillip was that, recognizing his own limitations, he was determined to do the best he could for his Lord. The incident from which the sentence quoted here is taken occurred very shortly after his conversion to Christ. He wasted no time in putting his religion into practice. His daring spirit is shown in that the first man that he undertook to convert to his own newly adopted faith was doubtless the most highly educated man in Hebrew lore in all of Galilee. "Philip findeth Nathaniel, and saith unto him, 'We have found the Messiah.'" Nathaniel the intellectual came back at the fisherman with a question about Jesus that was beyond his ability to answer. But you will agree that Phillip's reply was prompted by good common sense, "Come and see." The gist of it was something like this: "I am not able to prove my declaration on the level of higher learning. But I can insist on your making your own investigation, that you may arrive at your own conclusion. Come and see."

The reader of this article knows the rest of the story. Nathaniel was so impressed by the earnestness of his visitor, that he accepted the challenge, and after being fully persuaded of the Messiahship of Jesus, became an humble follower.

Every Christian of this generation should cultivate the three qualities of heart and mind that made a mighty leader of Phillip the dullard, namely, genuine conviction, initiative, and a daring spirit. Phillip did not wait to be appointed on a committee to do something in the church. He used his own initiative, and did what appeared to be the thing to do. If the members of the Christian groups in the days of the Apostles had been inactive until "elevated" to some official position, before assuming any personal responsibility for the advancement of the cause of Christ, the Christian movement would never have become a resistless tide. In the closing chapter of the Epistle to the Romans you will find a long list of men and women who literally "gave themselves to the Lord," not one of whom had waited to be specially commissioned to do this or that. Such people as that are the people to whom the great Head of the Church is looking today for the extension of His Kingdom. Too many people in our generation are waiting for official appointment, while empty pews challenge them every Sabbath day to diligence in the King's business. If Phillip the dullard were in our town, he would be doing something about the deplorable situation that is easily observable in practically all of our churches. For Phillip, the man of limited ability, had what it takes to make a church go, and grow, namely, conviction, initiative, and a daring spirit. Therein lies the answer to the major problem of our present day Christianity.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

OBESITY

Obesity is actually a disease characterized by an abnormal appetite. Seldom, if ever, is it due primarily to serious glandular disease; this is a popular misconception behind which many obese individuals seek refuge.

Excessive intake of food leads to the accumulation of abnormal amounts of body fat. Some people eat excessively during periods of stress and tension. Others eat just because they like to eat. Overweight is simply due to over-eating. In certain glandular diseases, such as hypothyroidism where the thyroid is sluggish, the need for food is less than normal. Even individuals with this condition eat more food than is actually needed. The activity of the gland can be corrected with certain medications, but the fat must be lost by strict adherence to a lowered caloric intake. Relatively few obese individuals suffer from hypothyroidism.

By far the majority of those who are overweight simply take in more food than is necessary to supply the daily energy required. The portion of food over and above the daily needs is stored in the fat depots. The sites of the greatest fat storage are in the shoulders, abdomen and hips.

Many diet fads make their appearance from time to time and gain underserved popularity. Some of these are nutritionally inadequate and lead to acute deficiency states and lowering of general bodily resistance. Ideally a reduction diet should be a balanced diet and should be under a physician's supervision to safeguard one's health.

Obese individuals are much more prone to certain constitutional diseases such as high blood pressure, accelerated hardening of the arteries and diabetes. Excessive weight may lead to an increased load on the heart as well as on all vital organs in the body.

So why be fat? Maintain your food requirements at a level to maintain good general health, thereby reducing your chances to develop the diseases associated with obesity.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SERVICE

The Crippled Children's Service helps with the medical, educational, and social problems of crippled children. Its purpose is to assist each crippled child to reduce his handicap; advance his education while under treatment; and adjust to his handicap, his family, and his community.

There are approximately 19,000 crippled children known to the Service. Only those children whose families are unable to bear the cost of medical care are accepted for treatment. During the past year, approximately 12,000 children received treatment. These children were treated for the following types of disabilities: Bone, joint and muscular defects; defective vision; defective hearing and speech; epilepsy; and disabilities requiring plastic surgery. The treatment given included medical services, clinic services, hospitalization, X-rays, appliances, and medicine.

Medical and surgical treatment alone is not sufficient, but must be recognized as only one part of the total adjustment of the crippled child. The child must continue his education while undergoing treatment, and the Crippled Children's Service works closely with local boards of education to achieve this purpose. Likewise, the cooperation of county health and welfare units is secured to assist in the follow-up treatment and the solution of social problems in the home. Large numbers of people interested in crippled children assist the work as members of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The present allotment of funds and the lack of facilities prevent the Service from treating all of the crippled children who are known to be eligible.

Honor Eddie Gilmore

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Legislature has paid tribute to Alabama's Eddie Gilmore, returning home after 12 years as a newspaper man in Moscow, Russia.

A resolution unanimously adopted in both the Senate and House said the veteran correspondent's "objective reporting in the face of almost insurmountable restrictions did much to give America a better understanding of Russian aims and objectives."

His stories as AP bureau chief in Moscow were a "credit to his profession, as well as reflecting honor on his state and nation," the resolution declared.

The lawmakers adopted the resolution on the same day that Gilmore landed in the U.S. with his Russian-born wife and two children. It was introduced by Sen. George Quarles, of Selma, a life-long friend.

A welcome celebration was given for the Gilmores in Selma last week.

More Tax Money Being Paid State

Montgomery, Ala. — Revenue Commissioner Joe Edwards says that the State of Alabama took in $117,599,000 from October 31 last year, through July 31, this year.

The figure is $6,482,825 more than was taken in during the same period last year, Edwards said.

Sales and gasoline taxes both are running considerably higher than last year, but the tobacco and income taxes are off this year.

Income tax collections totaled $13,498,050, or down eight per cent. The tobacco tax, which has brought in $6,516,101 during the first 10 months of this year, was down two per cent.

Income from the three per cent sales tax was running $47,519,445 for the first 10 months of the current fiscal year. That compared to $43,167,028 for the same period last year, or an increase of about 10 per cent.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

For families with children of assorted ages, vacations sometimes provide more problems than pleasures.

After the destination is finally decided upon, there comes the problem of packing, followed by the greater prblem of getting all the essential equipment into the car with a reasonable amount of room (has any mother ever set out on a journey without either a suitcase or a lunch basket under her feet?) left over for the passengers.

And just when everybody and everything seems to have gotten settled, somebody remembers that the bathing suits are still hanging on the line in the back yard, the thermos jug is on the kitchen table and the box of baby food is on the front porch. Worst of all, the stack of funny books supposed to provide entertainment during the long ride is under the biggest, heaviest suitcase in the back of the car. The whole car has to be repacked. This time both the suitcase and the lunch basket are under you-know-who's feet.

Of course those funny books do help keep the youngsters entertained, but no amusement or game ever invented could keep them from asking on the average of every two miles, "How many more miles? What's the next town? When will we get there? How far do we have to go now?"

Oh, taking a family on a vacation isn't easy, but all the troubles and inconveniences fade into nothingness when a four-year-old adds to his prayers:

"And thank you, God, for showing us the way to this happy place."

The next door neighbor came over the day before we left on our vacation to offer advice on how to pack. She declared firmly that the only way to pack is to fold clothes flat with plenty of tissue paper between the folds.

No sooner had she gone than the mother down the street, the one with the big family, stopped by to tell what years of packing for a family vacation had taught her:

"Don't try to fold clothes, roll them," she said.

We listened dutifully to the advice and then followed a system that would have shocked them both, a system that called for wadding garments, either folded or rolled, into any available space in the suitcase. It may not have been too neat, but we got everything in!

When our neighbor down the street goes on a vacation she always takes along a box of her very best homemade cookies. The cookies aren't for her family to munch on, but are shared with service station attendants, traffic officers and other thoughtful persons who help make the trip more enjoyable.

This year we added the baby's stroller to the growing collection of vacation travel essentials. And every time we stopped to eat at a place that didn't have a high chair, every time we had a picnic and every time we strolled about in a strange town, we were thankful that we had brought it along.

When we got back home, tired and hot as only vacationers can be, our good cook neighbor brought over a bowl of congealed raspberry salad made like this:

Dissolve 1 package raspberry gelatin in 1 cup hot water. Add 2 cups crushed pineapple, ½ cup canned cranberry sauce and ½ cup softened cream cheese. Chill until firm.

Watch And Learn Traffic Signs

Montgomery—"Know their shapes and be safe."

Director L. B. Sullivan of the Alabama Department of Public Safety was referring to traffic sign shapes when he offered this advice to motorists this week.

"The Department of Public Safety fully supports the August 'Signs of Life' program of the Alabama Safety Commission and Alabama Safety Council," Sullivan said.

Traffic signs, he explained, really can be "signs of life" to motorists who heed them. Sign locations are determined by careful engineering studies, to guide users of Alabama's streets and highways.

"These signs are designed in five basic shapes, and each shape carries a different type of message," Sullivan declared. "Motorists should learn to recognize these shapes so that they can tell at a glance what type of problem they are about to meet. Then they are prepared to act when they get close enough to the sign to read its detailed message."

Sullivan listed the five basic sign shapes and meanings as:

1. Octagonal, or eight-sided, painted yellow and black or red and white. This sign means STOP—one message, one requirement.
2. Diamond, also yellow and black. This indicates danger ahead—school, bridge, curve, intersection—and means slow down, stay alert.
3. Rectangular or square, black and white. These are regulatory or informative — speed limits, no-passing zones, parking rules.
4. Round, yellow and black signs warn of a rail-highway intersection 300 to 500 feet ahead. These signs call for reduced speed and extra caution.
5. Crossbuck marks the railroad crossing. Its meaning — "stop, look and listen," is as proverbial as it is life-saving.

"These signs, plus traffic signals and pavement markings for both pedestrains and motorists, deserve the same attention as is given a traffic officer," the public safety director said. "Many traffic accidents would not happen if people using the streets and highways obeyed the signs, signals and other devices put there for guidance and protection.

Sullivan called special attention to the slogan, "Signs of Life—Know Them, Obey Them," which is being featured in this month's traffic safety program by the state council and commission.

Famed Scientist Gives Views On Long Life

Pearl River, N. Y. — Dr. Benjamin Minge Duggar, discoverer of the "wonder drug" aureomycin, says that his philosophy for a long, satisfying life is: "Keep active, mentally and physically."

He will be 81 years old September 1st.

Dr. Duggar practices what he preaches. At an age when most men would be content to sit in the shade and reminisce, this famed scientist still carries on a full-time research program.

He also finds time to have a small vegetable garden every summer—raising tomatoes, corn, okra and lettuce — and to play an occasional round of golf. He also fishes and in the winter he gets in some bowling.

Dr. Duggar is not a physical superman. He stands about five feet-five inches and constantly weighs 122 pounds.

The story of how this man gained world-wide prominence is one of the most dramatic stories of our time. In 1943, at the age of 71, he was forced by state law to retire from the University of Wisconsin, where he taught botany. Not content to sit in the shade and hold his hands, Dr. Duggar came to Lederle Laboratories and began searching for an antibiotic that would be more effective than penicillin.

Dr. Duggar worked three years with teams of chemists, bacteriologists, pharmacologists and other scientists, culturing thousands of earth molds, before the "golden wonder drug" aureomycin was isolated and developed for commercial production. The antibiotic was put on the market in 1948, when Dr. Duggar was 76.

But his scientific endeavors did not stop there. He is still working with the mysterious molds which live in the earth, hoping to find another antibiotic drug which will be even more benefial than aureomycin.

Dr. Duggar was born in 1872, at Gallion, Alabama, son of a country doctor. There were five boys. One brother is still living (79), and the others, two of whom were older than the scientist, died in recent years. Dr. Duggar's father lived to 82 and his mother to 79.

He recalls that he was riding a horse at the age of four. He has never been seriously ill, and even escaped many of the usual childhood diseases.

Does he smoke? Yes, a pipe. . . but with moderation. He also has an occasional brandy or highball.

"Moderation is a wonderful thing," he advises. "Work and play with moderation."

Does he ever plan to retire? He says he does, but most of his associates take this with a grain of salt, for Dr. Duggar is a man with an insatiable curiosity about things scientific.

What could keep a man working at his age? Dr. Duggar sincerely hopes that he can make another substantial contribution to medical science.

"Also, I love my work," he says, "and that's very important. I get a great personal satisfaction from scientific accomplishment."

Dr. Duggar feels strongly that there is a wonderful future in the field of scientific research for young pople who have the interest and talent. Industrial laboratories, he says, are opening up vast new horizons that were unknown to the college researcher years ago.

"We now have real teamwork," he explains. "The colleges and universities constitute our principal reservoir of scientific talent; the industrial laboratories can supply the developmental know-how, the money and the sales. Together these two great scientific interests should carry us to magnificent new discoveries which will make life safer and longer."

JEMISON F.F.A. OFFICERS HOLD PLANNING MEETING

Officers of the Jemison Chapter Future Farmers of America held their annual planning meeting Saturday, August 8th, in the Jemison vocational building. Detailed plans were made for the school year 1953-54.

The officers planned to participate in numerous state sponsored contests like beef, dairy and hog judging, public speaking, quartets, quiz, and the better chapter contest. They plan to continue to operate their roadside stand. Plans were also made to set at least 10,000 pine trees this year.

Some time was given to the practice of opening and closing meetings properly.

The officers are proud of the new equipment they have purchased for the vocational work shop. They bought the following this year: A band saw with metal bench, a one-horsepower electric motor for their rip-saw, a metal bench for their Jig Saw, metal benches for their two drill presses, and a six-inch skill saw.

Those attending the meeting were: Ellis Burgess, President; Jerry Conway, Vice-President; Hollis Sammons, Secretary; Charles Martin, Reporter; William Wright, Treasurer; and L. C. Shields, Adviser.

MALENKOV SPEECH SEEMS HINT NO WAR IS EXPECTED

(By Edward H. Sims)
(Washington Analyst)

Washington — The most significant thing about the recent speech of Premier Georgi M. Malenkov before the Supreme Soviet is not his mention of Russian production of the hydrogen bomb. In the first reaction to the speech (before the full text had been seen) U. S. analysts were inclined to speculate on the hydrogen bomb angle of the speech as if it were the most significant feature of the address.

A study of the entire speech shows, however, that Malenkov is repudiating Joseph Stalin's policies in the economic field, and that he is probably banking on a number of years of world peace in the immediate future. Malenkov was surprisingly frank in berating economic conditions inside the USSR as encountered by the average workman or peasant.

He announced frankly that more attention was to be given production of consumer goods, like appliances, cars and other items which are considered fantastic luxuries by most Russians today. In admitting the poor conditions which now exist in his country, and promising to do something about them, Malenkov sounds very much like a man expectant of peace.

A close look at his speech shows that most of his words were taken up with domestic issues, and methods to improve living conditions inside Russia. Were Malenkov planning a major aggression he would probably have devoted much more effort to inciting Russian emotions against the United States.

Instead the Russian dictator sounded like he was embarking on a program like that followed by Mussolini in the twenties, before the Italian dictator began to dream of another empire of Italy. In those days Mussolini concentrated on domestic improvements and modernization, not aggression. Malenkov is either motivated by a desire to pacify the people and improve their traditionally hard lot in Russia, or by the knowledge that any new war could be lost because of the present state of unrest among peasants and workers.

In either event the news is good to Americans. The United States is not going to attack Russia. Malenkov undoubtedly knows this. From his speech, it appears that he is concentrating his efforts at the moment on improving conditions inside Russia and raising the living standard, not planning any major aggression in the near future.

ALABAMA STATE FAIR TO OPEN OCTOBER 5th AT BIRMINGHAM

Birmingham, Ala.—"More to See In '53" is the banner-line of the 1953 Alabama State Fair which will open its annual six-day run here Monday, October 5th.

With a record high of more than $40,000 in premiums being offered, Alabama's biggest outdoor event is ranked as one of the best six-day Fairs in the nation.

Highlight of this Year's presentation will be the re-establishing of a Wimen's Department after many years of inactivity. The magnitude of the special women's division is reflected in the 192-page catalogue and premium list distributed by the Alabama State Fair this week. The pages of the book list more than 200 classifications open to women.

Classifications include women's and children's wear, quilting, knitting and crocheting, needlepoint, rugs, leather craft, baskets, trays, antiques, and many other articles of handicraft of particular interest to women. Prizes will also be awarded in cooking, canning and preserving divisions. Special classifications have also been set up for Men and Children.

Another feature of the 1953 Alabama State Fair will be the dedication and opening of the new half-million dollar Agriculture Building. The 17,000 square foot facility will house the Women's Department, Extension Services of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 4-H Club exhibits, activities of the Future Farmers of America, Future Homemakers of America and the colorful State Fair Flower Show.

Opening day of the Fair will again be dedicated to Alabama Teachers Day. Tuesday is Press and Legislative Day, Wednesday is Children's Day, Thursday Maid of Cotton Day, with Industrial Day scheduled for Friday and Alabama Day is Saturday.

COMMENCEMENT WILL BE HELD AT ALABAMA FRIDAY, AUG. 21

Summer commencement exercises at the University of Alabama will be held in Foster Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Friday, August 21, with 450 graduates scheduled to receive degrees from President Lee Bidgood.

Five doctoral degrees and about 200 master's degrees will be awarded.

Dr. Eric Rodgers, head of the department of physics, will make the commencement address.

Commencement will be open to the parents, relatives and friends of graduates.

Probably the best way for parents to get rid of their troubles during the summer is to pack them up and send them off to camp.

TB STILL BIG KILLER IN STATE

Montgomery — Tuberculosis killed 560 Alabamians in 1952, the State Department of Health pointed out today. That was an average of about one tuberculosis death every 15 hours.

The State Health Department called attention to the fact that the 1952 total represented a marked drop from the 792 tuberculosis deaths reported in 1951 and an even greater drop from the average of 992 a year for the five-year period from 1946 to 1950, inclusive.

The figures for 1951 and 1952 are based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available. The 1946-50 average is based upon final reports.

At night you can see farther and better on concrete. Its light-colored surface spreads illumination. Pavement edges, obstructions and pedestrians are clearly defined.

Night or day, wet or dry, concrete has uniformly high skid-resistance because of its permanently gritty texture. You can stop quickly, safely.

Concrete saves money, too. It is moderate in first cost yet can be designed accurately for any axle load—and concrete keeps its load-carrying capacity throughout its long service life.

Concrete pavements cost less to maintain, last much longer. All this adds up to low-annual-cost service.

This demonstration showed me the way to a better deal!

I'd been planning to buy a higher-priced car until I found out all Chevrolet offered— and how much I could save!

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel

Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the quality of the interior. Rich-looking appointments. Roomy seats with foam rubber cushions. Turn the key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

You can see all around

You look out and down through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield. The panoramic rear window and big side windows provide a clear view in all directions.

Biggest brakes for smoother, easier stops

An easy nudge on the pedal brings smooth, positive response—right now! Chevrolet's improved brakes are the largest in the low-price field.

It's heavier for better roadability

You're in for a pleasant surprise at the smooth, steady, big-car ride of this new Chevrolet. One reason is that, model for model, Chevrolet will weigh up to 200 pounds more than the other low-priced cars.

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide*

A lot finer performance on a lot less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide automatic transmission. There's no more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

You get more power on less gas

That's because Chevrolet's two great valve-in-head engines are high-compression engines. In Powerglide* models, you get the most powerful engine in Chevrolet's field — the new 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame." Gear-shift models offer the advanced 108-h.p "Thrift-King" engine.

And it's the lowest-priced line

A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers just about everything you could want. Yet it's the lowest-priced line in the low-price field.

Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.*

Defoliation Valuable Aid For Late And Rank Cotton Say Experts

Auburn, Ala. — Cotton growers in many parts of the state will find chemical defoliation particularly valuable this year, believes O. N. Andrews, API Extension cotton improvement specialist.

Much cotton has grown tall and rank in areas where rainfall has been above normal. Defoliation may prove worthwhile on these fields it used only to prevent boll rot, says the cotton expert.

Wet weather over much of Alabama delayed planting, and there's lots of late cotton. Defoliation after the cotton is mature will help speed up the harvest and allow farmers to get the crop out of the field before bad weather damages the quality of fiber and seed.

"Many producers have a special defoliation problem this year," says Andrews. "On the same farm cotton in one field may be far ahead of that in an adjacent field, which means the two fields won't be ready for defoliation at the same time. Delay application of defoliants on the young cotton until it is mature. Removing leaves of immature cotton will reduce yields and lower quality of seed and fiber.

"No matter where cotton is grown, it should be defoliated if mechanical harvesting is to be used. Unless leaves are removed from the plant, they tend to clog the spindles of mechanical pickers. Defoliation also helps the problem of green leaf stain."

Ponds Should Be Fished Heavily To Make Profit

Auburn, Ala. — If you don't catch enough fish from your pond, you can't expect the smaller ones to grow, says Earl F. Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist.

"Ninety per cent of all ponds are not fished heavily enough, adds the expert. "To make your pond pay, fish more often and especially when the fish are biting."

Kennamer points out that the average annual fertilizer bill runs 30 dollars per acre. With fish selling for 40 cents per pound, farmers should catch each year a minimum of 75 pounds of edible fish per acre to pay for fertilizer costs.

Remember, continues the specialist, ponds, like banks, have limited production capacities. They'll turn out the same poundage either in many small fish or fewer good-sized ones.

Miami, Fla. — Police are looking for thieves who stole a 20-by-30 foot building, owned by Alvin Rose, who told police it had been used for storage by a construction company.

Homogenized Milk Can Be Frozen Says Home Leader

Homogenized milkk can be conveniently frozen in the paraffined containers in which it is sold, according to Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservationist.

In freezing, the milk may bulge the sides of the containers slightly, but there is enough headspace so it won't break the seal, adds the specialist. Don't try to freeze milk in bottles because expansion will push up the cap and there is danger of breakage. Milk will freeze solid within a few hours, and if held at zero temperatures should keep its flavor for about a month.

Don't try to freeze milk that has not been homogenized, warns Miss Curtis. Natural emulsion breaks down, the milk will separate into flaky particles and fat blobules, and it will not have the desired consistency.

Hogs Need Plenty Of Water During Summer

Auburn, Ala. — When watering pigs during summer, be sure they have a quart of water daily for each pound of feed consumed.

G. B. Phillips, API Extension animal industry specialist, says hogs that have plenty of water conveniently located gain faster and more cheaply than those without ample water supplies.

"Pigs will drink as much out of a trough as from an automatic waterer—if it is there," he adds. "Watering equipment should hold a full day's supply without refilling. For bowl-type pressure systems, use one bowl for 30 to 35 pigs. A typical float-type fountain should supply about 70 growing pigs a day."

Phillips also reminds farmers that pigs grow faster with water close to the feeder.

Exploding 120-mm. shells set off brilliant orange flashes in the sky, backed by the blazing red [illegible] anti-aircraft installation building. No injuries were reported.

Poor Jenny

By Virginia White

It had only been fun when it started, but it wasn't funny any more, now that Jenny was dead. Marilee looked at the still, crumpled form, lying in the shade of the Elm. She knew she should run home and tell Mother, but she couldn't, not just yet. Mother had told her to take care of Jenny.

When she moved away from the tree, she didn't go home. She walked up the road to Ronnie's house and went in without knocking. There was a man sitting in a chair, reading a paper and she went up to him.

"Well, little lady," he said, "who are you?"

Marilee swallowed hard. "Jenny's dead!" she said.

Mr. Roper lowered his paper. "Ronnie!" he called. "Come here!"

"Come here!" Mr. Roper said firmly. "Do you know this little girl?"

"Jenny's dead," Marilee said quietly, "Ronnie killed her!"

Guilt shone from Ronnie's eyes. Panic gripped his small body.

"Ronnie!" roared his father, "what did you do to Jenny?"

Ronnie turned and ran. He ran through the living-room and out on the porch. With his father reaching for his collar, Ronnie didn't wait for the stairs, he took them in one leap, and fell! He gave one terrified gasp, then screamed!

"Susan!" yelled Mr. Roper, trying to gather the struggling boy in his arms, "call the doctor! Ronnie's broken his leg! Susan!!"

Marilee walked quietly down the stairs and across the lawn. She didn't look back as Ronnie continued to scream. "It can't hurt him more than it hurt Jenny," she whispered and her throat shook with a stifled sob.

She trudged up the dusty road to Harlow's house, wondering as she went, how she was ever going to tell her mother. Harlow saw her coming, reached up and firmly locked the screen door.

"You can't come in!" he said, defiantly

"Why Harlow!" Mrs Henry appeared behind him. "You mustn't treat your little friends that way. Come in, dear," she said to Marilee, "and don't look so sad. Harlow didn't mean to be so impolite!"

Harlow ran to the hall closet, found his grandfather's cane and came out swinging. "I'm not afraid of you!" he shouted, waving the stick above his head.

"Harlow!" said his mother, "Put that cane down!"

As Harlow hesitated, Marilee cut in with a solemn statement. "Jenny's dead," she said. The tears ran down her cheeks but only her eyes cried . . . her mouth was a tight slit in her white face.

"Why child!" said Mrs. Henry "What is the matter?"

"Jenny's dead," Marilee said, "and Harlow killed her!"

"Oh, now, I'm sure you're mistaken," Mrs. Henry said soothingly. "Harlow wouldn't hurt anything!"

Harlow looked at Marilee and his mother, then suddenly decided to brazen it out. "Yes I did!" he said, "I hit her and hit her and hit her!" He swung the cane wildly, carried away with excitement. "I hit her!" The last swing of the cane connected with a vase on the hall table and knocked it to the floor with a shattering crash!

"Harlow! My Persian Vase!" His mother was momentarily stunned, then she grabbed her son and hauled him over to the sofa She laid him across her lap and brought the cane down across the seat of his pants!

Marilee walked slowly out the door. She could still hear Harlow's shrieks of pain and pleas for mercy as she came to the bridge that spanned the brook She turned in there and followed the bank until she came to the Elm She stood for a moment looking at Jenny, stretched out so peacefully in the shade

"Poor Jenny!" she said softly, "they hurt you, didn't they!" Then with infinite tenderness, she picked up her doll and went home!

NEW FIRE INSURANCE RATES TO SAVE HALF MILLION DOLLARS

Montgomery, Ala. — State Insurance Superintendent H. A. Longshore says that effective October 1, new fire insurance rates in Alabama would save policy holders $1,500,000 per year.

The downward adjustment is the result of a review of underwriting experience of the insurance companies concerned, he said.

Longshore said the review was made in cooperation with the Alabama Inspection and Rating Bureau.

He added that during the past five years Fire Rate Insurance Premiums in the State have been reduced by approximately $4,500,000.

The present adjustment will not apply to properties of fire-resistive construction — except dwellings and builders' risks — nor those equipped with automatic sprinklers.

Apartment houses, banks and office buildings, boarding and rooming houses, bottling works (brick construction), builders' or carpenters' risks, cotton warehouses (unsprinklered), churches and Sunday Schools, Day Schools.

Dwellings, Fraternity and Sorority Houses, garages (public), gasoline filling stations, homes (for aged, blind, deaf, dumb and orphan), hospitals, hotels.

295 POLIO CASES IN STATE

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's 1953 polio score has hit the 295 mark, with last week's report of 29 new cases.

This was an increase of eight over the previous week, and brought the 1953 figures to more than twice the 136 cases listed during the corresponding period in 1952.

Last week's cases came in 16 counties, including two in Montgomery that developed earlier but were not officially recorded until last week. Autauga, Barbour, Jefferson and Chambers had three cases each; Etowah, Lauderdale, Macon and Talladega had two a piece, and Calhoun, Colbert, Dallas, Elmore, Lamar, Madison and Tallapoosa each had one.

Oats alone are one of the very best crops for fall and winter grazing for all kinds of livestock.

Hand-feed bred sows during the gestation period and keep them on green grazing; overfat sows are often pig killers and may be poor milkers.

Keep Dairy Cows Cool For High Milk Yields

Research shows that dairy cows must throw off 20 per cent or more of the total energy from their feed in the form of heat.

So it's no small job for them to keep their temperatures down when the thermometer goes up, says Pete Turnham, API Extension assistant dairyman. To maintain milk production at satisfactory levels, dairymen must provide plenty of shade for their animals.

"Build low-cost shelters if there are no trees available," explains the specialist. "Cows are more comfortable in good green pasture than in a dry lot, where temperatures may be as much as 10 degrees higher. Keep clean, fresh water available, and if cows are producing heavily, feed them hay and supplemental concentrates."

Sunday morning services were well attended; 107 in Sunday School and others came in for worship service. A wonderful message by our pastor, Rev. J. C. Brown, got our revival off to a good start. Please make every effort to be with us throughout the week.

Sunday afternoon our singing met with a large crowd of singers and a large crowd of listeners. We had a wonderful afternoon. Mr. Reuben Devaughn, chairman, opened the singing with two numbers. Directors for the evening were as follows:

Miss Lucretia D vis, Miss Thora Devaughn, Mrs. Agnes Yeargan, Mr. J. D. Price, Mrs. Ray Emminger, Mr. Cecil Yeargan, Carolyn Devaughn, Donald Yeargan, Mrs. Reuben Devaughn and Rev. J. C. Brown.

We were very fortunate to have the West End Quartet of Selma. We were favored with several numbers by them. Our own Mt. Pisgah Quartets, the young quartet and the older quartet, also a duet by Rev. and Mrs. Brown and another duet by two of the Selma Quartet were also enjoyed.

Pianists for the afternoon were: Miss Thora Devaughn, Miss Lucretia Davis, Miss Joyce Devaughn, all of Clanton, and Mrs. Bevins of Selma. A piano solo by Carolyn Yeargan, of Autaugaville, was enjoyed, and Mr. William Adams offered prayer. Our pastor dismissed. We expect everybody back with us next [illegible].

Sunday night service was well attended and another spiritual meeting [illegible]. Your pastor and family [illegible] Mr. Reuben Devaughn.

A peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

If you're starting a vocal career the latest dope is to skip the classics of Mozart and sing about potatoes and tomatoes from a vegetable truck in Philadelphia. You may find yourself the star of a Mutual show like Coke Time With Eddie Fisher heard every Monday and Thursday evenings.

Naturally, nothing happens that fast, not even in the world of make-believe, but Eddie was singing along side his father on their vegetable truck as a beginning. When he did break into radio while in high school, he netted 15-cents carfare for his services . . . He tried band work with Buddy Morrow and Charlie Ventura then vocal spots at New York's Paramount Theater and the Copacabana . . . Typical of entertainment people, Eddie was always working on holidays and that's what finally gave him his foothold on success.

On Labor Day in 1949 Eddie Cantor heard him at a New York resort center and asked Fisher to join his show-wagon . . . Nothing like hitching your wagon to a star to make you one, too . . . And Eddie Cantor, maker of many big stars today, was the best thing that ever happened to Fisher . . . Back in 1930 when we last saw Cantor, he was doing nip-ups about the young vocalist with him . . . "What a voice!" he exclaimed. "And he's handsome, too . . . He looks like Frank Sinatra would look if Frank Sinatra were good-looking."

Eddie now has 24 years of life behind him, recordings that pass the hallowed million-sold-mark each time they're released, and two years army service completed only this April . . . You can't tell the stars from the stars on "Coke Time" . . . All Eddie wants to do is sing so he has actor Don Ameche do his hosting and adds a guest vocalist every broadcast to make sure there's enough music . . . singers like Morton Downey, Johnny Desmond, Marguerite Piazza, Gordon MacRae and Lucille Norman.

FOSSIL FINDS OLDEST?

Garnett, Kan.—The fossiles which scientists recently unearthed in a pasture near here may prove to be the "oldest of the fossils ever found." Some skeletons, two with skulls, go by the jawbreaking scientific name of Petrolacosauris Kansensis, but are commonly known as "Rock Lake Lizards." The fossils were described as important "missing links" between the reptiles and amphibians of 230 to 250 million years ago.

"Garden Spot Of The World" Owes Great Deal To Red Glasscock, County Agent

Chilton County has been praised over and over again as being ideally situated for more reasons that a person has fingers and toes, it has been praised for it's highly developed agricultural industry, for being "the garden spot of the world," for being the "peach and berry spot of the world," and for hundreds of other things.

But if Chilton County ever had a very definite asset it is in the name of M. R. (Red) Glasscock, it's County Agent; a man who has adopted our county as his home; a man who in the past 12 years has been more instrumental and who has probably helped more people than any other man in our county.

M. R. (Red) GLASSCOCK

It was back in 1941 when Red Glasscock first took over as Chilton's County Agent, and at that time the county's farm industry consisted principally of cotton and berry farming. Since that time the farming industry in this area has grown into what today brings in several hundreds of thousands of dollars each year, dollars from the growing of green pastures, cows, the production of milk, all kinds of row crops and more recently eggs and poultry production.

During these past 12 years Glasscock has also been instrumental in many farm organizations being formed in this county, organizations that keep the farmer up to date on all practices as well as what legislation is taking place that will effect him.

Red Glasscock has been instrumental in the formation of the Fruit and Truck Growers Association, the tomato market development for Chilton's farmers. He assisted with the organization of the livestock market, the Chilton Area Horticulture Experiment Station in the Collins Chapel area.

Our County Agent has also assisted in the formation of the Chilton County Cattlemen's Association, which is affiliated with the Alabama Association. He helped with the organization of the Jersey Cattle Club of Chilton County, and he was largely instrumental in getting the Carnation Milk Company to come into the county to buy milk.

When Glasscock first came to Chilton County this area was producing only about 300 pounds of grade "B" milk per day. At the present time the county is producing about 9,000 pounds per day and at peak times during the year the county runs as high as 10,000 pounds per day.

Red is quick to deny that any of the credit belongs to him more than it does to many others here in the county. For instance, he has called upon many of the Civic organizations to help him with his projects. In the case of the grade "B" milk program he called upon the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce for help. He has also called upon others such as the Lions Club and the Kiwanis Club to say nothing of the many of times he has solicited the help of individual business men in the county.

"If it weren't for the help of the businessmen of the county and their fine financial support we couldn't have done what we have," says Red.

Glasscock pays particular credit to the bankers of the county who have been so ready and willing to go along with many of his enterprises.

And by the same token the tables are turned many times over. Many, many times civic organizations have called upon Red and his fine staff of co-workers to assist them in many of their projects. Time and time again organizations have asked for his help and many times he has given of his precious spare time to help them with their projects.

But there again Red was quick to state that he alone could not have done all there was to be done without the consistant help of his staff members that include such names as John Sellers, Dan Mims, Miss Mary Louise Wright, Miss Johnny Martin, C. C. Carleton, C. C. Gay and his staff of foresters, and Olin Fields and his staff from the conservation department, and the former help of a former assistant, R. H. Kirkpatrick, now county agent for Autauga County.

Yes, Chilton County has it's assets, assets that are too numerous to mention right now, but for the present the Chilton County News take this opportunity to salute M. R. (Red) Glasscockkk, County Agent.

FARMERS BORROWED FROM STATE'S BANKS

During 1952 Alabama farmers called upon the state's banks to provide them with more credit than was extended by any other type of farm lending agency, according to J. Archie Ogburn, Executive Vice-President and Cashier of The Bank of Thorsby, who represents the Alabama Bankers Association as Chilton County Key Banker.

Quoting from the twelfth annual study of farm lending by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, Mr. Ogburn noted that on January 1, 1953, Alabama banks had loans totaling $51,417,000 outstanding to farmers, compared with $23,515,000 held by Federal Land Banks, who had the second largest block of farm loans outstanding.

"As they have in the past, the state's farmers continued last year to turn mostly to their banks when they needed credit," Mr. Ogburn said. "The amount of credit the farmer needs to run a successful operation is much larger today than it was in past decades," he continued. "Farming is now a mechanized, highly competitive enterprise; and operating a profitable farm involves a much greater investment in machinery and modern agricultural methods. Hence, adequate funds are a prime concern to the farm operator. Meeting his needs for operating credit is one of the most important services of Alabama banks."

The banks have been encouraging farmers to modernize and improve their present acreage rather than buy additional land during this period of high land prices; and the bulk of the bank loans oustanding at the beginning of this year were production loans, not real estate loans. These production loans comprise credit extended to finance the growing and marketing of crops; breeding, raising, and fattening of livestock; purchasing of equipment, etc. Banks held $35,378,000 of these production loans at the beginning of 1953; compared with $7,325,000 held by Production Credit Associations, and $8,548,000 held by the Farmers Home Administration.

The remaining $16,039,000 in farm loans outstanding in banks on January 1 was made up of farm mortgages. All of the $23,515,000 held by Federal Land Banks was mortgages; with $6,927,000 in mortgages being held by insurance companies, and $14,727,000 held by the Farmers Home Administration.

Mr. Ogburn reported that all but 4 of the 229 insured commercial banks in Alabama served agriculture by making credit available to farmers during 1952.

AMERICAN BUSINESS TO LEVEL OFF, SAYS EARLE RAUBER

University, Ala. — American business has "passed the crest of the biggest and longest boom in history" and we are now in the first stages "of a period of contraction."

The Director of Research and Vice-President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, Earle L. Rauber, in making this statement at the Alabama Bankers Association parley here this morning tacked on one big qualifying statement.

The whole picture could be easily upset by later figures since no forecasting device is fool-proof and nothing is as unpredictable as a human being, he advised.

Rauber's speech concluded the program of the seventh annual study conference of the ABA held each summer at the University of Alabama. Registration this year reached a peak of 166. George Denniston, of Mobile, presided at the parley.

The economist, a former professor of economics at A.P.I., summed up the business outlook this way:

"In agriculture, there is a state of overproduction resulting in falling prices.

"In industry, there has been a state of potential overproduction now becoming actual in many lines, also putting a downward pressure on the prices of finished goods.

"Industry like agriculture, is also caught in a situation in which costs remain high and intractable. There results a serious squeeze on profits, and profits are the motive force and drives the wheels of our our whole economy. At nearly all points the condition of industry is coming to parallel that of agriculture."

There is, however, Rauber said, one point wherein industry differs.

"In the case of agriculture, there is more or less inelastic demand. People do have to eat and wear clothes. Purchases of industrial products — especially high-priced durable goods — are distinctly postponable.

"There are precisely the lines in which there is now the greatest tendency to overproduction; in which there are the most burdensome inventories; in which competitin is the sharpest; which are chiefly dependent upon consumer credit financing.

"Any tendency for the economy to slump can be expected to affect these lines first of all. From them the effects can ramify into other lines of business."

The economist said that although all this is not bound to happen, it could happen.

"The government by reviving old tricks or inventing new ones, can give the economy a continuous inflationary bias that may forestall any serious recessionary trends," he said.

A moral was drawn for the bankers by Rauber who told them to employ their recources only in the soundest types of loans and investments and to sedulously curb any yearning to take a flier in speculative ventures for the sake of a quick and easy profit.

343 LIQUOR STILLS DESTROYED LAST MONTH

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama ABC Enforcement Chief Joseph T. Burton says law enforcement officers destroyed 343 illicit liquor stills in the state last month.

He said the stills were capable of producing 73,692 gallons of moonshine whisky per month, which would have brought $368,460 had it been sold at current prices.

In addition to the destroyed stills, 267 persons were arrested and 445 cases made in court.

SUN DANCES; PEOPLE SCARED

Tucson, Ariz. — Excited and frightened people swamped the Weather Bureau here recently with reports that the sun was jumping and wiggling and turning green. The explanation; Dust was rising to a height of 35,000 feet, 200 miles to the west. The dust caused the odd color and an inversion air layer made the sun seem to go through surprising motions.

New Doctor Draft Act Told By Selective Service

The new Doctor Draft Law, (Public Law 84, 83rd Congress), has been extended for two years but doctors with 21 months' service will be exempt, according to Colonel J. T. Johnson, Jr., Acting State Director of Selective Service. Colonel Johnson said that Congress extended the authority for inducting special registrants to meet the requirements of the Armed Forces. It is estimated that 7,707 physicians, 4,552 dentists, anld 376 veterinary officers will be required during the next two fiscal years to take care of replacements.

Colonel Johnson stated that the following principal changes were made in the Doctor Draft Law, which was signed by the President on June 29th:

1. The law extends the present doctor draft law for a period of two years, to July 1, 1955.

2. It changes the criteria for Priorities I and II by allowing credit for service performed both prior to AND subsequent to completion of or release from the program or course of instruction.

3. It reduces to 17 months the existing requirement of 21 months for Priority IV (a doctor in Priority II who has not been ordered to active duty who has completed 17 months of active service, will now be placed in Priority IV.)

4. Provides that persons who may hereafter be ordered to active duty shall serve the following periods of active duty if they have had prior service:

Less than 9 months' prior service —must serve 24 months; more than 9 months' service but less than 12 months' service — must serve 21 months; more than 12 months' service but less than 15 months' service—must serve 18 months; more than 15 months' service but less than 17 months' service—must serve 15 months.

5. The new law recognizes periods of service prior to September 2, 1945, in the Armed Forces of countries allied with the United States during World War II.

6. The new law extends to July 1, 1955, the period during which physicians and dentists ordered to active duty may receive the extra $100 month in pay. It also provides this same rate of pay to veterinarians beginning July 1, 1953.

7. The new law extends to July 1, 1955, the authority of the President to recall doctors, dentists, and veterinarians to active duty without their consent.

8. The new law prevents the induction or reinduction, except in time of war or National emergency declared by the Congress, of any special registrant who has had 21 months of active service since September 16, 1940.

9. The law is retroactive and requires the discharge or release of persons who would not have been ordered to active duty or inducted, had the provisions of this law been in effect at the time of their order to active duty or induction.

Colonel Johnson stated that no doctors or dentists in Alabama have been ordered for induction in the month of July, but that he expects a call for doctors for the month of August.

HINTS FOR TRAINERS UNDER KOREAN BILL

Montgomery, Ala.—Veterans Administration today listed some helpful hints for veterans planning to start training this Fall under the Korean GI Bill.

First and foremost, said Harley A. Smith, Alabama Regional Office Manager of the VA, a veteran should give plenty of thought to his choice of a training goal, and to the program that will enable him to reach it. Under the law, he may be allowed to change his program no more than once, so it's to his advantage to choose right in the first place.

The goal — which must be selected before training can begin—may be educational such as earning a degree; professional, such as law or medicine, or vocational, such as becoming a carpenter or television repairman.

Veterans who are not sure of their objectives may receive vocational counseling from the VA.

Next, Smith reminded veterans to take along enough money of their own to tide them over for at least the first two months of training. It takes about that long, under the Korean GI Bill, for a veteran's first GI allowance check to reach him.

The reason is that the allowances are paid some time after the end of each month of training completed. But before VA can make a payment, it must receive a certification—signed by the veteran and his school or establishment — stating that he actually was in training during that month.

Allowance checks usually go out within 20 days after VA gets the certification.

The monthly GI allowances are the only payments made under the Korean GI Bill. With the help of these checks, veteran-trainees must meet all their own training expenses—tuition, fees, books and the like.

As another point to be kept in mind, Smith urged veterans to check over carefully their application forms, and make sure they're completely filled out, before mailing them to VA. A photostat or certified copy of separation papers must accompany the applications. Incomplete applications can mean unnecessary delays, Smith said.

Veterans who know what their training progrm and objective are must list these items on the application. Those who don't, and who want VA counseling as an aid in making up their minds, merely leave these two sections blank and, instead, will in the section that requests counseling.

Smith has one final reminder for veterans who know what courses they want to take. If it's possible, these veterans should make their own arrangements for gaining admittance to the school of their choice, before they file their applications.

STRAIGHT AND NARROW

Montgomery — The straight and narrow path can lead to trouble!

Sixty-one percent of Alabama's fatal motor vehicle accidents last year occurred on straight roads, according to L. B. Sullivan, Director of Public Safety.

Unfavorable road conditions, such as a wet, muddy, snowy, or icy surface, were reported in fewer than one out of 10 accidents, Sullivan said.

He listed Alabama's 1952 traffic toll at 782 dead and 27,370 injured in 174,725 accidents of all severities.

NET RETAIL SALES BUSINESS INCREASES IN CHILTON COUNTY

(By Ed Brown)
University News Bureau

University, Ala. — Business News, semi-monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research at the University reports that retail sales in Alabama for the month of May were just one per cent above a year ago and unchanged from the high level maintained since last October.

Eight of the 15 retail categories showed increases over last year with filling stations listing the biggest gain, 8 per cent, as gasoline topped 60 million gallons for the third straight month.

Percentage of change of net retail sales for Chilton County from April to May 1953 was an increase of 4.3 per cent. As compared with May '52 a 21.5 per cent decrease was shown for the County.

Throughout the state hardware and farm implement dealers reported a 6 per cent increase, while sales by tabulating equipment concerns recorded increases of four per cent.

Retail prices in the nation advanced fractionally from April to May but were less than one per cent high than in May, 1952, the Bureau reports.

Nine Cents On Dollar Cost Of Welfare Program

Montgomery, Ala. — State Welfare Commissioner Bill Dorrough says that Alabama spent less per case per month to administer its welfare program in 1952 than most other states.

Dorrough said that 91 cents of every Alabama welfare dollar goes directly to needy people. Alabama's cost figures are far under the national average for all four federally matched assistance categories and are the lowest in the nation for aid to the permanently and totally disabled, according to figures from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The national average monthly administrative cost per case for aid to the permanent and totally disabled was $7.15, while Alabama's figure was only $2.03. South Dakota was high, spending $15.59.

For old-age assistance administrative costs Alabama spent $1.61 per case per month, while the national average was $2.62.

Dorrough said that aid to dependent children costs per case for Alabama were $3.43 as compared with $7.14 for the nation. For aid to blind, Alabama's cost was $2.51 while that for the nation was $4.06.

Preliminary figures for July, 1953, indicate that only 5.18 per cent of Alabama's population received welfare aid that month.

Dorrough said that stricter policies had enabled the state to reduce its welfare caseload by almost 12 per cent since January 1951.

SPARKLER SETS $50,000 FIRE

San Francisco, Calif.—A lighted sparkler, tossed by two boys into a cardboard box, set a fire in an Oakland market, which took 35 firemen to bring under control. Result: 22 children injured, one man half-blinded and a Chinese market badly burned. Financial damages $50,000.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

After DeSoto had visited Mexico and Peru, removing from the Indians great stores of gold and precious metals, he returned to Spain with his vast fortune and married a beautiful young lady of Spanish aristocracy. He was sent by Emperor Charles V. to conquer Florida, the name applied by the Spanish explorers to the mainland of the continent.

As soon as it was known through Spain and Portugal that DeSoto was organizing an expedition to explore the mainland of the new world, volunteers from both countries clamored to join the party. The expedition sailed for Cuba, April 8, 1538. The fleet included nine vessels, five large ships and four small ones. It landed on the shores of Tampa Bay, Fla.

DeSoto expedition which landed in Florida included more than 200 cavaliers on prancing steeds. They were accompanied by greyhounds and fierce bloodhounds, which were used to chase and capture the natives. In addition to soldiers, there were workmen, artisans and scientific men. They brought hogs, cattle and mules. The expedition was a failure from every standpoint, but it made a bloody page in American history.

Scanning the NEWS

J. B. MATTHEWS, a professional Communist investigator, who is employed by Sen. Joe McCarthy's investigating committee, has kicked up a row on Capital Hill that is not likely to die down quickly and, many believe, may cause a tremendous explosion when the full force of the controversy reaches the general public.

Matthews, writing in the July American Mercury, made some shocking charges against the Protestant clergy that they form "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States." He even went so far as to name the figure 7,000.

His sweeping charge was based on no given evidence. He did show that a relatively small number of Protestant clergymen in the U.S. have backed "peace petitions" that were circulated by Communist organization, but were more or less disguised.

Washington observers are saying that his charges are so sweeping and ridiculous they appear amusing until one stops to think about them. And prominent Protestant clergymen are protesting the statement to anyone and everyone who will listen. They are pointing out that men of pacifist faith are sometimes hoodwinked by cunning propagandists, but it does not make them fellow travelers.

By the same token, they report that because a Springfield, Mass., Catholic clergyman visited Moscow in 1944 and returned to repeat Russian propaganda does not mean that the Catholic clergy as a whole, or any part of it, are fellow travelers.

The explosion that has followed Matthews' article is having its political repercussions, also. Political observers are pointing out that Senator McCarthy immediately came to the defense of his investigator. This was ill-advised, observers are saying, since the Wisconsin senator is a prominent Catholic layman.

But more important, it has caused the first split within the McCarthy committee itself. Three members of the committee, Senators McClelland of Arkansas, Symington of Missouri and Jackson of Washington, are demanding Matthews' scalp. They may not get it, observers say, but a lively fight is in prospect on the issue.

Matthews article makes an even more ridiculous charge against Protestant clergymen than that of many supporting the Communist apparatus in the U. S. He shows that some Protestant clergymen have objected to the McCarran Act.

What is so ridiculous about this implication, observers say, is that the President of the United States Dwight D. Eisenhower, himself has objected to the McCarran Act and at the moment is insisting upon its amendment.

This unpleasant and unsupported article by a paid investigator who is supported by Senator McCarthy may have more far reaching results than he or anyone else thought.

● Senator Aiken of Vermont, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, recently made a prediction that most Washington observers are willing to accept. He predicts the Republican administration will face the voters next year with a farm price support program about like that now on the statute books. He thinks there may be some changes in the law, but does not expect major revision.

"There probably will be an effort to place permanent price supports on the books, but I think congress will want to keep its finger on that situation," he says.

REPORT MADE ON STATE HIGHWAY CHECK

Montgomery, Ala. — State Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said that of 7,535 trucks checked in Alabama from January 5 through July 31, a total of 985 were found to be in violation of carrier law regulations.

Sullivan said 754 vehicles were found to be overloaded, and an other 30 vehicles were overwide. He said 66 truck drivers had no licenses.

There were 28 cases of speeding, 20 haulers had improper lights and 16 improper brakes. There were 15 cases of reckless driving.

SHOT CLIMBING FENCE

Emmitsburg, Md.—Maurice Kellholtz, 57-year-old retired restaurant man, was fatally wounded when his shotgun, which he had carried with him on a fishing trip, accidentally went off as he was climbing a fence. His wife and son found him, fatally wounded in the abdomen, near the fence, after they went in search of him when he failed to return home for dinner.

Well, school starts Monday week so it is about time for that annual school joke. The teacher asked the pretty young girl if she could think of anything sadder than a man without a country? "Yes," returned the PYG, "a country without a man."

You can just call him "Beachcomber" Boockholdt now. Howard and family have just returned after spending a week on the beach at Gulf Shores. Guess he was getting in shape to take on those some ump-steen thousand school children who will start marching back to school week after next.

Speaking of vacations reminds us that Lester and Glennie Jones have been out of town for a week, also on the Gulf of Mexico. Lester, who is of the Big-Four Joneses, says that the definition of a beach is, "a place where people lie in the sand—and lie, and lie."

By-the-way, we had another birth in this column this week. Tom Rogers who is assistant manager at the Ellis Tourist Court, and his wife are also grandparents. They left this week to view their new offspring in Long Beach, Calif. This is their first grandchild, and it's a boy, and he was born August 17th, to Mr. and Mrs. William Greiving. He will be half grown when they see him having to go all the way to California. Congratulations, anyway!

John Wayne Bosworth is singing a happy tune this week because he "Named The Tune," last week. John Wayne, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bosworth of Thorsby and the favorite grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor, won a hundred dollars when he named the tune on the television program by the same name. If his daddy wasn't a banker we would try to borrow five bucks.

On the first day of school, the teacher was asking each of the first-graders to tell his name and what he wanted to be when he grew up. One little tow-head spoke up importantly—"I'm Jimmy. When I grow up I'm gonna be a lion tamer. I'll have lots of fierce lions and tigers, and I'll walk in the cage and—" he hesitated, then continued. "But, of course, I'll have my mother with me."

At the same time James Dennis was re-nominated as Secretary-Treasurer of the group as was Carson Boockholdt to serve a second term as Vice-President of the group.

The chairman of last Tuesday night's meeting announced that the nominations would also be thrown open to the general meeting of the Farm Bureau next Wednesday morning. He also stated that the Board of Directors for the coming year would also be elected at that same meeting.

The Board of Directors meeting was opened by a report of President Kincaid on his recent trip to Auburn and his activities while attending the annual Farm Bureau School.

County P.-T.A. Council Holds First Meeting

The County Council of the 17 schools of Chilton County, held it's summer meeting, Friday, August 14, in the library of Chilton County High School, with the president, Mrs. R. C. Williams, presiding.

Rev. Marvin Vickers brought an inspiring devotional to the group. Mrs. Williams welcomed the group and commended the faculty of Chilton County on working for higher degrees, during the summer months.

She defined a Council which is composed of elective officers; chairman of standing committees of the Council; presidents of all local P.-T.A.'s and three delegates from each local; the principals and superintendent of education. A Council is to guide, advise and encourage local leaders and units. The school of instruction, was planned for the middle of September, depending upon the date field workers from the Montgomery office can come up.

Also the three yearly meetings for the year, October (place to be announced); January, Chilton County High School, and April, Concord.

"We labor not for reward, but labor for the love of those we love," quotes Mrs. Williams, and how true that is in P.-T.A. work, as there is no more sacred duty than guiding the lives of the younger generation. There are 920 local associations in Alabama with a membership of 156,879.

James N. Dennis Attends Meet In Huntsville

Huntsville, Ala. — One hundred and fifty Pfister Associated Growers, Inc. hybrid seed corn dealers, research men and members of the Extension Service from Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky ended a two-day convention at Huntsville, Southern headquarters of the firm, Saturday.

The convention was preceded by a conference of research men of the firm from all research stations of the U. S.

L. M. Camp, PAG research director of Aurora, Ill., took dealers and other guests through the various steps of plant breeding in simple terms at the opening luncheon meeting of the group on Friday. Fred Vial, research associate in Huntsville, previewed what is new in variety development, including PAG 486 which he termed the "answer to a lot of demand for an improved yellow corn" for the Southern area, and PAG 636, a white hybrid, developed as a still further improvement over PAG 631 and PAG 620.

Highlight of Saturday's session was recognition of the top dealers in promotion of sales of round grains.

Attending from this county was James N. Dennis from Dennis Farm Supply.

Something New And Different At The Fair

There will be many and different kinds of displays and booths at this year's Chilton County Fair and one of those that will stand out as being one of the most unique and different from any that has ever been presented will be the one presented by the Chilton County News.

The News booth will be just inside the big door between the big amusement tents and the eat and drink concessions. We strongly urge that everyone who attends the Fair to be sure and not miss the Chilton County News booth.

We, of the Chilton County News Staff, are mighty proud to be able to take an active part in this year's exposition as we know that everyone else is also. The Chilton County News exposition booth will be something that we are very proud of and we hope that you, our readers, and friends, will also enjoy. Be sure to come by and see us at the Fair.

Clanton-Sylacauga In Little League Tilt

The highly-tauted Sylacauga Little League baseball team will face the Clanton Little Leaguers at the Clanton City Park at 7:30 Monday night.

Although the Clanton team has a record that most any outfit would be proud to possess, the Sylacauga Little League boys also have a high average of games won and are pointing at chalking up another score in their favor. The Clanton team has won seven games and lost only four, and these by only one run. Coaches of both clubs, however, feel that this Monday night's game is a toss up.

At the same time it was also announced that the president of the Sylacauga Little League, Mr. Rayfield, will also be on hand to speak to the public in the interest of getting the Little League organized in Clanton for another season. This past season has proved highly popular both to the younger boys of Clanton as well as to their parents and many are hoping that the Little League will again operate in Clanton.

Members of this year's club include Tommy and Jimmy Tiffin, Larry Culpepper, Buddy Vines, Clay Carroll, Billy Miller, Billy Estes, Johnny Cathey, Jimmy Dennis, Charles Turner, Don Bulger, Kenneth Ray, Johnny Windham, McArthur Downing and others. Wayne Little was also a member and pitched the only no-hitter ball game just before he broke his arm and was forced out for the season.

Garnett, Kan.—The fossiles which scientists recently unearthed in a pasture near here may prove to be the "oldest of the fossils ever found." Four skeletons, two with skulls, go by the jawbreaking scientific name of Petrolacosauris Kansensis, but are commonly known as "Rock Lake Lizards." The fossils were described as important "missing links" between the reptiles and amphibians of 230 to 250 million years ago.

BELL SYSTEM BEGINS NEW RADIO RELAY ROUTE

Constructive forces have begun work on a new wireless communication highway spanning about 400 miles between Atlanta, Montgomery and Jackson. A joint undertaking of the Long Lines Department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, the system will consist of thirteen intermediate radio-relay stations and sending and receiving equipment at Jackson, Montgomery and Atlanta.

One of the stations on the new radio-relay system will be located at Montgomery on the central office building. The tower at Montgomery will be 87½ feet high.

Radio relay is one of the Bell System's latest types of carrier. Messages are beamed on super-high frequencies, called microwaves, from one station to the next, instead of being transmitted over conventional wires and cables. The new system will connect with the Bell System's present network of microwave systems, coaxial cables, and other facilities.

A station is a steel tower and a separate building which houses equipment to amplify the microwaves. The building will be controlled remotely from a telephone some distance away. The horn-shaped antennas atop the tower will pick up microwave signals beamed from the station at Equality, Alabama, 32 miles East, and send them on to the next tower at Lownsboro, Alabama, 20 miles West. The procedure is reversed for East bound traffic.

Scheduled for completion early in 1954, the new system will provide six channels initially. One channel in each direction will be used for long distance messages, an addition of about 150 circuits initially. Two Westbound channels will provide for television, and one channel in each direction will be reserved for protection.

Gates Swing Open Tuesday—

Chilton County Fair Gets A Last Minute Checking Over

Maid Of Cotton Contest Another Fair Highlight

One of the bright spots of the 1953 Chilton County Fair, which opens Tuesday at the Clanton Airport, will be the Maid of Cotton Contest.

And one of the many bright spots for the contestants during the contest will be a dinner for all the entries Friday noon at the Cafeteria at the Chilton County High School. At that time more than a hundred guests will gather to watch the three judges as they put the girls through their paces and make their selection.

And another bright spot of this contest will be that same night when all of the contestants will again be presented to the fair crowd at the Fair grounds and watch as the girls make awards to the producers of first bales of cotton ginned by Chilton County ginners this season.

The girls will first get together next Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. at the City Grill along with the county home agents and Mrs. Lois Mims, the program chairman. This will be an informal affair.

At the Friday noon affair the contestants will be introduced to the guests by Mrs. Joe Mullins. The girls will be dressed in all-cotton, street-length dresses. This meeting is being co-sponsored by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce and the Chilton County Farm Bureau.

Along with being the Chilton County Maid of Cotton, there goes the possibility of many prizes and lots of travel. And of course, there are a few requirements: Contestants must be unmarried and between the ages of 19 and 25, their 19th birthday may come as late as December 15. They must be photogenic, 5 feet, five inches tall, perfect health and willing to take part in the Alabama contest to be conducted in Birmingham in October.

Carnival To Start One Day Early

As men and machinery work feverishly to get roads built, the airport and it's huge hangar cleaned up, Chilton County's farmers and merchants alike are working just as hard to get their exhibits and products in shape for the County Fair's big opening that will take place next Tuesday.

Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle announced yesterday that everything is being done as fast as possible to insure the comfort of everyone that will have anything to do with the big exposition either as spectator or as exhibitor. The judge stated that plenty of water supply will be on hand for livestock as well as humans and that the County Engineering Department, under the direction of County Engineer Bullington, will have the airport road in first class shape.

Even as this announcement was being made men were moving supplies for the big show to the exposition grounds. During the coming week end huge canvass tents will arrive and erection will begin immediately. At the same time the big rids and games of the Lee Amusement Company will be coming into Clanton and they will be operating a day earlier than the Fair is actually scheduled to begin.

Members of the County Agent's staff are also working in high gear as final touches are added to plans for the many farm showings and contests.

A check with many of the farmers of the county who plan to show animals finds these exhibitors grooming and cleaning stock in readiness for movement to the Fair grounds

Wallace Headley, General Chairman of the Fair, along with M. R. Glasscock, co-chairman, are checking final plans and have announced that everything seems to be in readiness for one of the biggest crowds ever to attend a Chilton County Fair.

Miss Mary Louise Wright, Home Demonstration Agent, reports that the Maid of Cotton Contest has created a great amount of interest among the many girls that have entered the contest. At the same time Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Johnnie Martin, has announced that several girls have already entered the Dairy Maid Contest and that interest in this event is running high.

All in all, according to the general opinion of all the Fair Committee this year's exposition will be one of the most successful in the history of the County Fair in Chilton County. Besides all of the farm and commercial exhibits that will line the big airport hangar, many other exhibits will also be shown. There will be booths by the schools of the county, booths by 4-H, FFA, and Home Demonstration Clubs among others.

SIXTEEN NATIONS WARN REDS

The sixteen countries which fought under the United Nations flag in Korea recently joined in an agreement which pledged them to jointly resist any new Communist aggression in Korea. The declaration bound all sixteen to act as one in the event of a breach of the truce in Korea.

In addition to this pledge, the agreement also warned the Communists that any new attack in Korea on their part would probably involve the Chinese mainland in hostilities This warning is an obvious threat to employ Chinese Nationalists and other forces in operations against Chinese Communist targets.

The agreement also includes a warning to the Chinese Communists on aggression in other theaters. The sixteen nations expressed a firm belief that the armistice in Korea must not be allowed to jeopardize peace in other parts of Asia. This is an obvious warning to the Communists against extending the war in Indo-China.

The joint agreement, which was signed in Washington in July, was revealed only in recent days. The unity of the sixteen nations involved, including the United States, Great Britain and France, is a formidable warning to the Chinese.

Whether the sixteen countries involved can make effective their warning to the Chinese on Indo-China remains to be seen. But the agreement certainly makes it obvious that the Chinese will pay a heavy price for further aggressions in Korea. Even the Communists will hesitate a long time before initiating general hostilities with the sixteen nations in the United Nations which have issued this declaration.

AMERICANISM — AN EXAMPLE

Recently the American Car and Foundry Company over $22,000,000 to the U. S. Army. The company explained it had saved that much money in filling government contracts for delivery of armored vehicles.

The refund was entirely voluntary. There was nothing in the production contract which required the company to refund anything Yet the firm was able to increase efficiency of production, cutting unit costs, and thus was able to pass on the savings to the Army.

This example is one every American, and every U. S. business, should think about. An army spokesman said shortly after the refund was announced that it was the largest refund of its kind the Ordinance Corps of the Army had ever received.

If one company can save over 22 millions on its contracts alone, what would be the result if most of them would effect savings? The total figure would be an impressive one, if every business did its part. After all, it's in the best interests of the businesses affected since they are helping to pay the defense bill anyhow, with their taxes.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By— R. L. SCOTT

The State Conservation Department, under the supervision of Auburn's noted fish culturist, H. S. Swingle, recently completed a fish population study on beautiful Lake Mitchell. Final results will not be determined for some time but this we knew upon compietion of field work: Mitchell offers as many fish per acre as any other similar body of water in the state. Fish in Mitchell have an abundance of food and show normal growth. The number of rough fish, such as Gar, Carp, Sucker, etc., are not too great for a healthy balance with the game fish. Our Smallmouth Bass, very often confused with the Northern Smallmouth, are actually a very close cousin but a slight difference in make up puts him in another specie, which we should be proud to own and that is Alabama Spotted Bass. I. B. Byrd, Principal Biologist, Conservation Department, points out the differences in our Smallmouth Bass and the Northern Smallmouth and still another close cousin, the Kentucky Spotted Bass. Scale and fin count, coloration and other general biological differences show an entirely different specie. Of course, some of us will continue to refer to our Bass as Smallmouth and we will not be incorrect if we qualify our fish as a Southern Smallmouth.

The results of the field work show that Lake Mitchell offers the sport fisherman as good fishing, if not better, than Guntersville and some of the other highly publicized lakes in the State.

Some of the fishing camp operators and sportsmen seemed to be a bit concerned over the wholesale slaughter of so many fish during the survey. This is about the best and nearly accurate method to determine existing conditions in a large body of water. Actually, only about two acres were used in making the survey and the valuable scientific information received was well worth the fish taken in the study. You can rest assured that if the Conservation Department sanctions a project involving fish and wild life it will be in the best interest of all concerned.

Hot summer fishing, the slow and spotty kind, lingers on. Much inactivity around some of the fishing camps show that only a few fishermen are willing to buck this weather. There are always those that go when they can, regardless of how many miles or how hot the sun, and these few occasionally come in with a nice string.

The more productive methods in use on the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes as of this week are as follows: Crappie and Bream are taking live minnows and crickets about 36 inches deep from along the rocky banks. Stripes are being taken about the mouths of creeks with large silver spoons. Top water plugs will take the Bass out of the weed beds. Below are listed some recent catches.

Lake Martin—

Lake Hill Inn, Highway 291 Bridge, near Alexander City, reports: Merrell Bishop, Alexander City, used a spinning outfit and a Hulla Popper on Elkahatchee Creek and boated a 7 pound, 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

Kowaliga Beach Resort, Kowaliga Bridge, near Alexander City, reports: Tommy Thompson, III, 500 Meadowbrook Road, Alexander City fished with worms at Wicker Point and hung into his best catch of the year, a 11 1-2 ounce Shellcracker. Young Tommy is the son of our fishing contest Judge, Thomas H. Thompson, Jr.

Lake Lay—

Paul A. Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: John L. Shields, 2106 Francis Avenue, Birmingham, had good luck with red worms down about the mouth of Spring Creek when he caught a nice 30 ounce Shellcracker.

Lake Mitchell—

Mims Ferry Fishing Camp, below Lay Dam near Clanton, reports: Mrs. Lorene Oglesby, Route 5, Clanton, also tried red worms to lure a 14 ounce Bluegill in her boat. Mrs. Oglesby fished near Mims Ferry landing and caught several other nice Bream.

Lake Jordan—

Mrs. C. F. Starns, Manager Blackwell's Fishing Lodge, Shoal Creek, near Holtville, reports: C. P. Dick, Route 1, Elmore, used a white Peck's Popping Bug as bait to snag a fighting 4 pound, 8 ounce Smallmouth Bass. Julius S. Berdinka, 18 West Southmont Drive, Montgomery, fished near Blackwell's Lodge with a Hulla Popper and on his string of big one's was a 5 pound, 8 ounce Largemouth Bass.

New Chemical Plant Will Be Erected

A new chemical plant will be erected near New Orleans, to add substantially to America's supply of glycerine and epon resins, Richard C. McCurdy, President of Shell Chemical Corporation, announced today. Construction starts immediately, McCurdy said.

On completion, scheduled for late 1954, the new plant will produce allyl chloride and epichlorohydrin. Its output will be used to increase Shell Chemical's glycerine production by 25,000,000 pounds per year, McCurdy stated, and to make available substantial additional quantities of epichlorohydrin and epon. It is the first step in Shell Chemical's current glycerine expansion program.

The new Shell Chemical plant is to be constructed near Shell Oil Company's Norco refinery, which is presently undergoing an expansion program to increase its facilities by 50%, including the addition of a new catalytic cracking unit to be one of the world's largest.

The Norco Chemical plant, an entirely new site for Shell Chemical, is designed to operate in conjunction with the Shell Oil Company refinery there and will use propylene and other feed stocks it produces. Employing about 150 workers initially, it is expected to play a major part in the continuing growth of the New Orleans industrial area.

Glycerine, an important chemical for both peace and war, goes into the manufacture of such diverse products as paints, cellophane, cigarettes, toothpaste, cosmetics and explosives. Prior to 1948 it was derived entirely from animal and vegetable fats as a by-product of the soap industry, and fluctuations of supply made industrial planning difficult. In that year Shell Chemical produced the country's first commercial quantities of synthetic glycerine, from petroleum raw materials, nad now supplies more than 20% of the American market.

Epichlorohydrin is a vital component of many chemical products, including Shell Chemical's epon resins, which are becoming increasingly important in the surface coatings and structural resins field.

All Shell products are distributed in Chilton, Shelby, Autauga and Elmore counties by the R. C. Williams Oil Company.

From the Windom Reporter, Windom, Minnesota: No businessman in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name being mentioned somewhere in its columns. So says the American Bankers Magazine. This does not mean, continues this writer, that you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in every issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned if you do not use more than a 2-line space. A stranger picking up a paper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser. The man who does not advertise his business does an injustice to himself and to his town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising businessman.

From The Lincoln Times, Lincolnton, N. C.: You'll just have to put up with Grandma if she's doing a little gloating. Modern researchers and modern housewives have just discovered what she has known all her life . . . and what, in fact, John Heywood remarked in 1546 . . . that "The green new broom sweeps clean."

Laboratory study reveals that the new broom does better than the old, beaten-up job because broom-corn (from which all efficient brooms are made) has hundreds of invisible "claws" on the sweeping end. These claws pick up the dust, dirt and lint and shove it along where you want it to go. A broom is "old" when these claws get worn down, and these scientific laboratory tests show that a new broom does as much sweeping in two swipes as an old broom does in seven or eight.

And the gals who are just beginning to keep house on their own, we hear, have discovered that the old-fashioned broom is first-aid to the new-fangled vacuum cleaner. It gets into corners and cracks and crannies more vigorously. It takes care of the litter-cut paper, hunks of crayon, pencil stubs, lollypop sticks and broken toys on the playroom floor after a rainy day; snippings and pins and threat in the sewing room; shavings, bits of wood, nails and screws in Dad's workshop—the things that do not agree with the digestion of the suction-sweeper.

We mention all this just so you won't be too surprised at the return of the horse-and-buggy. But don't expect fringe on the top of your new surrey It's unsanitary.

Keep Pulling

When your travel on the highway
Has become almost a fear,
And you've stalled up the hillside
With your engine out o'gear,
Never let yourself roll backward
And consider life a flop;
If you only keep on pulling
You are bound to reach the top.
It's sort o'hard to keep on smiling
When your going has bogged down,
But you can find a helping lover
If you only search around.
It may take a lot of sweating
Your true worth to ever prove,
But if you only just keep pulling
Something sure is bound to move.
Life is not all made of winning,
For we often have to lose
Ere we know the sense of value
And the way 'tis best to choose.
So there ain't no sense in kicking,
And no sense in playing dead,
For the fellow who keeps pulling
;Is the guy that gets ahead.

DeSoto expeditron which landed in Florida included more than 200 cavaliers on prancing steeds. They were accompanied by greyhounds and fierce bloodhounds, which were used to chase and capture the natives. In addition to soldiers, there were workmen, artisans and scientific men. They brought hogs, cattle and mules. The expedition was a failure from every standpoint, but it made a bloody page in American history.

THORSBY NEWS

ESTELLE HAYES

Thorsby Institute News—

Rev. and Mrs. I. A. Hart returned Monday from a vacation trip to Decatur, Ga., where they visited a nephew. Mrs. Hart will be back in the office this week.

A parent in another state wrote the following article on "Small School Values."

"Our children formerly attended a large consolidated school and had no more advantages and many more disadvantages than they have here. One of our reasons for coming here to live was to take advantage of the small country school.

We found our childrens' education was much behind that of their classmates here. They had trouble catching up. The primary purpose of a school should be education, not sports, music or other extras. They should not be eliminated, but should be secondary.

Also we like the personal touch to all the studies and activities here. Where, except in a small school, could the parents, friends and relatives turn out, with a personal interest, to every Christmas and graduation exercise? Every child from the smallest to the oldest has a definite part in the exercises. A child might attend a large school for years without appearing on the program. Children like to have their work and effort appreciated by the people they know and see every day, not a group of strangers.

We also think there is too much regimentation in larger schools which, of course, cannot be avoided. Every minute of their work or play is planned for them. There is not enough opportunity for initiative and self-reliance which we think is lacking in our children today.

Many people do not realize the advantages of a small town school. Many of our famous people came from small towns and showed an integrity and honesty too often lacking today.

Wed In Candlelight Ceremony Sunday

One of the loveliest of the late summer weddings was that of Miss Peggy Louise McCary and James William Scott of Leeds, Ala. The ceremony was solemnized at the Baptist Church in Verbena, Ala., with the Rev. Andrew L. Dennis, pastor of the church, officiating at the double ring ceremony on August 16, at half past five in the afternoon.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burl McCary of Mitchell Dam. Mr. Scott's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Preston Scott of Leeds, Ala.

The church was beautifully decorated with southern smilax, palms, white floral arrangements and candlelight. Centering the church chancel which was artistically arranged with wedding greenery, was a handsome madallion composed of white gladioli spikes and white chrysanthemums framed with palm leaves and other wedding greenery. On each side were seven-branched wrought-iron candelabra entwined with similax and tied with white satin bows. The seven-branched candelabra were used again in the chancel of greenery adding more candle glow to this lovely scene.

Illuminated tapers in wrought-iron holders garlanded with fern and tied with white satin bows marked the pews of the middle isle of the church.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Erle Ellis of Clanton, accompanied by Mrs. Ronny Smith of Coffee Springs, Ala. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Smith played a melody of traditional wedding music. Mrs. Ellis sang, "How Do I Love Thee," by Edward Lippe. During the ceremony, as the bride and groom knelt on a white satin-covered kneeling bench. Mrs. Ellis sang, "The Lord's Prayer," by Albert Hay Molotte. Among the wedding melodies were: Lohengrin by Wagner, and the Wedding March from A Mid-Summer Night's Dream by Felix Mendelshon.

Mrs. James Minor of Mobile attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a dress of daffodil yellow nylon net over yellow taffeta fashioned with a strapless molded bodice worn with a short stole and featuring a bouffant skirt of waltz length. A large butterfly bow of the material was tied in center-back waistline. Her matching linen pumps completed her dress ensemble.

She carried a cascading bouquet of purple astors and yellow roses tied with purple satin streamers and wore a matching bandeau in her hair.

The bride's other attendants were bride's matron, Mrs. Harold Poe, of Birmingham, a sister of the groom, Miss Mary Alexander of Birmingham, Miss Angelyn Porch of Alexander City and Miss Elizabeth Gibson of Sheffield. They were gowned in dresses like that of the matron of honor and carried identical bouquets.

The flower girl was little Miss Nelda Minor of Mobile, a niece of the bride. Her dress was of yellow nylon net over yellow taffeta, featuring a bertha collar and full skirt. She carried a purple satin basket filled with yellow rose petals.

Hall Poe of Birmingham, a nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. He wore a white linen suit and carried the ring on a crown of white carnations.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was styled with a fitted bodice of white chantilly lace which came to a point in the front and back. The sweetheart neckline was edged with seed pearls. Her long sleeves came to a calla lily point over her wrist. The bouffant skirt fashioned of nylon net over slipper satin fell into a cathedral train of net. Her finger length veil of French illusion cascaded from a demi-hat edged with ruffles of Chantilly lace and seed pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white sweetheart roses showered with fleur d' amour and stephanotis, centered with a white orchid and tied with white satin ribbon streamers.

Mr. Scott served his son as best man. Groomsmen were: J. T. Martin, Harlin Mitchell, Claudie Bailey and Jimmy Little, all of Leeds, Ala.

The mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of coffee-brown linen lace over taffeta, with matching hat. Her corsage was a bronze orchid.

The groom's mother was attractively attired in a dress of mauve crepe and white hat. She wore a purple orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held on the beautiful lawn at the home of the bride.

Seven-branched wrought-iron candelabra with burning tapers were placed among the natural beauty of the garden forming an attractive background for the receiving line consisting of Mrs. McCary, Mrs. Scott, the bride and groom.

The upper edge of the lawn was outlined with lummous wrought-iron hurricane lamps. Standards of mixed summer flowers were placed about the lawn among the greenery of growing flowers.

Mrs. James B. McCary, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the glass top table with white summer flowers beneath, where the guests registered in the white leather-bound bride's book.

The lovely wedding ring cake of white embossed in calla lilies of paie pink mounted on a mirrored piaque, centered the glass top wrought-iron bride's table. Illuminated white tapers in silver candelebra and white calla lily mints in silver compotes completed the table appointments.

After the traditional cutting, Mrs. F. D. Nix and Mrs. W. L. Houlditch, aunts of the bride, served the cake. Assisting with the serving were: Misses Sarah Higgins, Hazel Messer, Alice Jo Langston, Martha Geeter and Mrs. John Stockdale.

Serving the green punch from the wrought-iron tables were: Mrs. Robert Graham and Mrs. Herbert Sawyer.

Hurricane lamps outlined a path to the bride's home where the wedding gifts were on display.

Others assisting with the wedding courtesies were: Mrs. A. B. Stanley, Mrs. Irby Deramus, Mrs. Guy Alred, Mrs. Joe Higgins, Mrs. John Hollis, Mrs. R. B. Hill and Mrs. J. B. Fort.

For traveling the bride wore a suit of grey summer wool with Navy accessories and a Navy hat. She wore a white orchid.

After a wedding trip to Gattlingburg, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Scott will be at home in Birmingham.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. John G. Smele and Miss Betty Smele of Chico, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Bush, Miss Martha Jo Bush, Miss Evelyn Gyers, Mrs. J. T. Martin, Miss Laura Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reeves, Judy and Gale Reeves and Miss Jenny Bush, all of Leeds, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. James B. Safety Is No Accident--

Speed Still Main Cause Of Highway Fatalities

Increased driving speeds are causing motor vehicle deaths to climb so fast that the nation is threatened with a record toll of 40,000 fatalities and well over 2,000,000 injuries this year, with even larger lists of victims in prospect in 1954, it was authoritatively estimated today.

To meet the growing threat of speed, the No. 1 killer on the highways, this newspaper has joined with more than 9,000 others from coast to coast in the 1953-54 National Newspaper Highway Safety Program. Its principal purpose is to encourage unrelenting police and court action against speeders and to enlist widespread public cooperation in a determined effort to lower excessive driving speeds that are causing by far the largest percentage of deaths and serious injuries in traffic accidents.

Thomas N. Boate, manager of the famed accident prevention department of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, who is helping the program to present the public the facts about the growing menace of undue speed to all who use the streets and highways, declared fatalities will continue to rise sharply in the rural areas until the speeding evil is checked.

He emphasized that deaths in highway accidents in rural areas increased six percent in 1952 while fatalities in urban areas decreased eight percent. This trend has been continuing in recent years, he said, because average speeds of drivers have risen perceptibly with the advent of more powerful automobiles in the post-war era. More deaths have occurred on rural highways because more drivers are traveling faster at speeds they cannot control in an emergency, he added, while concentrated safety efforts in the cities have tended to reduce the number of automobile deaths.

During the last five years motor vehicle deaths in urban areas have averaged under 10,000 annually, Mr Boate pointed out. But rural highway fatalities have increased sharply every year during this period, climbing from 22,000 in 1949 to 28,200 in 1952 and an estimated 31,000 in 1953, or 9,000 more a year than in 1949.

In contrast, the former Pennsylvania State Police captain added, urban fatalities totaled 9,500 in 1949, 9,800 last year and probably will fall off in 1953 to 9,000, the low mark of the period, while deaths on rural highways in 1953 may register another increase of several thousand because of the speed factor and hit the 31,000 mark, well over three times the urban accident toll.

Against slight increases in urban fatalities in only two of the last five years, Mr. Boate said, year-to-year rural deaths jumped 2,800 in 1950, 1,800 in 1951, 1,600 in 1952 and may rise about 2,800 in 1953. Unless the trend to higher speeds is checked, he declared, accidents involving speeders who lose control of their vehicles may send the 1954 rural death toll far above the total for both urban and rural deaths five years ago—31,700.

"The price Americans are paying for their speed thrills on the highway is too great," declared Mr. Boate. "The cost is far more than 9,000 lives which represent the aggregate of increases in rural fatalities during the speed-mad period since 1949, when vehicles with built-in super-speeds that should never be used on public highways began to pour onto the roads. The cost runs into many more thousands of lives lost in rural accidents caused by excessive speeds and hundreds of thousands of injured victims.

"Americans must be made to realize that three-fourths of all deaths in automobile accidents are occuring in rural areas and that most of these tragedies are happening because they are traveling well over the speed limits, even in towns and villages and cities. They must learn to slow down to more reasonable and safer speeds, or be made to do so by the police, the courts and the driver licensing authorities, if the tragic upward trend in rural deaths is to be checked and turned downward. Safety efforts have accomplished this in American cities. It can be done in rural areas too, if we set our minds and hearts to this goal."

ASK IF IT'S Convenient to Talk

If your conversation is of a private or confidential nature, it is courteous to ask if it is convenient to talk. You wouldn't break into a conference in person and this same rule of etiquette applies over the telephone.

CONGRESSIONAL QUIZ

Q—How many Members of Congress are veterans of the armed forces?
A—Three hundred and nine—84 in the Senate and 245 in the House.
Q—How much has the U. S. spent for foreign aid since 1946?
A—U. S. foreign aid from 1940 through 1952 totaled $90.3 billion, $41 billion of it since the end of World War II. Net expenditures, however, total $78.6 billion because $11.7 billion has been paid back to the U. S.
Q—Has the greater part of U. S. postwar foreign aid been economic or military?
A—Economic, by a ratio of $35 billion to $8 billion through 1952. The emphasis recently has shifted, however. In 1952, military aid exceeded economic assistance for the first time since the end of World War II.
Q—How deep in the hole has the Post Office Department been going?
A—The latest firm figures available, for fiscal 1952, show the deficit was about $727 million. The Senate Appropriations Committee estimates that the fiscal 1953 deficit will prove to be about $642 million. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield June 25 predicted the deficit for fiscal 1954 would be about $594 million. He has asked for rate increases to bring in $241 million annually, and has put into effect other measures for reducing the deficit.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Just about everyone in Chilton County is getting ready to go to the Chilton County Fair this week. A. D. Smith, who operates the A. D. Smith Grocery in South Clanton, was telling us the other afternoon that he hadn't planned on going, but he kept seeing so much about it in the Chilton County News and it sounded like it was going to be so much fun that now he thought he would take off and go out there. Well, Red is right, the only way we can have a Fair is have the support of the people. "Let's Go Out To The Fair."

Hear about the census taker who asked the farmer how many bushels of corn he raised last year? He said he didn't bushel it—he bottled it.

Little bank roll,
Here we part.
Let me hug you
To my heart.
All the year
I've clung to you;
I've been faithful
You've been true.
Little bank roll,
In a day
You and I will start away.
To a good vacation spot—
I'll come back,
But you will not.
—Lampoon.

Charlie Gay should appreciate this one. She: "I guess I'm just a babe in the woods." He: "Honey, meet an old Forest Ranger."

We know a good one that Ott Miller should use on his Clanton Credit Bureau stationary. Here 'tis: "Man is dust; dust settles; be a man."

The partners called their plant manager in and said: "We find that last year's business was the best since we opened the place. We know how much hard work you put in for us, and as a special mark of our appreciation, we are making out a check for one thousand dollars for you." The manager stammered his thanks. "Yes," went on the other partner, "and if next year's business is as good as this, we'll sign it."

The merchants who are running the "Back To School" page in Chilton County News are to be commended on their efforts to convey to the driving public the dangers that befront us during the school months when so many of our children are going to, and coming from, school. Those merchants taking part in the campaign against careless driving as presented by this page advertisement are: Thorsby Garage, J. C. Page Company, Peoples Savings Bank, Clanton Lions Club, Wyatt Drug Company, Bank of Thorsby, Emergency Aid Insurance Company, Bell Hardware Company, Radio & TV Service Company, First National Bank, Watson's and Salter Distributing Company Pan-Am.

It's all in fun at the Chilton County News booth at the Fair this week. There will be one to fit you, and you, and you. Be sure and drop by our booth and get your name in the headlines. It's the chance of a life-time.

Anything can happen on these Fox Hunts and Trails that the local Fox Hunters hold each year. For instance one fox hunter who took a liking to Chilton County bought the Buddy Ellison Place. He was C. D. Nixon of Midnight, Miss. We understand he also bought several hundred dollars worth of fox dogs while here too.

S.D.A. School Adds Kindergarten

School days will soon be here again — pencils, crayons, books, lunch baskets and hoppity, skippty off to school.

The Adventist church school has been going on in Clanton for more than twenty years. Children whose parents are of all faiths have been attending from year to year. The denominational "flavor" is absent from the school rooms, but each day begins with songs and prayers, an interesting story from the Bible and "saying grace" at meal time.

A Kindergarten department has been added with Mrs. James Payton as teacher. This department is also for beginners under six years of age. Mrs. Payton has again been secured for the same department this year.

The grades school will be taught by Mrs. Joe Earl Bray. The Board feels fortunate in having secured the services of this experienced teached. Mrs. Bray has taught in Jackson, Miss., and Mobile, Ala. Both places were eager for her to return but she elected to accept the invitation to teach in Clanton.

Further information may be had by calling telephone 166-R. School opens Monday, August 31st. — Reporter.

BEAUTY TREATMENT FOR FAIR

O. H. Lawrence and Son, Homer Lawrence

O. H. Lawrence Widely Known For Pure Bred Jersey Cattle Herd

For many week now farmers from all over Chilton County have been working almost daily in an effort to get their prize cattle in shape for this year's Chilton County Fair.

O. H. Lawrence is one of those who takes great pride in his herd and is expected to have many of them at this year's exhibit. Along with his two sons, Homer and Buford Lawrence, the elder Mr. Lawrence has been working a life-time building up his herd of Purebred Jersey cows by stocking some of the best bulls in the county. Mr. Lawrence and his sons plan to have at least 11 of these purebred cows at this year's Fair.

The Lawrence team operates one of the best Grade "A" dairy barns in the county and their success is largely due to the fact that they raise a great deal of their own feed.

The Lawrence Dairy Farm will also have a good many of their purebred heifers and young bulls offered for sale on the last day of the Fair. This sale has already produced a great amount of interest among cattlemen and it is expected that many cattle buyers from all parts of the State will be on hand for this sale.

Williams Reunion To Be Held 30th

The Williams Reunion at Concord near Billingsley will be held August 30th. These are the families of William, Tommie, Jimmie and Walter and their descendants. But all of us have many close and distant relatives that we would like very much to see that day. We also like to think of the day as homecoming and invite all church members to be present. Our friends in Concord and surrounding communities are cordially invited. Everyone come and bring a well-filled lunch basket and enjoy the day. Those who live close enough should observe clean-up day, either on Thursday, Friday or Saturday before. Listen to WKLF, local news, for exact time.—J. Hudson Williams, Chairman.

WANTS CHANGE OF LUCK

San Diego, Calif.—Douglas Wied, 7, needs a change of luck. Coming down with a stomach ache while at Sunday School, he was in the hospital the next day to have his appendix removed. While in the hospital, he caught the measles. Recovering, he returend home, only to develop the mumps. The next day, he lost a tooth.

Martin T. Wyman To Speak To AA Group Here

Martin T. Wyman, State Sociologist, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Clanton Alcoholics Anonymous to be conducted in the club rooms at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

At the same time it was also announced that "Bob C.," a member of Alcoholics Anonymous group of Kilby Prison will also be on hand to speak.

This meeting will be thrown open to the general public and they are urged to attend by members of the Clanton Group. The Clanton Kiwanis Club will also be issued an invitation to attend the meeting following their own regular meeting the same night. All those interested in doing something for his fellow man is urged to be on hand for a better understanding of the other fellow's problems.

Selden Working Tirelessly For A New Hospital

Armistead I. Selden, Jr., Congressman from the Sixth District of which Chilton County is a part, reported this week that final decision as to whether Chilton County would get a hospital on the Hill-Burton plan, would be known by September 1st. Chances for approval of the appropriation are excellent.

Selden has worked tirelessly to get money allocated for this hospital and recently met with the Board of Revenue & Control and Chilton County Hospital Board at their request, in a joint meeting to discuss ways and means of accomplishing this service for his constituents.

Ever since Congressman Selden went to Washington he has devoted much of his time and efforts to getting a hospital for Chilton County. Having the Hospital Board already set up and the county's part of the money available it was only to get the necessary go sign from the State Board for the dream to be realized.

Reports are that Congressman Selden, working closely with Probate Judge Dave Tingle, and the Hospital Board have left no stone unturned to accomplish this very thing and Chilton County has only to await the State Board of Health decision which, as stated, will be delivered on or before September first.

Whether or not Chilton County gets the new hospital the people of the county will owe a debt of gratitude to their Congressman for his efforts in their behalf.

Sheep Exhibit At Fair

Along with Chilton County crossbred sheep, Mr. John May will show a group of registered Montadale animals. Mr. May has entered his Montadales in many major shows in recent years, including the National Sheep Show in Springfield, Ill., in 1952. His exhibit in National competition won the Grand Champion Award in the Springfield, Ill., event.

Sheep — properly managed — are money-makers, and are adapted to small, well-drained farms. Don't fail to observe some of the best in the nation at the Chilton County Fair, Clanton Airport, August 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29th.

A hen requires large amounts of calcium for egg shell formation.

Airport Becomes Fairyland

Clanton's Gragg Airport has been transtormed into a thing of beauty!

Inside it's huge steel hangar it is lined with many commercial and educational booths gaily decorated, with all colors of streaming and flowing crepe paper, while on the outside are some of the most beautiful animals in the southeast as well as all types of the latest in farm machinery.

Directly across from the big hangar are the highly decorated contraptions of the amusement company that will bring many hours of enjoyment to young and old alike.

All during this past week end men and machinery have been working feverishly in an effort to get everything in readiness for tonight's big opening at 7 o'clock.

Under the direction of the county engineer the big building was cleaned up, the roof patched and tons and tons of shavings dumped on the dirt floor. At the same time men and women alike have been building and decorating their exhibits in anticipation of the expected big browds that are scheduled to visit this year's exposition.

Beginning Sunday noon the big trucks and trailers that transport the Lee Amusement Company began arriving at the airport. Yesterday morning the big concessions began to untold and take shape for the big opening.

Yesterday afternoon the big tents that will house the cattle and the many modern farm machines began to rise into the sky as tractors and farm animals began to arrive for their five-day stay at the exposition grounds.

While all this was going on Miss Mary Louise Wright, Home Demonstration Agent, and her assistant, Miss Johnnie Martin, were working on their Cotton Queen and Dairy Maid contests, with the winners to be presented at the night sessions of the Fair. Miss Wright is also being assisted by Mrs. Lois Mims, who is program chairman of the Cotton contest.

Wallace (Shorty) Headley, General Chairman, and his assistant, M. R. Glasscock, County Agent, were also on hand all day Monday to put the finishing touches on the Fair as well as lend their assistance to any of the Fair exhibitors in getting their booths placed and in order.

And so, with everything apparently in readiness the doors to what is hoped will be one of the biggest events in the history of Chilton County will be thrown open to the general public at 7 o'clock tonight.

Pleasant Grove All Day Singing

There will be a homecoming and all-day singing to be conducted at the Pleasant Grove Methodist Church on the Billingsley Highway next Sunday, August 30th.

Everyone is invited to attend this meeting and to bring their lunch. All former pastors and members are especially urged to attend this get-together. The singing will get underway before the regular 11 o'clock services and will continue again right after lunch.

WHIRLWIND COURTSHIP

London — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Davies figure they hold the record for the fastest courtship. Standing at a bus stop, Davies inquired of Marguarita Neilson, 25, whether the bus went downtown. She replied that it did. They boarded the bus together and occupied the only double seat vacant. In the 30 minutes ride, they became engaged and set the wedding date. When the bus reached their destination, they hurried to a jewelry store, where Davies bought the ring. They were married a few days later and left for Southern Rodesia, Central Africa, where Davies is an engineer.

WELCOME TO THE FAIR

Chilton County, after a lapse of several years, welcomes you back to enjoy another county fair.

While you are our guest we hope you take advantage of the opportunity to really see, and learn about, Chilton County. "A Good Place To Visit, A Better Place To Live," wasn't just thoughtless words written in haste to fill a signboard. The words are true, the feeling is real. We're glad to have you.

THE POST-TRUCE POLITICAL CONFERENCE

The key portion of the recent Korean truce agreement is that section which specifies that a post-truce political conference will be held between high-level officials of both sides which have participated in the Korean War. The success of that conference may decide the question of war and peace in Asia.

The vital section of the truce agreement reads as follows: "In order to insure a peaceful settlement of the Korean question, the military commanders of both sides hereby recommend to the governments of the countries concerned that, within three months after an armistice agreement is signed and becomes effective, a political conference at a higher level of both sides be held by representatives appointed respectively to settle through negotiations the question of the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea, a peaceful settlement of the Korean question, etc."

It will be noted that in this section, the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea is specifically mentioned. The drawback to this proposal, from the Allied point of view, comes from the reluctance of the United States, and other U. N. powers, to withdraw their troops from South Korea too hastily once again. U. S. troops withdrew from South Korea in 1949 and the North Koreans attacked South Korea in June, 1950.

It may be necessary, therefore, to arrive at this solution only after a period of years. And, even after the years of occupation are ended, Korea would probably be placed under the protective authority of the United Nations, so that any new attempt at aggression would immediately be recognized as a Communist attack on the forces of the various United Nations members.

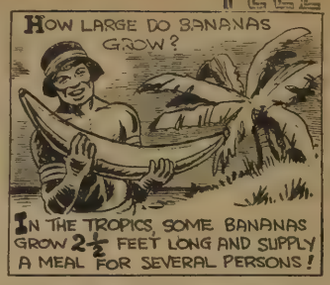
Starter Solution Helps Stimulate Plants

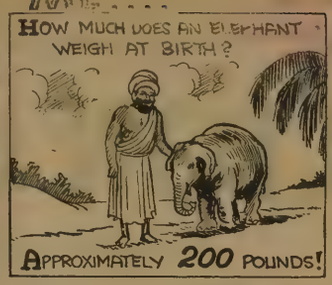
Plants suffer a certain amount of shock when transplanted from the seedbed to the row during hot, dry weather.

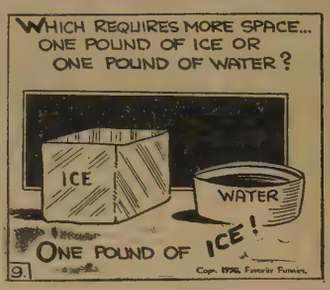
"Using a starter solution will help them overcome this shock more quickly than they would without some sort of stimulant," explains John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist. "Thoroughly dissolve one pound of 4-10-7 or 6-8-4 fertilizer in five gallons of water, and use a cup of this solution around each plant when set."

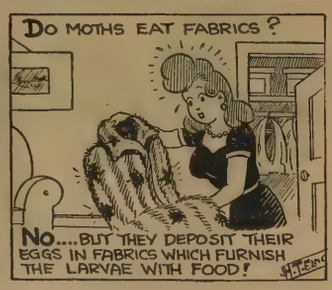
Setting plants in late afternoon so they have a chance to take up some moisture from the soil before the hot sun strikes them will also reduce plant loss, adds the specialist. Shading plants for two or three days with newspaper, small branches, or pots is another recommended precaution.

TELL ME....









Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The four-year-old certainly didn't look sick, but he had been lying still and quiet on his stomach right in the middle of the living room floor for a suspiciously long time. Finally, I asked:

"Are you all right?"

"Yes," he answered, "I'm just lying here listening."

He didn't give even a hint as to what he was listening to, and I couldn't guess unless it was maybe the moths munching on the carpet, so I had to ask.

"Well," he explained, "I'm listening to my heart beat. And you know what it sounds like? It sounds like a bunch of demons stomping around inside me." And he resumed his listening.

Speaking of moths in carpets, our next door neighbor discourages the pests by sprinkling dry salt on her carpets before she sweeps or vacuums them. She says it's a trick she learned from her grandmother, an old-fashioned idea that still works.

Does it happen to you, too? Just let me get in a big hurry and I always yank too hard on the dresser drawers, spilling the contents all over the floor and usually dropping the drawer on my foot. I thought this was one of the necessary evils of a hurried life, but the next door neighbor proved me wrong.

She keeps all her dresser and desk drawers in place by screwing a strip of wood about three inches long to the back of the drawer. By turning the strip up, it acts as a stop to keep the drawer from being pulled out accidentally. When the strip is turned down, the drawer can be removed (purposely) for cleaning.

Mothers all over the neighborhood are in the midst of frenzied back-to-school sewing. One mother sounded mighty discouraged as she sewed on a corduroy skirt and sighed:

"No matter how long I make the waist band or how many gathers I put in the waist, I know that next Fall when I try to let this skirt out, it will lack 3-4 of an inch of meeting!"

* * *

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, uses her sewing machine a great deal. She says that a small stiff brush, like the ones that come with mucilage or paste, are the best things she has found for keeping her machine clean. The little brush fits into all the cracks and crevices where dust likes to hide.

* * *

This same neighbor uses her machine to help her rip seams in garments as well as sew them in. She lets the presser foot of the machine hold one end of the material while she holds the other end and rips the seam with a razor blade.

It was this neighbor, too, who suggested moving a clothes drying rack into the sewing area. When she cuts out patterns, she hangs the pieces of material over the rods of the rack, keeping them straight and within easy reach.

* * *

Before the homemade ice cream season ends, here's a recipe for coconut ice cream, worth all the trouble it takes: Grate 2 coconuts. Add coconut "milk" to enough scalded milk to make 3 pints. Mix in 1 can condensed milk. Add 4 lightly beaten egg yolks, 1½ pints rich milk or cream, grated coconut and about 1 cup sugar. Fold in 4 stiffly beaten egg whites and freeze.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

FIRST TRIP TO SCHOOL

Mr. and Mrs. Parent, is your child ready for his first trip to school? Have you prepared him emotionally for his departure from babyhood, and have you seen to it that he is physically fit to cope with that new world—the strange happening of his first entrance into school life?

Not all children are alike, either in appearance or mental achievement. Not all children have been brought up under the same environmental patterns. Some youngsters of school age are vivacious and full of pep; others are shy and reticent. But nearly all children have the same undercurrent of eagerness and interest in the mysteries of the school room. Yet, if they have not been prepared physically and emotionally for the new life, trouble can lie ahead.

Has your child had a physical examination by the family physician? Are you certain that the listlessness of the last few weeks, or perhaps a few months ago which now since has disappeared, is not due to some physical disturbance that could be corrected easily before he begins school? Are you certain that the squint that appears when he looks at the comics or his books of make-believe is not due to some defect in vision? This correction could be the one procedure that would prevent your child from being classified as "dull" in his first days at school. If he can't see the patterns on the blackboard, naturally he can't understand them. The words of explanation of the teacher may register on the child's brain but visually they are meaningless. And then there is the child whose sight is normal but who fails to hear. Is this child too to be classified "dull" when a physical examination would have paved the way for correction of the defect?

And the child's teeth? Are they in good condition? Or are you one of those parents who says, "They're only his baby teeth" and so defer the trip to the dentist? This is unwise, because careful attention to these baby teeth will be the means of insuring good placement when the second teeth make their appearance.

If properly prepared, that first day of school can be a joyful event. Let your physician and dentist cooperate with you, the parent, in launching your child into the new and exciting school life. There is no wealth such as good health. You can give it to your child.

Before adding new eggs to your refrigerator pan, put a pencil mark on the shells of any left over so that they will be used first.

Huntingdon College Ready For 1953-54 Term

Montgomery, Ala. — At Huntingdon College preparations are being intensified every day now for the opening of the 1953-54 term next month. This is a significant year at Huntingdon for it will be its Centennial, the college having been chartered February 2, 1854.

Class work will begin Monday, September 21. Freshmen, however, will arrive September 15. The week to follow will be filled with Orientation activities. During Orientation Week at Huntingdon the days are busy with instruction on how to study in college, how to use the library, how to get the most out of college life. The evenings are given over to fun. There are parties given by the major student organizations and get-acquainted gatherings planned by the freshmen's student advisers and big sisters.

Before even the freshmen arrive Huntingdon begins its program for the year. Two retreats are held by campus leaders to discuss and perfect their plans for the year's activities. The Huntingdon Christian Association Council will open its Retreat at Camp Grandview in Elmore County Friday morning, September 11. Students in charge will be the president, Martha Anne Grimes, of Tuskegee, and the vice-president, Wynelle Jordan, of Myrtlewood.

Huntingdon's Student Government Association will open its Retreat at Grandview Saturday, September 12. Betty Betts, of Auburn, the president, will preside and discussions will be led by the presidents of all of Huntingdon's major organizations.

The college year will open with five new members on the faculty. They will be: Dr. Maryland Wilson, dean of women and head of the Speech Department; Richard Rivers, head of the Music Department; James H. Eads, Jr., acting head of the Biology Department; Miss Margaret Cubine, assistant professor of religion; and Miss Marilyn Owen, assistant in physical education.

Some new courses have been added for this year and the offerings strengthened in other departments. The Art Department is adding a three-hour course in pottery and two one-hour evening courses in painting problems and pottery problems.

The Department of Business Administration is adding courses in General Economics and Intermediate Economic Theory. A new course in history will be History of France. The Psychology Department is adding Psychology in Everyday Living. The Department of Secretarial Science is adding a course in Personal Typewriting, for those who wish to learn to type but do not plan for secretarial careers, and a course in Advanced Dictation.

Huntingdon is strengthening its programs in pre-medical studies and teacher preparation. The work of the Speech Department will be improved by the extensive remodeling and redecorating just completed in the college Little Theater.

FINALLY A HERO

Uniontown, Pa. — After a delay of more than 50 years, Hart Moore, now 80, has received the Silver Victory Medal and citation certificate from the Secretary of State for the Republic of Cuba, inscribed and written in Spanish. The award is "for honorable and faithful service in the cause of Cuba," during the Spanish-American War.

a peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

HILLBILLY music has come down from the hills . . It's rambling around town in Sunday clothes and kicking up its heels on all the musical best seller lists with numbers like "Your Cheatin' Heart," "Kawliga" and "Keep It a Secret" Juke boxes, home record players and radio are full of it It's getting to be such a big thing that this year a National Hillbilly Music Day was declared by a special Act of Congress

For many years these shoeless symphonies played mostly for local listeners Now CBS Radio has got itself a one-hour show called "Saturday Night — Country Style," on Saturday nights, which presents the best fiddle-scraping, banjo plucking and accordion squeezing from not one but six southern cities — Dallas, Shreveport, Knoxville, Wheeling, Louisville and Richmond.

In Richmond, the "Saturday Night - Country Style" show is headed up by a bright-eyed lady called Sunshine Sue Only femcee in the business, she can sing, pick a guitar, play the organ and she sure can read a commercial . . But what makes her really popular is her personality She's easy - going, modest, friendly, the sort who might turn out to be a female Arthur Godfrey one of these days . . . Her real name, is Mrs Mary Higdon Workman.

All in a Day's Work

Sunshine Sue's schedule is enough to make any woman fold up and cry uncle . . . Her day begins at 6:00 AM and between then and 8:00 AM she gets breakfast, sends the kids off to school, issues operational orders to the help and drives 21 miles to Richmond for an 8:30 AM rehearsal date with her cast

At 9:00 she's on the air, five mornings a week, for a 45-minute local "Old Dominion Barn Dance" broadcast . From then until 11:00 AM she and her crew rehearse the next day's show .

FOOLS DOCTORS

Easton, Pa. — Told by doctors that she "would never live to grow up," Mrs. Mary Frances Paul fooled them all by cerebrating her 100th birthday on July 14th. Mrs. Paul admitted that she was "very frail" in childhood.

19th CHILD BORN

Childs, Pa. — Mrs. Raxford Oakley, 44, recently gave birth to her nineteenth child in a hospital near here. The oldest of the children is 24.

UNUSUAL ACCIDENT

Grand Junction, Colo.—Bill Shriver, 15, is recovering from injuries suffered when a homemade gun backfired, sending the barrel—a 3-foot pipe — into his head near his right eye. The boy walked to the house to summon aid, supporting the pipe in his hands to protect his eye. He talked with the surgeons while they removed it.

The North Central Alabama Soil Conservation District has entered the National Soil Conservation Awards program sponsored by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, it was announced today by District Chairman R. O. Williams, of Clanton Route 1.

Members of the North Central District will compete against other soil conservation districts in the state. Non-partisan judging committees, selected from Alabama's outstanding exponents of the soil conservation movement, will determine the state's outstanding district for the period July 1, 1953, and April 30, 1954, on a basis of total points scored in performance of regular district duties.

Grand award for one member of each winning district governing body and the top cooperating farmer or rancher named by the district will be a one-week, expense-free, vacation trip to Goodyear's fabulous winter resort, the Wigwam Guest Ranch on Goodyear Farms, Litchfield Park, Arizona, in December, 1954.

Members of the North Central District governing body who will compete for the Goodyear award are: R. O. Williams, Chairman, Chilton County; L. D. Bentley, Secretary-Treasurer, Blount County; John Ragland, Bibb County; J. R. Howard, Jefferson County; F. E. Williams, Shelby County; Tom O. Waldrop, Cullman County.

Authorities estimate that 90 per cent of all hog losses, excluding hog cholera, brucellosis, and other contagious diseases, can be attributed to poor management and feeding practices.

Clarence C. Horton

HORTON NAMED TO HEAD MARCH OF DIMES

The appointment of Clarence C. Horton of Montgomery and Courtland as state chairman for the 1954 March of Dimes in Alabama was announced recently by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Horton, director of the Alabama Department of Veterans Affairs since 1945, succeeds Albert Stapp of Birmingham as volunteer leader of the men and women who will conduct the 1954 fund-raising campaign for the polio-fighting organization.

Last January Alabamians contributed $595,141 of the $51,500,000 collected throughout the country to fight polio through a program of patient care, research, professional training and public education.

The 1953 figure was almost seven percent higher than the 1952 total of $556,683 in Alabama. Stapp directed both these drives.

"The fight against polio is beginning to show definite signs of victory," O'Connor said. "And when the great day arrives that we can stamp the word 'conquered' on this crippling disease, much of the credit will go to Clarence Horton and other volunteer leaders like him. At great personal sacrifice they are bringing to this struggle not only their time and talents but also an inspiring idealism of service to mankind.

"Encouraging as scientific advances against polio have been in recent years—with the advent of gamma globulin and the prospect of even more effective preventive measures—a tremendous amount of work remains to be done if we are to achieve final victory. In Clarence Horton, the fight against polio has a man who will see this job through to the end. But he will need the complete support of all residents of Alabama. I am sure he will get it."

During 1944 he was state commander of the American Legion after previously serving as the Legion's state chairman for Americanism. He is a past president of the National Association of State Directors of Veterans Affairs. He presently is vice-chairman of the National Rehabilitation Commission of the Legion.

A merchant prior to moving to Montgomery, he continues to operate the mercantile business founded by his father at Courtland. He also has farming interests. He has served two terms on the Courtland city council.

Horton is a Baptist, a Mason, a member of the Montgomery Kiwanis Club, the Elks Club and the 40 & 8 of the Legion. He represents the eighth congressional district on the State Democratic Executive Committee.

A private in World War I, Horton later commanded a regiment of the Alabama State Guard from 1940 to 1946, retiring with the rank of colonel.

He was educated in the public schools of Lawrence County and at Florence State Teachers College. He once published a weekly newspaper and for six yars was sales manager for a chain of shoe stores.

Horton is married to the former Linda Mayfield of Nashville and is father of C. W. Horton of Mobile. Another son, Wiley Horton, died while serving with the Eighth Air Force during World War II.

CONCRETE ROADS
Serve for Many Years
At Low Annual Cost

Concrete pavements generally carry the heaviest traffic. Yet their annual maintenance cost is far lower than any other pavement intended for similar service. And the rugged strength and stamina of concrete assure long life — many years of all-weather service without interruptions for frequent repairs or rebuilding.

Compare construction costs too, and you'll find that concrete pavement usually costs less to build than any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

So with long life, low maintenance expense and economical first cost, concrete is easily the thriftiest investment for your main traveled highways, assuring, as it does, low annual cost—the true measure of pavement economy.

Soil Test Is Short Cut To Efficient Production

Auburn, Ala. — Lime and fertilizer are tols of efficient production, says API Extension Agronomist D. R. Harbor.

And he reminds farmers to make their fertilizer dollars go even farther by having a soil test made to determine just what treatment their land needs. Right now is a good time to take soil samples from lanl which will be seeded this fall to legumes, mixtures of legumes and grasses, or small grains.

Send samples to the state soil testing laboratorf in Auburn. Harbor advises growers to allow at least two weeks for the laboratory to test soil and return the results.

"If you do not have your soil tested," concludes the specialist, "follow lime and fertilizer recommendations from your county agent."

Tomatoes Are Stars In High Vitamin C Content

One good-sized, vine-ripened tomato will furnish about half your daily quota of vitamin C, as well as a generous amount of the required vitamin A.

And API Extension Nutritionist Mary Hulsey suggests that tomatoes be eaten raw and fresh for the most food value. If possible, peel and cut them quickly just before serving to retain nutritive content.

"But remember, too," she adds, "that this summer garden favorite holds a large share of its vitamins even when cooked or canned."

Tomatoes are one of the best year around appetite tempters, concludes the home leader. Fresh sliced tomatoes brighten any summer meal, and for winter and early spring try them put up in juice, catsup, chili, or relishes.

WELL, WELL

San Francisco — Carey Baldwin, San Francisco zoo director, is getting rid of the a couple of wallaroos but is getting a binturong. In case you don't know what he's talking about (and neither did we) he's swapping a female camel and three grizzly bears for a binturong (something like a civet cat) and six gibbons (something like apes). News Report from Washington

Washington — President Dwight D. Eisenhower's major worry in the foreign policy field continues to be Korea — despite the recent truce. The President is sitting on a situation which could develop in two ways, and the lives of thousands of Americans hang in the balance.

The bad part of the situation is that the U. S. Government is partially helpless in the situation. South Korean President Syngman Rhee holds some of the trump cards because of the presence of several thousand U. S. soldiers in Korea, who are serving in an allied army along with the South Koreans.

The President is glad that the killing is over. He feels that the United States halted aggression in Korea, retook South Korea, and negotiated a truce, which restored the situation to just what it was before the attack of 1950—with the exception that U. N. hroops are now in South Korea and Chinese troops in North Korea.

The President didn't want to get involved in a huge land war with China, and feared if he agreed to Rhee's demands that U. S. fores launch a major attack northward, into North Korea, he would get bogged down in a war with Chinese manpower which might take years, and millions of casualties, to end. For that war would continue even if U. S. troops drove all the way to the Yalu River, since the Chinese would fight on from China—across the river.

In fact, U. S. troops would have to go on into China in an effort to finally end the opposition, and that task would require millions of soldiers, many years, and countless billions of dollars. Moreover, it would be just the thing Russia wants. The Russians would like nothing better than to play off China and the United States against each other, weakening their greatest obstacle in the path to world domination, the U. S. in the process.

So the President feels the truce was a victory. Rhee, however, naturally wants to push the U. S. into an effort to take North Korea.

Ike wants a settlement of all questions without more bloodshed. But he said the State Department are not sure what Rhee might do. The U. S. might walk out of a political conference with South Korea and still not want to go back to war. If the South Koreans walk out, and they probably will, they will be hot to fight again. Ike is meanwhile very much on the spot.

Adlai Stevenson will find out if he has a good chance to be the Democratic nominee in 1956 next month when he attends, and is the featured speaker, at the Democratic party rally in Chicago. Despite the fact that Stevenson polled a whopping vote in losing to Dwight Eisenhower last year, there are many in the senior major party who do not think he should be the party nominee in 1956.

Among them are many Southerners who want a more conservative candidate as the party's standard-bearer. However, the liberal element which predominates in the party is inclined to go for Adlai. They are telling dissident Southerners that the present Republican regime, which appealed to many Southern voters last November, is just as liberal in the civil rights field as is Stevenson.

At this stage Stevenson, with his speech-making ability, is all set to win the party's nod at the September meet, almost as if it were made to order for him.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor Chilton County News:

I would appreciate space in the News to make a special announcement concerning the beginning of the Howard College Extension Division for Christian Training which will begin here at the First Baptist Church, Clanton, on the eighth night of September.

There will only be two periods this time of about fifty minutes each. Heretofore, we have had three periods, but the Advisory Committee in consultation with Rev. Scroggins, the Associate Director, thought it advisable for two periods this session.

Three courses will be given, but two of the courses will be taught parallel the first period. Mrs. Hutchinson will teach the Sunday School Preview and Dr. Hutchinson will teach a course in the Old Testament. The Book of Genesis will be studied during the first Semester and we will take up the Book of Jeremiah for the second Semester.

Dr. Hutchinson will also teach a course in "Church Finance" during the second period of the first Semester and a study in the New Testament, (I and II Thessalonians) for the second period of the second Semester. Of course, Mrs. Hutchinson will teach the Sunday School Preview both semesters.

The only qualifications necessary to attend this school, says Dr. Davis, President of Howard College, "is A Willingness To Learn." You can get college credit if you desire, or certificate credit. Or, if you desire, you can attend without credits at all. Just simply sit in the class and absorb the great things given from the Bible by our fine teachers. However, it would be good to register for credit.

Since it will be possible only to take two courses this time, the cost per semester will be $11.00, plus books. The tuition is $4.50 per course and $2.00 for registration fee. To make a long story short, Howard College is extended to our door. The school will begin here September 8th, at 7 o'clock p.m.—M. Lockhart, Director.

We plan to have a special speaker for the opening of the school. Plates will also be served at nominal cost.

If you use pins instead of thread to save time when basting, place them crosswise rather than lengthwise; then you can stitch right over them with the machine and remove them later.

A WORD IN SEASON

"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." Psalm 107:2.

Say what? That they have been redeemed, of course. That they have an assured future, a sense of security beyond any guarantee that any earthly power can possibly offer. That by the forgiving love of God through the agency of the Redeemer, the penalty of their transgressions has been removed from them as far as the east is from the west.

The miracle of deliverance must be followed by the song of praise. Many a blessing becomes stale because it is not renewed by thanksgiving. Benefits that are received ungratefully droop like flowers deprived of rain. The constant exercise of thanksgiving gives sustenance to blessings that have come from above. For that reason every appreciative Christian goes to the sanctuary every Sabbath day in order that he may sing with the assembled throng, "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow."

Unconfessed blessings become like the Dead Sea; refused an outlet, they lose their freshness and vitality.

"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." The act of saying it reacts upon the speaker with bracing results. He thereby becomes a teacher of others, and there is nothing that clarifies one's own understanding like imparting his belief to prospective learners.

In his edifying letter to the members of the primitive Church, Simon Peter wrote: "Sanctify the Lord God in your hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and reverence." The last four words of that sentence are a warning against a professed Christian assuming a "holier than thou" attitude when speaking of his own religion. It is true that earnest interest in others should prompt a redeemed man or woman to a commendable endeavor to promote the Kingdom of God; but let it never be forgotten that tact and common sense are essential in what is usually known as personal evangelism. Our Lord advised His early disciples to be as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves.

"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." That is exactly what Jesus meant in his post-resurrection charge. The last words that fell from His lips prior to His ascension were: "And ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem. . . .and unto the uttermost part of the earth." The personal pronoun "ye" in that sentence is an inclusive word. Some people are inclined to think that the salvation of humanity rests upon the preachers, that the total responsibility is relegated to the pulpit. A word to the wise is sufficient.

ARROW KILLS FRIEND

Rifle, Colo. — Two young boys, Allen Porter, 11, and Ronnie Cole, 14, were shooting arrows into bales of hay. Allen went to retrieve the arrows shot by his friend. Thinking Ronnie had shot all of the arrows, Allen raised up from behind the piles of hay just as the last arrow neared the hay. The arrow struck him in the heart, killing him instantly.

Get More Milk Cheaper With Top Quality Grass

Pete Turnham, API Extension assistant dairyman, explains that a 900-pound cow on excellent pasture will eat about 75 to 80 pounds of grass per day. "With this excellent roughage or its equivalent in hay or silage, she can produce about 14 pounds of 4.5 per cent milk daily," he says. "By adding about seven pounds of grain to her ration, she can produce 30 pounds."

The same cow fed only average pasture or its equivalent in hay or silage would eat about 55 pounds daily—and produce only 2.8 pounds of 4.5 per cent milk daily. Also, says Turnham, it would take about 10 pounds of grain for her to produce 30 pounds of milk.

Start Your Furniture Buying Right At Home

Auburn, Ala. — Furniture shopping begins right in your own home, according to Alice Peavy, API Extension home furnishings specialist.

"If you're in the market for new furniture," she explains, "take a look around the house before making the rounds of stores in town. Present room color schemes are important in the selection of additional pieces, and upholstery fabrics should blend attractively with other colors in the room."

Miss Peavy adds that home makers can usually save money by buying simple furniture with good lines rather than investing in more ornate pieces. It's smart, too, she concludes, to shop around before deciding on a particular home furnishing. Comparing merchandise is an excellent short cut to satisfactory buying.

Cereals are needed in the diet because they furnish energy for work, play, and daily activities; they are the cheapest source of food energy we have.

Kids should be seen and not hurt!

Drive With Extra Caution In And Near School Zones

A highway safety specialist today urged drivers to "always give the kids a break" by driving with extra caution in speed zones near schools, obeying signals of school crossing guards, stopping when children are boarding or leaving a school bus, and slowing down when appoaching youngsters at play or riding bicycles.

The reason, according to Price E. Clark, educational director of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies accident prevention department, is the huge toll of nearly 220,000 child victims of automobile accidents every year. Driving too fast for a sudden emergency stop and lack of caution on the part of drivers are the basic causes of these accidents, he said.

In a single year approximately 4,300 school children under 15 are killed and 215,000 injured by motor vehicles. By far the greater percentage — 72 percent — are from 5 to 14 years of age. In this age group 2,400 are killed and 150,000 injured in accidents on streets and highways.

Three children of these ages at play or crossing streets are injured for every one in this age group who is killed or hurt when struck by a motor vehicle while riding a bicycle. There are approximately 61,200 victims annually in this age group, out of 87,000 under 15 who are killed or injured as pedestrains. About 40,350 bicyclists under 15 years are killed or injured every year in street accidents.

One child in every three is killed or injured on the way to school, or returning home from classes. School boy safety patrols, traffic policemen and adult crossing guards are helping to protect the lives of millions of children at school intersections, Mr. Clark said. But accidents continue to happen by the thousands, he said, because drivers are not alert for rash actions of unpredictable youngsters at play or walking or the vehicles are traveling too fast for a safe stop.

In larger cities, Mr. Clark pointed out, there is a growing movement to employ adult crossing guards to protect school children and thus release police formerly assigned to school traffic duty to other police tasks. Of the 234 cities in the United States with more than 50,000 population, 122 are now using adult crossing guards, according to Mr. Clark. The size of the guard force ranges from 30 to 700. Forty-eight of the cities use men guards exclusively, 42 have only women guards, while 31 employ both.

"The trend is definitely to women in this important phase of the safety program for school children," said Mr. Clark. "The guards are employed by the city, trained and provided with an appropriate uniform. The average rate of pay per hour in the 122 cities employing this system is from $1 to $1.50. Cities of all sizes wishing to strengthen the protection of their school children might well consider this effective and economical method of accident prevention at the schools.

"The best measurement of the success of the adult crossing guard program is its record. In the whole history of the adult guard program, out of the 122 cities 112 report no fatalities to school children."

Two-thirds of the accidents involving children under 15 happen, however, while they are outside school supervision. It is at such times that the motorist must be more alert than ever to an impulsive child's sudden action that will send it into the path of an oncoming vehicle. When the driver is traveling too fast for an unexpected stop, a child is killed or injured.

Far more children are fatally hurt in rural areas than in the cities, Mr. Clark pointed out. About 4,550 boys and girls under 15 are killed in rural sections annually, while 1,750 die in urban accidents. In rural communities about 1,450 fatalities occur among children from five to 14, and 1,100 are under five years of age. In urban areas, 950 deaths occur among the older group of children, while 800 are under five years of age.

More than a third of the child pedestrains killed or injured are playing in the roadway, he said, with 32,000 victims claimed annually. About 22,000 are killed or injured while crossing between intersections, 15,000 while coming from behind parked cars, and 12,000 are struck at intersections.

Keep Your Corn Yields Away From Grain Pests

Auburn, Ala. — Don't turn over hard-earned corn crops to grain insects.

That's the warning being given Alabama farmers by A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist. "In an average year," he explains, "we lose more than 15 million dollars worth of corn to rats, weevils, and other storage pests."

And with the state's predicted 50 million bushels of corn in 1953, this figure could even be raised by improper and careless storing. Now's the time to clean and air out barns, cribs, and other places where corn will be kept, continues Jones.

"Much of this year's corn crop will be harvested and stored for feeding later or for a trip to the market," says the specialist. "And full value will be realized only if it is kept in good condition."

In making this announcement today, John V. Self, livestock show committee. chairman, said that Frank W. Fitch, Georgia Extension Service dairyman, will judge the district show.

Though he has judged many cattle shows in Mississippi, Georgia, and South Carolina, this will be the first time Mr. Fitch has ever judged an Alabama show.

Judging of the cattle will take place on Saturday morning, September 19th, at the 4th Avenue softball field, next to the stadium.

The District Dairy Show will open at 3:30 p.m., Friday, with the team judging contest and the showmanship and fitting contest. Both of these are limited to F.F.A. and 4-H club members.

CIVIL DEFENSE TURNS $10,028.70 TO STATE DPS

Montgomery, Ala. — State Civil Defense Director Col. James M Garrett, Jr., announced last week that his department had turned a federal check for $10,028.70 over to the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Garrett said it represented the federal government's 50 per cent payment on a communication project for the highway patrol, which will be available for civil defense use in the event of major disasters.

The project included erection of 300-foot towers in Mobile and Escambia counties for use by the highway patrol. They are equipped for emergency use with auxiliary power units and emergency antenna.

Col. Garrett said that the new communication facilities will eliminate long telephone lines which are often knocked out in cases of major disaster.

BEEF CATTLE GRADE DEMONSTRATION

An on-foot cattle grade demonstration will be included in the County Fair's Beef Cattle Show.

Beef producers will have an opportunity to study the various grades of beef cattle from canner-cutter animals to prime beef. Animals for this exhibit are to be selected by Mr. Crawford Rocquemore, Federal State Market News Analyst, and will be given their respective official grades. Also, the market price for each designated grade will accompany each graded animal.

Every cattle producer should take the opportunity of studying the cattle grading exhibit. This exhibit offers a visual picture of the basis that market prices are built upon. The grade demonstration can be of great help to producers in determining values of the cattle to be offered for sale.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The earliest navigation of Alabama Rivers was carried on in Indian canoes. Flat boats or keel boats, which were built in the up country by pioneers, were loaded with produce and floated downstream to market. These boats were usually sold at the end of the river trip but were sometimes reloaded and poled back up stream The coming of the steamboat in Alabama, however, made the flat boat obsolete for carriers of freight on the state's rivers.

The first steamboat built to navigate Alabama waters was the Alabama. It was built at St. Stephens in 1818, and launched upon the Tombigbee River. The Alabama could not stem the current of the river on account of the insufficient pressure of the stream and was floated to New Orleans where it was allowed to decay.

A steamer built in Boston in 1818 was the first steamboat that was successful in navigating Alabama rivers. This powerful boat began its first voyage from Mobile in May, 1819, with Tuscaloosa as its ultimate destination. Named the Mobile, this craft went as far as Demopolis. The Mobile found the waters of the Warrior river too strong and the goods on the ship were later sent on barges to their destination.

Alabama settlers would rush down to the banks of the river to get their first glimpse at the state's steamboats. Since wood was the only fuel used at the time, it was necessary to tie up the boat every night so that a new load might be taken on. As there were no wood yards along the river, it was necessity that the trees should be chopped down and cut into wood. This caused a great deal of delay for the boat.

Cross-bred sows have bigger litters of stronger pigs.

HOST TO NEWSPAPER MEN

Auburn, Ala. — Top officials of Alabama Polytechnic Institute were hosts early last week to visiting publishers, editors and reporters from daily newspapers over the state who toured the agricultural areas of the campus.

Dr. Ralph Draughon, president of Auburn, told the newsmen that more than 7,000 students would enroll for the fall term at A.P.I. After President Draughon's speech, the newsmen heard the inside story of what agriculture means to the present and future generation of Alabamians from Extension Service and Agricultural Research leaders.

Following the educational tour the visitors were treated to a fish fry, where they caught their own fish and prepared them for eating.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Dave Tingle, our youthful Probate Judge, took an airplane ride last Saturday. Now in this modern age you'll say that's not news, but you're wrong—dead wrong. You see, there's a long story behind Dave Tingle taking a ride in an airplane, even though it's done by thousands every day. In the first place he didn't think he would ever be able to go up again. Nine years ago Dave was shot down over Germany while serving in the United States Air Force and until last Saturday he has never been in an airplane since. He just couldn't stand the thought of riding again in one of the things. He bailed out and was captured and stayed a year in a German Prisoner-of-war camp before being repatriated. Well, last Saturday he was out at Gragg Field with Charlie Wade, who has been known to fly a little, and Charlie talked Dave into flying around a bit with him. Dave said after he once got in the air he was all right again, and the old fear and horrow of flying had left him. In fact, he thinks he rather likes it and expects to repeat the performance within the near future. It is nine years since he bailed out from 24,000 feet receiving wounds that kept him in hospitals for months and months, and from which he will never fully recover.

M. C. (Jack) Hayes had company Wednesday morning. An old friend, Joe Sewell, and wife, visited him. Joe is a former Big League Baseball Player, as was Jack, and is now a Scout for the Cleveland Indians. They chatted of old times and had quite a gabfest. Needless to say, both got a kick out of their short reunion.

Joe Jackson passes this one along and it is well worth remembering: "Nothing is easier than fault-finding. No talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character is required to set one up in the grumbling business."

Our Sheriff, Luther Kendrick, is going to have a Teen-Age Traffic Clinic. The exact date hasn't been decided upon, but will be within the next 30 days. Representatives from all the schools of pupils and instructors will attend and speakers from Montgomery will be present to talk to the teen-agers. The young folks themselves will also be called upon to do some public speaking at the meeting. It is a very worthwhile cause and we hope the leaders in our county get behind him in this movement.

The Wadesonian is having a 3-D picture the 6, 7, 8 & 9th, of September. The name of the picture is the "House Of Wax," and we know you have seen it widely advertised. The picture stars Vincent Price and Frank Lovejoy. They say this 3-D is so real that the players come right out in the audience with you, so if you have been wanting to meet Vincent Price here is your chance to shake hands with him.

Hooray, we now have a granddaughter. Just learned it a few moments ago, ourself, and don't know what it's first name is, but a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. R. West at the Naval Air Force Hospital at Millington, Tenn., this morning. June, daughter, papa and grandmother, are both doing fine. Grandpa is in a fix.

What has been termed as one of the best field trials in the history of Chilton County was enjoyed last week when for several days fox hounds hit the woods near the Old Dixie Camp.

Several foxhunters and their dogs from all parts of the state took part in the hunt, but Chilton County hounds did themselves proud as the records of the hunt will show.

Little Leaguers Win Final Game

Although the Clanton Little Leaguers got off to a bad start in their final game last Monday night, they finally came back to win over the Sylacauga Little League Club by a score of 8 to 7.

Paced by the pitching of Larry Culpepper, who took over the chores in the fourth inning, and the hitting of Jimmy Tiffin, who got two for three, the local club came from behind in the early frames to end the season in a blaze of glory. Culpepper relieved Billy Miller after four innings.

The Sylacauga Club was beaten only recently by Birmingham's Southside team and it is this club that has made the trip to Williamsport, Pa., for Little League Championship. Clanton ended their season by winning eight out of twelve games.

Chilton County P.W. To Be Returned Home

Some of the happiest folks in the whole wide world live in the north end of Chilton County today now that they know that one of their favorite sons, a prisoner of war for almost two solid years, is on his way home after being set free a few days ago.

That favorite son is Corp. Morris N. Price, 25, son of Mrs. Hollie Price, of Jemison, who was captured by the Korean Reds almost two years ago to the day, on September 13, 1951, near Yanggu. He was wounded in the face with the bullet passing through his nose and knocking out several of his teeth.

The Chilton County Corporal was then taken to a North Korean Hospital in the same area where he was picked up and most of his other teeth were removed from his head.

Before Price entered the Army he was a Merchant Saman, but now he plans to continue his Army Service and he wants to become a flier The Chilton County man also wants to get his teeth repaired so he can eat a thick steak and see a baseball game.

Thousands Throng To Chilton's Gala County Exposition

When the curtain finally rings down on the final showing of the 1953 Chilton County Fair tomorrow night thousands of persons from all walks of life will have seen one of the biggest and best events in the history of the county.

Despite the temporary failure of the lights Wednesday night in the big airport hangar the crowds still lingered and when the lights again were burning the folks again began to mill past the many beautiful exhibits that line the big hall.

Wednesday's program was ushered in by the annual Chilton County Farm Bureau meeting to which some five hundred members and their families turned out to hear Rep. Armistead I. Selden, Jr. speak. The meeting was opened by the new president of the organization, James A. Kincaid. Also on the program was Charles Patterson. This meeting was adjourned for a fish fry and then the crowd moved to the Fair for the afternoon session.

Miss Patsy Young, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Young, was chosen as the 1953 Dairy Maid at the Wednesday afternoon session. Miss Young was then presented to the spectators Wednesday night and it fell to her to make the awards to the winning dairy cattlemen. The new Dairy Maid will be entered in the district contest to be held next month in Dadeville.

A. A. Lauderdale, Shelby County Farm Agent, performed the judges chores for the Dairy Show. Ernest Hayes and his Jersey Calf won the Grand Champion contest and the Get-Of-Sire was won by W. A. Williams.

Today's Fair program will be highlighted by the selection and presentation of the Chilton County Cotton Queen. The day's program will open with the beef cattle showing under the direction of Ralph Mims, president of the Chilton County Cattleman's Association. On hand for the judging will be William H. Gregory, Extension Service specialist of Auburn.

Among those entered in the Cotton Queen contest are Elizabeth Hayes of Pletcher, Lenora Oglesby of Clanton, and Barbara Jo Beaman of Jemison. The winner will be presented at the Fair tonight.

Tomorrow will be Commerce and Industry Day and Jersey Cattle Sale at the Fair, with door prizes to be drawn at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The exhibition will continue on into the night with the show in the hangar as well as the amusements on the outside.
